Mill Valley Police Eye School Bomb, Bank Blast Link

Also Checking Weathermen Sign At Tam High Explosion Scene

Classes resumed today at Tamalpais High School as Mill Valley police investigated a link between yesterday's bombing and a blast that damaged the Bank of America in Mill Valley last week.

Police also were checking the possibility that the device, which cracked plaster, wrecked a procelain water tank, broke five windows and slightly injured a girl student, was set by members of the radical Weathermen.

Juvenile officer Jeffrey R. Sousa said today the explosion, which rocked an empty boy's restroom in Keyser Hall at 11:36 a.m., was caused by a galvanized pipe bomb about six inches long and three-fourths of an inch in diameter.

All fragments of the pipe were recovered, but no timing device was found among the 50 pounds of rubble collected, he said, suggesting that the bomb was detonated by a fuse.

A similar pipe bomb, also set off by a fuse, exploded at the Bank of America in downtown Mill Valley shortly after 8 a.m. Friday, shattering a plate glass window and scattering glass,

Rewards Offered In School, Banks Bombs

The Independent-Journal today offers $1,500 reward in the bombing of Tamalpais High School yesterday, and $500 reward in each of two bombings of Marin branches of the Bank of America.

The rewards will be paid for information sent anonymously to Secret Witness, leading to arrest and conviction of those guilty.

Publisher Wishard A. Brown authorized the rewards from the $10,000 Secret Witness fund immediately after learning of the Tamalpais High School bombing yesterday.

Bombs wrecked doors and windows at the Bank of America branch in Mill Valley on April 23 and in Sausalito exactly one month earlier. There has been no arrest in either case.

The Secret Witness is a program initiated by the Detroit News, and subsequently adopted under newspaper sponsorship in several other cities, designed to aid law enforcement officers in the solution of heinous crimes. It has the endorsement of all Marin County law enforcement agencies and the cooperation of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Anyone having information that may lead to solution of the Tamalpais High School bombing or either or both of the Bank of America bombings may write that information on a plain sheet of paper, without disclosing his identity.

On each bottom corner of the sheet, he should write the same series of five numbers, arranged as he wishes (as "98765" for instance). He should tear off and keep one corner, then mail the letter in a plain envelope to Secret Witness, P. O. Box 330, San Rafael 94902.

If the information results in arrest and conviction, he has only to present the torn-off number to a Secret Witness award trustee who will be appointed by publisher Brown following the arrest, and he will be paid the reward.

In addition to the rewards offered today, the I-J's Secret Witness program has the following rewards standing for solution of the crimes listed:

In the Marin Hall of Justice bombing of last October, $1,000.

In the February burglary of the San Anselmo home of Gordon L. Chan, $200.

Kaiser Center Branch Of Bank Of America Bombed

OAKLAND (UPI) —A Bank of Americ a branch was bombed today at the Kaiser Center skyscraper in the heart of downtown Oakland. It was the 26th attack on branches of the world's largest bank.

The blast occurred shortly after 6 a. m. before the arrival of the thousands of office employees who work in the huge 28-story building on Lake Merritt in the center of the city. city.

There were no injuries, but the blast caused extsnsive damage to glass, hardware and marble.

The Oakland police bomb squad sought to determine what kind of explosive was used.

Sabotage attacks on Bank of America branches throughout California have increased in frequency during recent weeks. Eight days ago a branch in Berkeley was bombed for the second time this year.

Besides the 26 bombings there have been dozens of other acts of violence against facilities of the bank since February 1970 when the Isla Vista branch was destroyed by fire during rioting at the University of California campus at Santa Barbara.

The blast today was the fifth explosion this month at a Bank of America facility in California.

None of the assaults, which have occurred in cities throughout the state, has resulted in any arrests.

State, federal and local agencies, as well as the bank's own security officials, investigate each incident.

Following the Isla Vista violence, the bank's top executives undertook a vigorious reasessment of the institution's stance on the Vietnam war and other issues.

Angela's Description Of Jail Life

Angela Y. Davis yesterday described her life in Marin County Jail as "a world where silence is broken only by the clanging of prison doors."

The description was included in one of five affidavits filed in Marin Superior Cout in support of a previously filed motion that she be released on bail.

In addition to one by Miss Davis, affidavits were filed by her former professor, Herbert Marcuse; San Francisco minister A. Cecil Williams; Tolbert J. Small, an Oakland physician, and Robert Hoover, director of a small liberal arts college in East Palo Alto.

Miss Davis has been jailed since her arrest in New York City last Oct. 13. She was held at the Women's House of Detention in New York until she was extradited to Marin Dec. 22, and she has been housed at the Marin County Jail since.

She is charged, along with San Quentin inmate Ruchell Magee, with murder, kidnapping and conspiracy in connection with the Aug. 7 shoot-out at the Marin Hall of Justice in which four persons, including a superior court judge, were killed.

The two defendants are to return to Marin Superior Court tomorrow for further proceedings on several pre-trial motions, but her bid for bail is not among those selected for early hearing by Judge Alan A. Lindsay of Alameda County, who has been appointed to the case.

In her affidavit filed yesterday, but dated March 16, Miss Davis says that the Marin County Jail is "not structurally designed to house long-term inmates and it lacks facilities and equipment necessary for the health and welfare of its long-term inmates, like myself."

She said there is no sports or exercise equipment and little sunlight in an exercise yard in which, she said, she had been allowed to exercise only to-and-one-half hours in the period between Dec. 22 and March 16.

She has never had a cellmate and is not allowed to fraternize with other female inmates, Miss Davis said, adding "were it not for my visitors from the 'outside world,' I would be left in utter isolation here, with no one to talk to but myself.

She said jail conditions are "demoralizing and unhealthy" and hinder her from working on her defense or continuing her work for a doctoral degree in philosophy from the University of California at San Diego.

In his affidavit, Dr. Small said he has been her physician since Jan. 30 and agreed that jail conditions are unhealthy, saying her release on bail is "imperative to her development as a physically healthy

David Jones Picked To Fill Seat On Novato City Council

David Price Jones, a 36-year-old attorney, was appointed to the Novato City Council last night to succeed Douglas M. Merrill who resigned two weeks ago. (Another Novato City Council story, page 5.)

Councilmen, who had refused to divulge the names of applicants, selected Jones from a field of nine, ending several weeks of speculation and rumor.

Jones, sworn in by City Mgr. Charles A. Brown, was greeted with applause from an audience of about 20 persons and joined the council seated behind an impromptu penciled nameplate.

Jones will serve Merrill's unexpired term, which ends in April 1972.

After Jones was named, Mayor Joseph D. Gargiulo apparently surprised councilmen when he commended those who applied and read the heretofore undisclosed list.

Twister Kills 12 In South

COLUMBIA, Ky. (UPI) — Tornadoes cut a deadly path of destruction through five south central Kentucky counties Tuesday night and early today and made "match twigs" of buildings in several rural areas.

At least 12 persons were known dead and 100 were injured by the tornadoes which concentrated their fury in rural areas. Six persons were killed in the Mount Pleasant settlement of Cane Valley, Ky., state police said. At least 40 other persons were reported injured in the area.

Cary Eaton, a Greensburg, Ky., civil defense worker, was one of the first to arrive at Mount Pleasant to aid in rescue operations.

"It made match twigs out of everything," Eaton said. "When we started looking for people, we found them in all kinds of places away from their homes.

"They were just thrown clear from the debris."

Twisted and broken lumber from the homes was 300 to 400 yards away from foundations. Much of the lumber was wrapped around trees.

Kentucky Gov. Louie B. Nunn surveyed the damage from a National Guard helicopter then landed near Mount Pleasant.

"It's much worse than we thought," Nunn said. "We've just got to get all the help we can for these people."

Mrs. Robbie McCarrol, 22, and her daughter, were killed in Mount Pleasant. The husband, Fred, and a six-year-old son were injured.

Also killed in Mount Pleasant were Douglas Frodge, 7; Mr. and Mrs. Huey Smith, who were in their 60's, and Mrs. Anna Kundiff, 70, who was visiting with the Smith's when the tornado struck. Her home, located about 200 yards away, was not damaged.

Three persons were reported killed at South Hill, Ky., in Butler County, and 25 were injured. Two other persons were killed and at least 40 were injured in Salem, KY.

One person was killed and at least 20 were injured when a tornado skipped down the main street of Thompsonville, a community of about 450 persons. Ten persons were hospitalized.

Hub Council Veto On Housing Issue

By M. STREET BROOKS

The San Anselmo City Council decided last night against requiring a developer to set aside a portion of his project for low-cost housing. (Another San Anselmo City Council story, page 12.)

The council in approving rezoning for a 70-unit apartment project eliminated a planning commission stipulation that 5 per cent, or four of the units be for low-income rental.

The project was approved following lengthly public discussion both for and against the low-income clause and was highlighted by a brief temper flare-up by city Attorney John G. Buresh directed at Councilman Lewis W. Stewart.

With the stipulation that 5 per cent of the units be low-income housing, the planning commission earlier this month approved plans submitted by David Lewis for rezoning property on Sunny Hills Drive behind Red Hill Shopping Center from single residential to multiple dwelling units.

But when the matter came up for approval last night, Buresh advised councilmen that such a stipulation "shouldn't even be considered." He said, "I think it's a form of legal blackmail to do it."

Later in the meeting Steward attempted to explain why the stipulation had been made. "We aren't trying blackmail," he said before being cut off by Buresh.

"I don't care what you think," the attorney snapped. He said he had made his statement to the council. "If you want to take me on, go ahead."

Philip Merriman, financial consultant to Lewis, said the developer would lose $60,000 if four units were leased to the

'Polite' Arrests of Antiwar Protesters

WASHINGTON (UPI) —More than 200 antiwar protesters were arrested without violence today after they barricaded the entry to national Selective Service headquarters with their bodies.

The arrests, carried out with almost punctilious politeness, climaxed an all-night vigil conducted by the demonstrators in drizzling, chilly April weather.

Police said 205 were taken in custody.

About 50 Washington police moved in just before Selective Service employees began arriving for work. By 9 a.m., only two mothers with infant children were left, huddling from the rain under blankets and a bright green umbrella.

Washington Police Chief Jerry Wilson refused to arrest the women because he said they were not interfering with entry to the headquarters. Most of those arrested were charged with disorderly conduct and blocking an entrance.

Seventeen were booked on charges of unlawful entry. These apparently resulted from a brief skirmish outside the back door of the building between demonstrators and building guards and police.

The protesters took a different tact this morning at the Internal Revenue Service Building, which occupies a block along Constitution Avenue at 11th St. Instead of blocking entrances, they opened the doors for arriving employes and handed them peace literature.

A handful of protesters was at each entrance to the IRS building where more than 5,000 persons work.

There were no incidents, but for the first time during the

Draft Ceiling By Senate Panel

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A Senate committee has voted to keep the draft alive for two more years —but also to give Congress control for the first time over the size of the armed services and the number of draftees.

The draft measure passed by the Armed Services Committee Tuesday headed for lengthy debate on the Senate floor, where war critics were expected to try to trim the draft authority back to only one more year and to make larger cuts in the manpower level.

The committee acted a few hours after Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird revealed that draft calls for the rest of 1971 would not exceed 10,000 in any month —the lowest continuing military callup rate in six years. Laird also said the United States will spend about $8 billion in Vietnam during the business year starting July 1, about one-third of the peak Vietnam expenditure in 1968.

The draft bill passed by the committee would authorize the government to spend more than $1 billion for pay and benefits to meet the Nixon administration goal of an all-volunteer Army and a zero draft call.

The committee voted that the "end strength" of the armed forces should be cut from a requested 2.6 million on June 30, 1972, to 2.5 million. While the cut is not big, it would establish the principle of congressional control over the size of the standing Army — something that has been under the traditional control of the executive branch.

In addition, the committee imposed an outside limit of 150,000 on the number of men the President could draft in any one year—a provision that could be suspended under a national emergency.

The committee knocked out of the draft measure, which was previously approved by the House, a provision that would have made conscientious objectors serve three, instead of two, years of alternative public service. The panel voted instead to give the President authority to make such objectors eligible for recall duty up to six years after they have finished their two-year service stint.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Navy Picks First Black Admiral

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Navy has picked Capt. Samuel L. Gravely, a former postal clerk who now commands the guided missile frigate USS Jouett, to become its first black admiral.

Gravely

Gravely, 48, of Richmond, Va., was chosen from three candidates for promotion, Pentagon sources said Tuesday. Gravely currently is bringing his ship home from Vietnam, where it completed a tour off the Vietnam coast.

An official announcement of Gravely's appointment is expected to be made in a few days. The Pentagon sources said the other black candidates for admiral were Capts. Paul Green, a physician, and Thomas D. Parham, a chaplain.

Gravely joined the Naval Reserve in 1944 after becoming the first Negro to graduate from midshipman school at Columbia University. He served as executive officer aboard a submarine chaser during World War II, and when he left the navy became a postal clerk in his hometown of Richmond.

Cambodian Deal

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—Lon Nol, who resigned as Cambodian prime minister nine days ago, has agreed to lead a new government under an arrangement in which three deputy premiers would take over much of his workload, one of Lon Nol's advisers said today.

Former Premier Son Ngoc Than, one of four advisers, said Lon Nol met Tuesday night with Pho Proeung, senior member of the four-man advisory council. Than said although Lon Nol has not submitted a formal letter officially accepting the invitation to become prime minister again he told Pho Proeung he would do so.

Lon Nol resigned citing the after effects of a stroke suffered Feb. 8 as the reason.

Mayoral Battle

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) —Mayor Charles Stenvig, a former policeman and an independent, and W. Harry Davis, a Negro endorsed by the Democratic-Farmer-Labor party, survived the Minneapolis mayoral primary election Tuesday night.

Stenvig piled up a 49,001 to 19,621 lead over Davis in the seven-candidate nonpartisan primary. The two will compete for the mayor's office in the June 8 general election.

Bruce A. Rasmusen, endorsed by the Republican Party, ran third with less than half the votes collected by Davis. Four other candidates trailed the three leaders.

Korean Election

SEOUL (UPI)—Park Chung-hee was re-elected to a third four-year term as president of South Korea today, insuring a hard-line policy towards Communist North Korea for his term of office.

Park, 53, a soldier-turned-politician, was leading by more than one million votes over assemblyman Kim Dae-jung with about three-quarters of the 12 million ballots counted.

The chief issue of the campaign was whether South Korea should cling to a policy of no compromise with the Communist north. Park insisted that any effort to open peaceful contacts with North Korea was premature and that his nation was threatened by another invasion from the North.

Rebels Pursued

NEW DELHI (UPI)—Pakistani federal troops crossed the border into India Tuesday in pursuit of East Pakistani rebels and shot to death five persons and wounded three others, Indian military sources said.

The sources said it was the first time Pakistani troops actually had crossed into India since the start of the Pakistan civil war March 25, although India has accused Pakistani forces of shooting into India several times.

Suez 'Rejection'

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir called in U.S. Ambassador H. Walworth Barbour today, reportedly to reject American suggestions that Israel temper its conditions for allowing Egypt to reopen the Suez Canal.

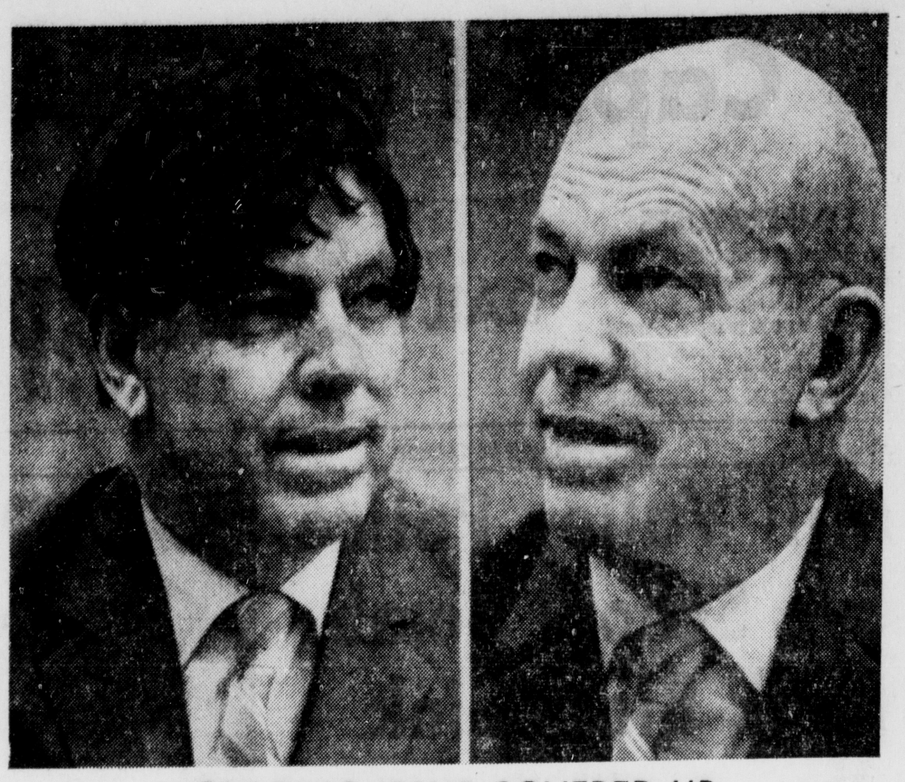
According to the newspaper Ha'aretz, unidentified cabinet ministers said Mrs. Meir and Foreign Minister Abba Eban were describing the American stance as "insufficient" and were informing Barbour Israel cannot accept it.

GI Drug Report

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A House subcommittee, saying up to 60 per cent of all U.S. servicemen have tried drugs, has recommended a "massive attack" upon the problem.

The attack should include strong new counseling, educational and rehabilitation programs, tightened U.S. military customs procedures, and appeals to Vietnam, Korea and Thailand for a prompt drug crackdown, the special House Armed Services Subcommittee said Tuesday.

It issued a 169-page report compiled during an eight-month study. The report said that in Vietnam drugs are "more plentiful than cigarettes or chewing gum." It said a heroin addict can support his habit for only $10 a day in Vietnam.



GLARING ISSUE COVERED UP

In a bald attempt to cover up a glaring issue, assemblymen in Sacramento yesterday presented a wig to Robert Wood, R-Greenfield, which he promptly modeled (L) for television cameramen who, Greenfield was kiddingly informed, had complained about the glare reflecting from his bald pate (R). The legislator's sense of humor was as unruffled as his new wig. (UPI Telephoto)

Mendel Rivers' Godson Learns Lesson Well On Personal Touch

CHARLESTON, S. C. (UPI)— Youthful Mendel Davis learned one lesson well from his godfather, the late Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, —appeal to the voters in person, not on television.

The lesson earned Davis, 28, a place in Congress Tuesday, in the seat formerly held by Rivers, D-S.C., who died of open heart surgery in December.

Davis, a 10-year Rivers' aide who never has held elective office, defeated three other candidates in the First Congressional District race.

With all precincts reporting, Davis had 37,857 votes to 32,632 for Dr. James Edwards, the Republican candidate, and 7,972 for Mrs. Victoria DeLee of the black-oriented United Citizens Party. Mrs. Elsie Von Kautz Carroll, a write-in candidate, drew only a few votes.

Davis said he often had discussed campaign strategy with Rivers, who was in Congress for 30 years, many as head of the powerful House Armed Services Committee.

The strategy was to make personal appearances throughout the nine-county district, a largely rural and coastal area with Charleston as its heart.

"The people want to see the candidate in person, not on television," Davis said. "We went to the people from the very start. I think the issue was the people."

Davis based his campaign on his ability to retain the numerous military bases established in the district under Rivers' chairmanship of the Armed Services Committee. There have been fears in the district that the bases will be pulled out one by one.

Draft Ceiling By Senate Panel

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A Senate committee has voted to keep the draft alive for two more years —but also to give Congress control for the first time over the size of the armed services and the number of draftees.

The draft measure passed by the Armed Services Committee Tuesday headed for lengthy debate on the Senate floor, where war critics were expected to try to trim the draft authority back to only one more year and to make larger cuts in the manpower level.

The committee acted a few hours after Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird revealed that draft calls for the rest of 1971 would not exceed 10,000 in any month —the lowest continuing military callup rate in six years. Laird also said the United States will spend about $8 billion in Vietnam during the business year starting July 1, about one-third of the peak Vietnam expenditure in 1968.

The draft bill passed by the committee would authorize the government to spend more than $1 billion for pay and benefits to meet the Nixon administration goal of an all-volunteer Army and a zero draft call.

The committee voted that the "end strength" of the armed forces should be cut from a requested 2.6 million on June 30, 1972, to 2.5 million. While the cut is not big, it would establish the principle of congressional control over the size of the standing Army — something that has been under the traditional control of the executive branch.

In addition, the committee imposed an outside limit of 150,000 on the number of men the President could draft in any one year—a provision that could be suspended under a national emergency.

The committee knocked out of the draft measure, which was previously approved by the House, a provision that would have made conscientious objectors serve three, instead of two, years of alternative public service. The panel voted instead to give the President authority to make such objectors eligible for recall duty up to six years after they have finished their two-year service stint.

The panel also voted to give divinity students draft deferments. Such students now have outright exemptions. A deferment would mean they could be drafted if their grades are not good enough or if they drop out of school.

The legislation also would abolish student deferments. Unless Congress acts to extend the President's draft authority, the draft power will expire June 30.

department of Housing and Urban Development under the low-income rental program. "We simply can't afford it," he said.

Merriman and others who criticized the planning commission's stipulation said they thought it would be unfair for residents of one development to pay in increased rents for "a city policy."

Stewart asked if the developer would consider just one or two low cost units, but Merriman again said it would make the project unprofitable.

"I don't think the overall program was designed for this," said Councilman Warren R. Perry." Other councilmen also attacked the 5 per cent stipulation. Woodrow V. Capurro said he was "more concerned about the project's effect on traffic on Sonoma Avenue than low cost housing," and claimed the requirement would lower project standards. James F. Reed said it would "be an arbitrary use of our powers."

But others disagreed.

A letter from Dona Good, president of the League of Women Voters of Central Marin, was read to the board by Judy Ainswort, a league member.

"We are aware of the economic burden involved in developing the proposed site," she wrote. "However, we cannot believe that providing four units at $120 or $135 a month would render the 70-unit project economically impractical."

(Jerry Hood, Marin HUD official, said his office would pay from $115 a month for a one-bedroom apartment up to $195 a month for four bedrooms for qualified low-income families)

"At the present time, Mrs. Hood's letter continued, "there are 42 applicants for leased housing in San Anselmo who are unable to find suitable living quarters. The proposed project could take care of four of those applicants . . .

"We believe it is the responsibility of government to work with private enterprise in providing solutions to the critical housing needs today."

"It's been done in other towns," said Phillip Heinecke, chairman of the planning commission. "Any new law is apt to have some unfairness. It's part of the facts of life."

Dr. Robert Lee, chairman of the citizens committee on zoning and housing, a committee appointed by the council, defended the planning commission's action.

"This price is relatively small in view of the scarcity of land," Lee said. "To build is a privilege and it comes at some cost."

But an unidentified person said the 5 per cent requirement would create a "hidden tax." He said, "I want to see it on my tax bill so I can come down here and complain."

In the end, the councilmen voted 4-0 for rezoning without requiring provision of low-cost housing, Perry abstained without comment.

West Marin Ranch Sold For $195,000

Sale of the Antone Brazil Ranch of 259 acres south of Dillon Beach for $195,000 was completed yesterday.

The property, up for sale since the death of the late Antone J. Brazil about two years ago, was sold by the Bank of America for the Brazil heirs to Richard Hicks of Tiburon. The sale price was the exact amount of the last inheritance tax appraisal.

Hicks, vice president and assistant to the chairman of the board of Dean Witter and Co., San Francisco, moved with his family to Tiburon from Lake Forest, Ill., last September. He said he has been leasing a house in Tiburon but recently purchased a home on Tanfield Road.

He and his wife have five children and plan to build on the Brazil Ranch and live there, Hicks said. He hopes to have construction completed by the fall school semester of 1972.

The ranch is located south of Dillon Beach near Tom's Point and has about one - half mile of water frontage on Tomales Bay, according to P.W. Profter of the Santa Rosa, trust office of Bank of America, who arranged the sale. He said there are a five-room ranch house and several outbuildings on the property.

The original Brazil ranch was approximately 550 acres.

Jones, a past president of the Novato Civic Foundation, was awarded the Novato Jaycees distinguished service award in January.

He is a director and former vice president of the Novato Lions Club, served a term as director of the Marin County Bar Association and was on the Marin County March of Dimes board for five years.

He and his wife, Kay, and son, Gared, live at 2 Jackson Court.

Councilman George C. Quesada suggested that the council hold a public hearing on its practice of not revealing the names of those who apply for city appointments.

He said he was disappointed that Gargiulo revealed the names of the applicants and felt that secrecy was conducive to receiving applications since it would be an assurance against embarrassment to someone not selected.

Hodges' Will Leaves Wife His Estate

Sportscaster Russ Hodges of Mill Valley left an estate estimated at more than $50,000 to his wife, Gay, according to a will filed for probate yesterday in Marin Superior Court.

Hodges, broadcasting voice of the New York and San Francisco Giants for 22 years, died April 19 after collapsing, apparently of a heart attack, at his home.

The will filed yesterday was dated March 28, 1963, and left his entire estate to his wife.

In a petition for probate filed with the will, the estate was estimated to be worth "upwards" of $50,000 and also estimated to provide an annual income of "upwards" of $1,000.

The estate consists entirely of securities and real property, according to the petition.

In addition to his wife, Hodges is survived by a son, Pat, of Burlingame, and a daughter, Judy, of Florida.

Marcuse's affidavit, dated March 18 and previously made public, offers to continue his supervision of her research for her doctorate on the subject of "The Concept of Force in German Idealisitic Philosophy (in particular, Kant)."

Reverend Williams, minister at Glide Memorial Methodist Church who has acted as Miss Davis's spiritual advisor since her arrival in Marin, offered in his affidavit to act as her supervisor if she is released on bail.

The final affidavit filed yesterday, from Robert Hoover, director of Nairobi College in East Palo Alto, offers Miss Davis a position as instructor in philosophy and black studies at the 150-student school if she is released.

wood and concrete over the sidewalk and street.

Souza said the only link between the two blasts at this point appears to be the type of bomb used. FBI agents are still investigating the bank bombing.

A pipe bomb also did minor damage to the Bank of America in Sausalito March 23.

One student, Sherry New, suffered a minor finger cut yesterday, when a window in her French class across a lightwell from the restroom was broken by the explosion. Principal Raymond J. Bell said a poster taped to the window prevented glass fragments from spraying the room and causing more injuries.

Sousa said the device appeared to have been placed in or on a procelain water tank above a row of urinals. The blast blew a basketball-sized hole in the ceiling above the tank, cracked a similar tank a few feet away, shook loose some pipes and blew holes in five windows.

He was unable to say what type of explosive was used but said the restroom reeked of gunpowder smoke when he arrived.

Bell dismissed classes for the day to allow Mill Valley police to conduct a thorough search of the school. No other bomb was found.

A crude drawing on the restwood wall and the words "May Day" raised the possibility that the high school bombing is connected with the Weathermen.

The "May Day" slogan and a picture of a bomb — a circle with a star in the center and a lit fuse — have been painted on stores and billboards throughout the Bay Area. Police believe this is a warning that Weathermen plan more bombings Saturday.

Someone — possibly the person who set the explosive device — drew the bomb symbol and "May Day" in indelible red ink below the shattered water tank. Bell said the drawing was not there before yesterday morning.

A similar drawing appeared on the wall of another boy's restroom at the school and in a classroom as well.

Bell said this is the first bombing of the school in his experience. "We've received our share of bomb hoax calls, but nothing ever came of them," he said. No telephone bomb threat either before or after yesterday's explosion was received at the school, he said.

The 50-pounds of rubble — fragments of the bomb, porcelain chips, plaster and wood lathe — were swept from the wet floor by police, sealed in a plastic bag and sent to the FBI laboratory in Washington for analysis. Sousa said he does not expect the FBI to investigate the bombing itself.

Bell described the mood on campus today as "one of genuine concern and growing anger that someone would do this and put students and staff in jeopardy."

Bell said students discussed the bombing during their first period class today and have been coming forward with information on who may have planted the bomb.

Students on the other hand appeared relatively unconcerned on campus today, gathering in groups to joke about the explosion. One theory was that a student set the bomb because he was disgruntled about his grades. School officials said the absentee rate was about normal today at around 4 per cent.

State 'Safe' From Polio

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — While polio epidemics may be possible in some big city slums in the nation, California is not endangered by the crippling disease, a state health official said today.

Dr. James Chinn, chief of the Department of Public Health's Bureau of Communicable Disease Control, said, "We haven't had cases of polio traceable to acquisition within California for several years."

He said the "one or two" cases reported each year recently were traced to contacts outside the state.

California law since th early 1960s has required children to be immunized before they enter school, he said.

Chinn said areas where polio could be reported included Mexican-American districts, where persons coming in from Mexico can carry some "wild virus from south of the border." But he added he foresaw no increase in previous numbers of cases.

Dr. John Witte, chief of the immunization branch of the federal Center for Disease Control, warned in Washington this week that polio epidemics threaten some city slums this summer unless vaccination programs are stepped up.

Ripon Sees Mailliard Losing Out

I-J Special Report

LOS ANGELES — One of Marin's two congressmen, Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District will be redistricted this year into political oblivion, the Ripon Society predicted today.

But, contrary to other published speculation, Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, will survive the redistricting by the Democratic-controlled Legislature, according to the society, a nationwide liberal Republican group.

Others have speculated that Mailliard's district, now a combination of parts of Marin and San Francisco, would change little. But the society's analysis concluded that Marin would be returned to the district of Rep. Don H. Clausen R-First District, with Mailliard's district shifting into the heavily-Democratic portions of northern San Mateo County.

This would cut Republican registration in Mailliard's district from 39.7 to 31.7 per cent, enhancing the prospect of his defeat by one of the four San Francisco Democratic assemblymen who will lose his district to Southern California.

Behr, according to previous theories, would face a reelection fight next year because Marin would be added to a San Francisco senatorial district. But the Ripon Society predicted instead that the San Francisco district would be extended into San Mateo County, while Behr would pick up Sonoma to replace Solano county.

The Seventh Assembly District, now consisting of Marin and Southern Sonoma, would include less of Sonoma after apportionment, according to the society.

Humboldt County would be eliminated from the Second Assembly District, which covers the rest of Sonoma, thus making the district Democratic and eliminating the home county of its present assemblyman, Frank P. Belotti, R-Eureka, according to the society.

The analysis was done by Mike Halliwell, assistant sociology professor at California State College, Long Beach, and president of the Los Angeles chapter of the society.

The only hope of "outflanking" Democrats in the reapportionment battle in Sacramento, the society said, would be for the GOP to align with blacks and Mexican-Americans "who would be deprived of fair representation by the Democratic gerrymander."

ANTIWAR

current series of demonstrations, some protesters went limp and had to be carried to police vans. Normally the protesters walk passively away with police when told they are arrested.

The protests are part of two weeks of "direct action" being carried out by a militant group calling itself the People's Coalition for Peace and Justice.

The heads of 27 religious organizations with a membership of more than 86 million Americans also issued a call Tuesday for an end to the war.

The leaders of Catholic, Protestant, Jewish and Orthodox churches asked that bells be tolled across the country from noon to 1 p.m. Saturday in "mourning for those who have already died in Southeast Asia and our sorrow that the killing continues."

"Our nation is sorely troubled," the church leaders said. "We believe this to be a sickness of the spirit."

"A major cause is the continuing war in Southeast Asia. Although substantial numbers of combat forces have been withdrawn, the war has widened geographically and additional thousands of combatants and noncombatants are still being killed."

War protesters have threatened to block traffic and shut down government buildings next week. This week they have been "lobbying" at different government buildings each day.

Five Found Dead In Automobile

TEMPE, Ariz. (UPI) —A woman and her four young children were found dead in an automobile in the carport of their home early today, the victims of what police termed a murder-suicide.

A newspaper delivery boy discovered the bodies of Mrs. Sheila Marie Salsbury, 30; twins James and John, 6; Rita, 4, and Ann, 3.

Police said Mrs. Salsbury had attached a hose to the exhaust pipe and ran it into the interior of the car. The engine was running when the bodies were found.

Ceylon Is No Paradise These Days

COLOMBO, Ceylon (UPI)— Ceylon looks like a tropical paradise where monkeys swing through the rain forests and tuskless elephants bathe in the rivers. Orchids spring from the ground and sapphires, moonstones and rubies abound.

But it is no paradise. It is an island nation in deep trouble.

Despite the lavishness of nature, Ceylon has a fumbling, technically bankrupt economy. There is widespread unemployment, deepseated labor unrest and a militant student movement more radical than the leftist Trotskyite-Communist government of Premier Sirimavo Bandaranaike.

Ceylon is caught up now in an insurgency by those same radical students and other youths determined to overthrow the government of Mrs. Bandaranaike and replace it with a radical-socialist government run by young men at least as radical as the Red Guards of Mao Tse-tung's Cultural Revolution.

How it will end remains to be seen but it is feared that the revolution launched by the self-styled People's Liberation Front (PLF) in Ceylon on the night of April 4 is likely to be a running sore in the poverty stricken land for many months to come.

Ceylon has had troubles since it became independent from Britain in 1948. There has been labor strife, student unrest, troubles between the predominantly Sinhalese natives and the Tamils who immigrated from southern India, and between the government and the Buddhists who maintain one of Buddhism's most sacred shrines in Kandy, the Temple of the Tooth.

A period of disorders culminated in 1959 with the assassination of Prime Minister S. W. R. D. Bandaranaike. In 1960 his widow, was elected prime minister. Ceylon turned increasingly away from the West and toward the Communist camp.

The nation was swept with student and labor unrest because of widespread unemployment and in 1970 Mrs. Bandaranaike unseated Primier Dudley Sesnanayake in a general election dominated by leftist factions. In her speech accepting the premiership she announced the establishment of relations with North Korea, North Vietnam, East Germany, recognized the Viet Cong and broke off with Israel.

This was not leftist enough for the dissident youth, estimated anywhere between 14,000 and 80,000 and the insurgency began a month ago when the People's Liberation Front raided the U.S. embassy, a colonial type building close to the parliament on the edge of the Indian Ocean on Galle Street.

A few rebels, all in their teens or early twenties, climbed the high white wall surrounding the building and threw fire bombs. Two embassy cars were destroyed and when police intervened an inspector was stabbed in the back and died.

The insurrection was born.

Mrs. Bandaranaike struck back by giving the army the right of arrest. Within a few days 450 youths had been imprisoned without trial, and they are still being held as active supporters of the PLF.

The propaganda did not cease, and within a week the premier declared a state of emergency.

Police swooped on the university in Colombo and found 3,000 handmade bombs, gelignite and dynamite. One hall of a residence at the university had its roof blown off when students making bombs accidentally exploded one.

On the night of April 4-5 the first police post was hit at Welawaya and the first police casualties were suffered. The following night 30 police posts were attacked in widely scattered parts of the country and police slain.

The rebels became more daring as they captured automatic weapons and ammunition when before they had only swords and shotguns. There were rumors, never confirmed, that North Korea or Communist China was supplying arms to them.

The rebels have shown they are well trained and it is thought that in their jungle camps their leaders run highly efficient small arms school.

The armed forces outnumber the insurgents but at first they were ill equipped. However Mrs. Bandaranaike shuffled off her role of a noncommitted nation and began bringing in supplied from India and other Commonwealth nations — and helicopters form the United States.

Observers say even a big power arsenal would be of little help in the long run unless something can be done to build a solid economy.

Tea, rubber and coconuts produce 90 per cent of the foreign exchange in the country. Tea, which provides 60 per cent, has steadily lost in price since 1955 while labor costs have steadily increased.

Because of the steady decline and loss of earnings Ceylon has been living on its capital reserves for more than 15 years.

In 1965 the United National Party (UNP) of then Premier Senanayake tried to improve the economy with external aid from the Ceylon Aid Troup made up of the United States, Britain, Canada, Australia, Japan, France and Italy. The economic program lost its drive and no new industries were brought into the country.

A UNIQUE APPROACH

"It is possible to be completely free of problems, whether they are personal, your children, marriage partner, parents or in any area of your life. Some people find relief in religion, therapy or analysis, meditation, hypnosis or any of a dozen other approaches. Some escape through drugs or by becoming involved in some activity or by committing themselves to some cause. But for some of us, none of these bring any real satisfaction or happiness because they don't solve the problems. To enjoy life fully and have freedom from constant strain and worry is obviously worth any risk or effort, but what can you do? The fact is that if you can fully understand a problem, then you can act to end it. But for that you need a fresh, unconventional view — not something to try to believe in or fool yourself with, but a sane, down to earth, direct approach that works."

The above is an excerpt from the writing of Bill Allen. Working with individuals, a uniquely practical approach is taught and employed in assisting them to understanding and resolving problem situations.

Sale of the Antone Brazil Ranch of 259 acres south of Dillon Beach for $195,000 was completed yesterday.

He said he was disappointed that Gargiulo revealed the names of the applicants and felt that secrecy was conducive to receiving applications since it would be an assurance against embarrassment to someone not selected.

Hodges' Will Leaves Wife His Estate

Sportscaster Russ Hodges of Mill Valley left an estate estimated at more than $50,000 to his wife, Gay, according to a will filed for probate yesterday in Marin Superior Court.

Hodges, broadcasting voice of the New York and San Francisco Giants for 22 years, died April 19 after collapsing, apparently of a heart attack, at his home.

The will filed yesterday was dated March 28, 1963, and left his entire estate to his wife.

In a petition for probate filed with the will, the estate was estimated to be worth "upwards" of $50,000 and also estimated to provide an annual income of "upwards" of $1,000.

The estate consists entirely of securities and real property, according to the petition.

In addition to his wife, Hodges is survived by a son, Pat, of Burlingame, and a daughter, Judy, of Florida.

and mentally productive human being."

Small said Miss Davis has suffered headaches, infections and deteriorating eyesight since her arrest, and cited as contributing factors infrequent fresh air, segregated nature of her confinement, small quarters, lack of exercise and an inadequate and unbalanced diet.

Marcuse's affidavit, dated March 18 and previously made public, offers to continue his supervision of her research for her doctorate on the subject of "The Concept of Force in German Idealisitic Philosophy (in particular, Kant)."

Reverend Williams, minister at Glide Memorial Methodist Church who has acted as Miss Davis's spiritual advisor since her arrival in Marin, offered in his affidavit to act as her supervisor if she is released on bail.

The final affidavit filed yesterday, from Robert Hoover, director of Nairobi College in East Palo Alto, offers Miss Davis a position as instructor in philosophy and black studies at the 150-student school if she is released.

wood and concrete over the sidewalk and street.

Souza said the only link between the two blasts at this point appears to be the type of bomb used. FBI agents are still investigating the bank bombing.

A pipe bomb also did minor damage to the Bank of America in Sausalito March 23.

One student, Sherry New, suffered a minor finger cut yesterday, when a window in her French class across a lightwell from the restroom was broken by the explosion. Principal Raymond J. Bell said a poster taped to the window prevented glass fragments from spraying the room and causing more injuries.

Sousa said the device appeared to have been placed in or on a procelain water tank above a row of urinals. The blast blew a basketball-sized hole in the ceiling above the tank, cracked a similar tank a few feet away, shook loose some pipes and blew holes in five windows.

He was unable to say what type of explosive was used but said the restroom reeked of gunpowder smoke when he arrived.

Bell dismissed classes for the day to allow Mill Valley police to conduct a thorough search of the school. No other bomb was found.

A crude drawing on the restwood wall and the words "May Day" raised the possibility that the high school bombing is connected with the Weathermen.

The "May Day" slogan and a picture of a bomb — a circle with a star in the center and a lit fuse — have been painted on stores and billboards throughout the Bay Area. Police believe this is a warning that Weathermen plan more bombings Saturday.

Someone — possibly the person who set the explosive device — drew the bomb symbol and "May Day" in indelible red ink below the shattered water tank. Bell said the drawing was not there before yesterday morning.

A similar drawing appeared on the wall of another boy's restroom at the school and in a classroom as well.

Bell said this is the first bombing of the school in his experience. "We've received our share of bomb hoax calls, but nothing ever came of them," he said. No telephone bomb threat either before or after yesterday's explosion was received at the school, he said.

The 50-pounds of rubble — fragments of the bomb, porcelain chips, plaster and wood lathe — were swept from the wet floor by police, sealed in a plastic bag and sent to the FBI laboratory in Washington for analysis. Sousa said he does not expect the FBI to investigate the bombing itself.

Bell described the mood on campus today as "one of genuine concern and growing anger that someone would do this and put students and staff in jeopardy."

Bell said students discussed the bombing during their first period class today and have been coming forward with information on who may have planted the bomb.

Students on the other hand appeared relatively unconcerned on campus today, gathering in groups to joke about the explosion. One theory was that a student set the bomb because he was disgruntled about his grades. School officials said the absentee rate was about normal today at around 4 per cent.

State 'Safe' From Polio

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — While polio epidemics may be possible in some big city slums in the nation, California is not endangered by the crippling disease, a state health official said today.

Dr. James Chinn, chief of the Department of Public Health's Bureau of Communicable Disease Control, said, "We haven't had cases of polio traceable to acquisition within California for several years."

He said the "one or two" cases reported each year recently were traced to contacts outside the state.

California law since th early 1960s has required children to be immunized before they enter school, he said.

Chinn said areas where polio could be reported included Mexican-American districts, where persons coming in from Mexico can carry some "wild virus from south of the border." But he added he foresaw no increase in previous numbers of cases.

Dr. John Witte, chief of the immunization branch of the federal Center for Disease Control, warned in Washington this week that polio epidemics threaten some city slums this summer unless vaccination programs are stepped up.

Ripon Sees Mailliard Losing Out

I-J Special Report

LOS ANGELES — One of Marin's two congressmen, Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District will be redistricted this year into political oblivion, the Ripon Society predicted today.

But, contrary to other published speculation, Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, will survive the redistricting by the Democratic-controlled Legislature, according to the society, a nationwide liberal Republican group.

Others have speculated that Mailliard's district, now a combination of parts of Marin and San Francisco, would change little. But the society's analysis concluded that Marin would be returned to the district of Rep. Don H. Clausen R-First District, with Mailliard's district shifting into the heavily-Democratic portions of northern San Mateo County.

This would cut Republican registration in Mailliard's district from 39.7 to 31.7 per cent, enhancing the prospect of his defeat by one of the four San Francisco Democratic assemblymen who will lose his district to Southern California.

Behr, according to previous theories, would face a reelection fight next year because Marin would be added to a San Francisco senatorial district. But the Ripon Society predicted instead that the San Francisco district would be extended into San Mateo County, while Behr would pick up Sonoma to replace Solano county.

The Seventh Assembly District, now consisting of Marin and Southern Sonoma, would include less of Sonoma after apportionment, according to the society.

Humboldt County would be eliminated from the Second Assembly District, which covers the rest of Sonoma, thus making the district Democratic and eliminating the home county of its present assemblyman, Frank P. Belotti, R-Eureka, according to the society.

The analysis was done by Mike Halliwell, assistant sociology professor at California State College, Long Beach, and president of the Los Angeles chapter of the society.

The only hope of "outflanking" Democrats in the reapportionment battle in Sacramento, the society said, would be for the GOP to align with blacks and Mexican-Americans "who would be deprived of fair representation by the Democratic gerrymander."

current series of demonstrations, some protesters went limp and had to be carried to police vans. Normally the protesters walk passively away with police when told they are arrested.

The protests are part of two weeks of "direct action" being carried out by a militant group calling itself the People's Coalition for Peace and Justice.

The heads of 27 religious organizations with a membership of more than 86 million Americans also issued a call Tuesday for an end to the war.

The leaders of Catholic, Protestant, Jewish and Orthodox churches asked that bells be tolled across the country from noon to 1 p.m. Saturday in "mourning for those who have already died in Southeast Asia and our sorrow that the killing continues."

"Our nation is sorely troubled," the church leaders said. "We believe this to be a sickness of the spirit."

"A major cause is the continuing war in Southeast Asia. Although substantial numbers of combat forces have been withdrawn, the war has widened geographically and additional thousands of combatants and noncombatants are still being killed."

War protesters have threatened to block traffic and shut down government buildings next week. This week they have been "lobbying" at different government buildings each day.

Five Found Dead In Automobile

TEMPE, Ariz. (UPI) —A woman and her four young children were found dead in an automobile in the carport of their home early today, the victims of what police termed a murder-suicide.

A newspaper delivery boy discovered the bodies of Mrs. Sheila Marie Salsbury, 30; twins James and John, 6; Rita, 4, and Ann, 3.

Police said Mrs. Salsbury had attached a hose to the exhaust pipe and ran it into the interior of the car. The engine was running when the bodies were found.

Ceylon Is No Paradise These Days

COLOMBO, Ceylon (UPI)— Ceylon looks like a tropical paradise where monkeys swing through the rain forests and tuskless elephants bathe in the rivers. Orchids spring from the ground and sapphires, moonstones and rubies abound.

But it is no paradise. It is an island nation in deep trouble.

Despite the lavishness of nature, Ceylon has a fumbling, technically bankrupt economy. There is widespread unemployment, deepseated labor unrest and a militant student movement more radical than the leftist Trotskyite-Communist government of Premier Sirimavo Bandaranaike.

Ceylon is caught up now in an insurgency by those same radical students and other youths determined to overthrow the government of Mrs. Bandaranaike and replace it with a radical-socialist government run by young men at least as radical as the Red Guards of Mao Tse-tung's Cultural Revolution.

How it will end remains to be seen but it is feared that the revolution launched by the self-styled People's Liberation Front (PLF) in Ceylon on the night of April 4 is likely to be a running sore in the poverty stricken land for many months to come.

Ceylon has had troubles since it became independent from Britain in 1948. There has been labor strife, student unrest, troubles between the predominantly Sinhalese natives and the Tamils who immigrated from southern India, and between the government and the Buddhists who maintain one of Buddhism's most sacred shrines in Kandy, the Temple of the Tooth.

A period of disorders culminated in 1959 with the assassination of Prime Minister S. W. R. D. Bandaranaike. In 1960 his widow, was elected prime minister. Ceylon turned increasingly away from the West and toward the Communist camp.

The nation was swept with student and labor unrest because of widespread unemployment and in 1970 Mrs. Bandaranaike unseated Primier Dudley Sesnanayake in a general election dominated by leftist factions. In her speech accepting the premiership she announced the establishment of relations with North Korea, North Vietnam, East Germany, recognized the Viet Cong and broke off with Israel.

This was not leftist enough for the dissident youth, estimated anywhere between 14,000 and 80,000 and the insurgency began a month ago when the People's Liberation Front raided the U.S. embassy, a colonial type building close to the parliament on the edge of the Indian Ocean on Galle Street.

A few rebels, all in their teens or early twenties, climbed the high white wall surrounding the building and threw fire bombs. Two embassy cars were destroyed and when police intervened an inspector was stabbed in the back and died.

The insurrection was born.

Mrs. Bandaranaike struck back by giving the army the right of arrest. Within a few days 450 youths had been imprisoned without trial, and they are still being held as active supporters of the PLF.

The propaganda did not cease, and within a week the premier declared a state of emergency.

Police swooped on the university in Colombo and found 3,000 handmade bombs, gelignite and dynamite. One hall of a residence at the university had its roof blown off when students making bombs accidentally exploded one.

On the night of April 4-5 the first police post was hit at Welawaya and the first police casualties were suffered. The following night 30 police posts were attacked in widely scattered parts of the country and police slain.

The rebels became more daring as they captured automatic weapons and ammunition when before they had only swords and shotguns. There were rumors, never confirmed, that North Korea or Communist China was supplying arms to them.

The rebels have shown they are well trained and it is thought that in their jungle camps their leaders run highly efficient small arms school.

The armed forces outnumber the insurgents but at first they were ill equipped. However Mrs. Bandaranaike shuffled off her role of a noncommitted nation and began bringing in supplied from India and other Commonwealth nations — and helicopters form the United States.

Observers say even a big power arsenal would be of little help in the long run unless something can be done to build a solid economy.

Tea, rubber and coconuts produce 90 per cent of the foreign exchange in the country. Tea, which provides 60 per cent, has steadily lost in price since 1955 while labor costs have steadily increased.

Because of the steady decline and loss of earnings Ceylon has been living on its capital reserves for more than 15 years.

In 1965 the United National Party (UNP) of then Premier Senanayake tried to improve the economy with external aid from the Ceylon Aid Troup made up of the United States, Britain, Canada, Australia, Japan, France and Italy. The economic program lost its drive and no new industries were brought into the country.

A UNIQUE APPROACH

"It is possible to be completely free of problems, whether they are personal, your children, marriage partner, parents or in any area of your life. Some people find relief in religion, therapy or analysis, meditation, hypnosis or any of a dozen other approaches. Some escape through drugs or by becoming involved in some activity or by committing themselves to some cause. But for some of us, none of these bring any real satisfaction or happiness because they don't solve the problems. To enjoy life fully and have freedom from constant strain and worry is obviously worth any risk or effort, but what can you do? The fact is that if you can fully understand a problem, then you can act to end it. But for that you need a fresh, unconventional view — not something to try to believe in or fool yourself with, but a sane, down to earth, direct approach that works."

The above is an excerpt from the writing of Bill Allen. Working with individuals, a uniquely practical approach is taught and employed in assisting them to understanding and resolving problem situations.

Community Action Leaders Selected

Novato City Council's community action program got into low gear last night with the appointment of the nucleus of a Citizens Advisory Committee on Community Needs. (Another Novato City Council story, page 1.)

The council appointed six persons representing various segments of the community, who will recommend the ultimate size and makeup of the committee.

Appointed were Richard R. Kuhn, president of the San Marin Improvement Association; Capt. Joseph W. Corfield, domestic actions coordinator, Hamilton Air Force Base; Robert D. Anderson, Novato Jaycees; Arthur Sorensen, pastor of All Saints Lutheran Church; Doris Abelew, 34 San Miguel Way, housewife; and Raleigh Floyd, president of Novatans for Racial Equality.

As another step in the community action program, the council is scheduled to appoint a Youth Advisory Committee.

The Novato City Council Also:

CABLE TV — Postponed action on a request by G'Tec Cable TV of Novato to boost its monthly charge from $4.50 to $5.50 and the FM rate from no charge to $1.50 a month, pending study by a subcommittee, David Price Jones and Wayne Sartain.

LOMA VERDE — Postponed action on a request by the Novato Unified School District to annex Loma Verde School to the city, until after residents along Alameda de la Loma from the city line to Calle de la Mesa, adjacent to the school, are asked if they would consider being annexed at the same time.

SUIT SETTLED — Authorized paying William F. and Irene Nave $33,165 in settlement of a lawsuit brought against the city by the Naves in 1964 for taking part of their land for right-of-way to widen South Novato Boulevard in the 1500 block. The Naves sued for $51,250 and won a court judgment for $33,165.

SAN MARIN PARK — Postponed action, pending further negotiation, on acquisition of park land after learning that T. V. McGuire of San Rafael, owner of the potential 4.6-acre park site off San Marin Drive, east of San Mateo Way, who wants to retain three frontage parcels, is asking $60,000 for the remainder of the land. The city had offered $50,000 for the entire site.

ANNEXATION — Introduced an ordinance to annex 12.66 acres on the south side of Center Road, opposite Hune Court. The ordinance was strongly opposed by five property owners in the annexation area and backed by Esquire Homes, which plans to construct a 26-lot subdivision on 7.7 acres in the area to be annexed. Councilman Wayne Womack, who said he had an interest in adjoining property, abstained, and Mayor Joseph D. Gargiulo dissented.

UNDERGROUNDING — Introduced an ordinance to require undergrounding of utilities in area previously not served by telephone, electric or cable television lines, and where service is installed to new buildings.

VEHICLE REMOVAL — Adopted an ordinance providing for the removal of wrecked, abandoned, inoperative or dismantled cars from private property as a public nuisance. Councilman David Price Jones, who wasn't on the council when the ordinance was introduced, abstained.

WESTERN HOSTS — Introduced an ordinance to rezone from limited agricultural to planned residential 13 acres west of Highway 101 at the south end of Redwood Boulevard and south of Lynwood Park as requested by Western Hosts Inc. which plans to construct townhouses at the site. Lynwood Park residents, about 150, had petitioned the planned commission in opposition to the spreading of townhouses over the terrain, but only a spokesman appeared last night and councilmen assured him the planned residential zoning was the best tool for controlling development.

REZONING — Introduced an ordinance to rezone 50,000 square feet on the east side of Highway 101, north of Novato Creek, from limited agriculture to general commercial as requested by Ladner N. Cameron who plans a boat sales, service and storage facility at the site.

RENTAL BUSINESS — Approved precise plans by E. D. McGillicuddy for a general equipment rental business, adjacent to 6981 Redwood Highway, west of Highway 101. Councilman Jones abstained citing a conflict of interest.

FEE CHANGES — Set May 25 at 8 p.m. for a public hearing on series of increases in city fees, mainly for planning services, but not affecting business license fees, which City Mgr. Charles A. Brown reported needed further study.

SIGNALS — Approved plans and specifications for traffic signal equipment at South Novato Boulevard and Diablo Avenue, estimated to cost $15,000, and set the bid opening for 11 a.m. May 12.

STREET WORK — Approved plans and specifications for overlaying and paying portions of 15 city streets and the city corporation yard, estimated to cost $104,223, and set the bid opening at 4 p.m. May 6.

GIFT — Received as a gift from the Novato Federated Women a commemorative plaque bearing a painting of Novato City Hall on its face.

MEETINGS — Adjourned until 8 p.m. next Tuesday at city hall and canceled the regularly scheduled meeting, May 11, because some councilmen will be attending a conference in Sacramento.

Bennett Pleads Innocent To Charge; Plans Counter Suits

By C. P. McCARTHY

William Morgan Bennett of Kentfield, member of the state Board of Equalization, pleaded innocent yesterday to charges of drunken driving, and leveled charges of his own of brutality and misconduct by a Sausalito policeman.

Bennett charged that he was struck in the mouth by Sausalito officer Blake Hoffman and that his face was smashed against a screen in a police car as Hoffman three times slammed on the brakes of the car while driving Bennett to the Marin County Jail for booking.

Bennett was arrested early Sunday in the parking lot of Valhalla Inn, after Hoffman reported seeing him driving erratically and with the bright lights shining on what Sausalito police said was an official state car.

Bennett yesterday pleaded innocent before Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court to charges of driving under the influence of liquor and driving under the combined influence of drugs and liquor.

Smith set trial for June 14.

Outside the courtroom, Bennett was surrounded by his wife, three of his four children and two attorneys. One of the attorneys, Philip S. Ryan, said Bennett had had two cocktails and a glass of wine at a San Francisco restaurant four hours before the arrest.

Ryan said Bennett was not drunk and accused Hoffman of acting "irrationally, illegally and improperly."

Bennett's other attorney, William O. Weissich, said Bennett intends to file suit against Hoffman and the City of Sausalito, charging police brutality, false arrest and assault and battery.

Bennett said that Hoffman, driving from the site of the arrest to the jail, stopped near Zack's restaurant in Sausalito, got out of the car, opened the door to the back seat, where Bennett was, and struck him in the mouth.

Once on Highway 101, Bennett said Hoffman drove at speeds up to 90 miles an hour, and when Bennett, who said he was "frightened to death," urged Hoffman to slow down, Hoffman slammed on the brakes, throwing Bennett's head into the screen.

"How do you like that?" Hoffman then asked, according to Bennett.

Later, Bennett said, Hoffman drove past the jail entrance to the Hall of Justice and pulled the police car off to the side of an unlit portion of Civic Center Drive.

Hoffman turned off the engine and lights of the car and was reaching for the door handle to get out of the car, when Bennett's wife and two friends, who had followed the police car, pulled up behind it, according to Bennett.

Hoffman then restarted the engine, made a U-turn and took him to the jail entrance for booking, Bennett said.

Cuts and scrapes on Bennett's lips, nose and forehead were visible yesterday. On Monday, Bennett collapsed in a Hall of Justice courtroom while waiting to speak with Ryan. He said yesterday that he felt weak in the courtroom and got up to get a drink of water when he fell to the floor.

Sausalito Police Chief James D. Wright yesterday declined to answer or allow Hoffman to answer Bennett's charges.

"We're not going to try this case in the newspapers just because he's William Bennett," Wright said, adding that Hoffman "will have ample opportunity to present his side of the story on the witness stand."

Bennett is scheduled to stand trial July 15 for a March 4 arrest — also in Sausalito — for allegedly being drunk in public.

CONTRACTORS FLP COIN IN TIE BID

What do two contractors do when they submit identical bids on a job?

They toss a coin and the winner gets the job.

At least that's the way it worked in Novato when Ghilotti Brothers Inc. and Carcano and Velcich Associates Inc., both of San Rafael submitted identical bids.

Public Works Director Clifford E. Temps said each firm bid $2,593.80 on curbing of the median islands in Sunset Parkway from South Novato Boulevard to the east end of the parkway.

Ghilotti Brothers won the toss, and the contract.

No Charges Against Couple

No charge was filed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against a Point Reyes Station couple arrested earlier in the day on suspicion of drug charges after the couple was robbed and the woman assaulted.

The woman, Colleen Kane, 25, of 36 Portola Avenue, was released. Her companion, Ernest R. Higgins, 23, also of 36 Portola Avenue, was freed on $6,250 bail to appear on drug-related charges in San Francisco, when it turned out there was a San Francisco warrant for his arrest.

Elizabeth Is Ordered To Rest To Shake Colds

LONDON (UPI) — Doctors ordered Queen Elizabeth today to cancel all engagements to shake off a winter-long siege of colds and coughs. But a Buckingham Palace spokesman said the 45-year-old monarch is determined to embark on schedule Monday on a 4,500 mile tour of British Columbia.

"She has a heavy lingering cold and has been told to take three days off. But it is certainly her intention to go," the spokesman said.

"We hope that she will be 100 per cent fit but she intends to go in any case."

Bennett Pleads Innocent To Charge; Plans Counter Suits

By C. P. McCARTHY

William Morgan Bennett of Kentfield, member of the state Board of Equalization, pleaded innocent yesterday to charges of drunken driving, and leveled charges of his own of brutality and misconduct by a Sausalito policeman.

Bennett charged that he was struck in the mouth by Sausalito officer Blake Hoffman and that his face was smashed against a screen in a police car as Hoffman three times slammed on the brakes of the car while driving Bennett to the Marin County Jail for booking.

Bennett was arrested early Sunday in the parking lot of Valhalla Inn, after Hoffman reported seeing him driving erratically and with the bright lights shining on what Sausalito police said was an official state car.

Bennett yesterday pleaded innocent before Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court to charges of driving under the influence of liquor and driving under the combined influence of drugs and liquor.

Smith set trial for June 14.

Outside the courtroom, Bennett was surrounded by his wife, three of his four children and two attorneys. One of the attorneys, Philip S. Ryan, said Bennett had had two cocktails and a glass of wine at a San Francisco restaurant four hours before the arrest.

Ryan said Bennett was not drunk and accused Hoffman of acting "irrationally, illegally and improperly."

Bennett's other attorney, William O. Weissich, said Bennett intends to file suit against Hoffman and the City of Sausalito, charging police brutality, false arrest and assault and battery.

Bennett said that Hoffman, driving from the site of the arrest to the jail, stopped near Zack's restaurant in Sausalito, got out of the car, opened the door to the back seat, where Bennett was, and struck him in the mouth.

Once on Highway 101, Bennett said Hoffman drove at speeds up to 90 miles an hour, and when Bennett, who said he was "frightened to death," urged Hoffman to slow down, Hoffman slammed on the brakes, throwing Bennett's head into the screen.

"How do you like that?" Hoffman then asked, according to Bennett.

Later, Bennett said, Hoffman drove past the jail entrance to the Hall of Justice and pulled the police car off to the side of an unlit portion of Civic Center Drive.

Hoffman turned off the engine and lights of the car and was reaching for the door handle to get out of the car, when Bennett's wife and two friends, who had followed the police car, pulled up behind it, according to Bennett.

Hoffman then restarted the engine, made a U-turn and took him to the jail entrance for booking, Bennett said.

Cuts and scrapes on Bennett's lips, nose and forehead were visible yesterday. On Monday, Bennett collapsed in a Hall of Justice courtroom while waiting to speak with Ryan. He said yesterday that he felt weak in the courtroom and got up to get a drink of water when he fell to the floor.

Sausalito Police Chief James D. Wright yesterday declined to answer or allow Hoffman to answer Bennett's charges.

"We're not going to try this case in the newspapers just because he's William Bennett," Wright said, adding that Hoffman "will have ample opportunity to present his side of the story on the witness stand."

Bennett is scheduled to stand trial July 15 for a March 4 arrest — also in Sausalito — for allegedly being drunk in public.

Community Action Leaders Selected

Novato City Council's community action program got into low gear last night with the appointment of the nucleus of a Citizens Advisory Committee on Community Needs. (Another Novato City Council story, page 1.)

The council appointed six persons representing various segments of the community, who will recommend the ultimate size and makeup of the committee.

Appointed were Richard R. Kuhn, president of the San Marin Improvement Association; Capt. Joseph W. Corfield, domestic actions coordinator, Hamilton Air Force Base; Robert D. Anderson, Novato Jaycees; Arthur Sorensen, pastor of All Saints Lutheran Church; Doris Abelew, 34 San Miguel Way, housewife; and Raleigh Floyd, president of Novatans for Racial Equality.

As another step in the community action program, the council is scheduled to appoint a Youth Advisory Committee.

The Novato City Council Also:

CABLE TV — Postponed action on a request by G'Tec Cable TV of Novato to boost its monthly charge from $4.50 to $5.50 and the FM rate from no charge to $1.50 a month, pending study by a subcommittee, David Price Jones and Wayne Sartain.

LOMA VERDE — Postponed action on a request by the Novato Unified School District to annex Loma Verde School to the city, until after residents along Alameda de la Loma from the city line to Calle de la Mesa, adjacent to the school, are asked if they would consider being annexed at the same time.

SUIT SETTLED — Authorized paying William F. and Irene Nave $33,165 in settlement of a lawsuit brought against the city by the Naves in 1964 for taking part of their land for right-of-way to widen South Novato Boulevard in the 1500 block. The Naves sued for $51,250 and won a court judgment for $33,165.

SAN MARIN PARK — Postponed action, pending further negotiation, on acquisition of park land after learning that T. V. McGuire of San Rafael, owner of the potential 4.6-acre park site off San Marin Drive, east of San Mateo Way, who wants to retain three frontage parcels, is asking $60,000 for the remainder of the land. The city had offered $50,000 for the entire site.

ANNEXATION — Introduced an ordinance to annex 12.66 acres on the south side of Center Road, opposite Hune Court. The ordinance was strongly opposed by five property owners in the annexation area and backed by Esquire Homes, which plans to construct a 26-lot subdivision on 7.7 acres in the area to be annexed. Councilman Wayne Womack, who said he had an interest in adjoining property, abstained, and Mayor Joseph D. Gargiulo dissented.

UNDERGROUNDING — Introduced an ordinance to require undergrounding of utilities in area previously not served by telephone, electric or cable television lines, and where service is installed to new buildings.

VEHICLE REMOVAL — Adopted an ordinance providing for the removal of wrecked, abandoned, inoperative or dismantled cars from private property as a public nuisance. Councilman David Price Jones, who wasn't on the council when the ordinance was introduced, abstained.

WESTERN HOSTS — Introduced an ordinance to rezone from limited agricultural to planned residential 13 acres west of Highway 101 at the south end of Redwood Boulevard and south of Lynwood Park as requested by Western Hosts Inc. which plans to construct townhouses at the site. Lynwood Park residents, about 150, had petitioned the planned commission in opposition to the spreading of townhouses over the terrain, but only a spokesman appeared last night and councilmen assured him the planned residential zoning was the best tool for controlling development.

REZONING — Introduced an ordinance to rezone 50,000 square feet on the east side of Highway 101, north of Novato Creek, from limited agriculture to general commercial as requested by Ladner N. Cameron who plans a boat sales, service and storage facility at the site.

RENTAL BUSINESS — Approved precise plans by E. D. McGillicuddy for a general equipment rental business, adjacent to 6981 Redwood Highway, west of Highway 101. Councilman Jones abstained citing a conflict of interest.

FEE CHANGES — Set May 25 at 8 p.m. for a public hearing on series of increases in city fees, mainly for planning services, but not affecting business license fees, which City Mgr. Charles A. Brown reported needed further study.

SIGNALS — Approved plans and specifications for traffic signal equipment at South Novato Boulevard and Diablo Avenue, estimated to cost $15,000, and set the bid opening for 11 a.m. May 12.

STREET WORK — Approved plans and specifications for overlaying and paying portions of 15 city streets and the city corporation yard, estimated to cost $104,223, and set the bid opening at 4 p.m. May 6.

GIFT — Received as a gift from the Novato Federated Women a commemorative plaque bearing a painting of Novato City Hall on its face.

MEETINGS — Adjourned until 8 p.m. next Tuesday at city hall and canceled the regularly scheduled meeting, May 11, because some councilmen will be attending a conference in Sacramento.

CONTRACTORS FLP COIN IN TIE BID

What do two contractors do when they submit identical bids on a job?

They toss a coin and the winner gets the job.

At least that's the way it worked in Novato when Ghilotti Brothers Inc. and Carcano and Velcich Associates Inc., both of San Rafael submitted identical bids.

Public Works Director Clifford E. Temps said each firm bid $2,593.80 on curbing of the median islands in Sunset Parkway from South Novato Boulevard to the east end of the parkway.

Ghilotti Brothers won the toss, and the contract.

No Charges Against Couple

No charge was filed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against a Point Reyes Station couple arrested earlier in the day on suspicion of drug charges after the couple was robbed and the woman assaulted.

The woman, Colleen Kane, 25, of 36 Portola Avenue, was released. Her companion, Ernest R. Higgins, 23, also of 36 Portola Avenue, was freed on $6,250 bail to appear on drug-related charges in San Francisco, when it turned out there was a San Francisco warrant for his arrest.

Jones Elected New Head Of Board Of Education

Paul L. Jones, a member of the San Rafael Board of Education since 1967, was elected president of the board at a meeting last night.

Jones succeeds Herman L. Childress, who remains a member of the board.

Lawrence I. Kramer Jr. was elected vice-president and newly-elected board member Marilyn Bolinger was appointed representative to the Marin County Committee on School District Organization.

Sup. John F. Plank was reappointed board secretary.

A Substitute For Killing Oak Moth

A bacillus spore, which lives on and kills oak leaf moth, might be an effective substitute for insecticide in combating tent caterpillars that over-run oak trees in Marin.

There is a good possibility that the bacillus will work, according to Dr. Dudley Pinnock, assistant insect pathologist in the agricultural experiment station at the University of California.

Donald L. Brittsan, Marin County farm adviser, contacted Dr. Pinnock because of reports that the bacillus is more natural and less harmful than toxic insecticides such as Malthion and Sevin that are now used in Marin County.

Dr. Pinnock identified the new agent as bacillus thuringiensis, a bacteria that lives on certain caterpillars and kills them but does not harm beneficial insects, birds or animals. He said insecticides can wipe out other insects and can be toxic to animals.

"We've been using this bacillus on California oak worm or moth for years, and it does a good job," said Dr. Pinnock. He said he has not tried the bacillus on tent caterpillars but sees no reason why it would not be just as effective.

He cannot test it on tent caterpillars this year because it is too late in the season, and the cage caterpillars have left the trees and are crawling on the ground and on homes.

Dr. Pinnock said the bacillus is being used successfully in the East Bay Regional Park, City of Berkeley, California Division of Highways, and on the Berkeley campus of University of California.

Brittsan said the substitution of bacillus for insecticides "sounds like a good idea if effective because the more we can use natural things the better off we are."

Pleads Innocent To Assault

Stella Johnson, 23, of Marin City, pleaded innocent Monday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Jury trial was set for the week of June 7.

She is accused of shooting Floyd Barrows of Marin City March 22.

Kentfield Board Will Continue KQED Contract

The Kentfield School District board has agreed to continue its contract with TV station KQED which provides special education programs for the district's students.

According to Barbara Ruzicka, board secretary, the contract is now in its eighth year. Next year it will provide programming for 350 students at a cost of $406.

She said programming includes special science and family life courses for older students and Sesame Street for younger students.

The board, in other action Monday night, approved the hiring of Leader, Jarvis and Kelgwin of San Rafael to audit district records for fiscal 1970-71.

The board also continued its budget study but took no action and entered closed session to instruct its salary negotiator, Supt. Anthony G. Bacich.

Memorial Exhibit Is Set Sunday

A memorial exhibit of paintings of Carlton Zimmer will open at 1 p.m. Sunday at the Terra Linda Art Association gallery.

The exhibit hours at the gallery at 4172 Redwood Highway, are 1 to 4 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays and noon to 3 p.m., Monday through Friday. The exhibit ends May 9.

Zimmer, who died in January, was head of the San Francisco branch of Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborne, advertising agency. He retired in 1960.

Zimmer's work has been exhibited in many galleries, including the De Young Museum. A stroke incapacitated his right arm, but he continued painting left-handed. He taught art to prison inmates at Alcatraz Island for many years.

Leave Policy Under Fire; Review Set

The Mill Valley School District board Monday night heard district teachers object to its sabbatical leave policy and said it would reconsider the policy.

Carroll D. Killingsworth, district director of business services, said the Mill Valley Teachers Association asked for clarification of the policy after a one-year sabbatical for Steve Buffo, a teacher at Edna Maguire School, was turned down.

The board said budget considerations necessitated the denial. "Because of the strong demands on the budget, the board didn't feel it could grant the leave," Killingsworth said.

Trustee William P. Everts Jr. explained that the policy leaves sabbaticals up to the discretion of the board, Killingsworth said, but teachers wanted a policy that makes granting of such leaves automatic if applicants follow certain procedures.

The board stood by its policy but said it would study and possibly amend the policy to clarify both the rights of teachers in asking for sabbaticals and the board in granting or refusing them.

In other business, trustees heard that $17,000 was spent last year on fire safety at Old Mill School and further expenditures are expected next fiscal year.

Killingsworth said a new boiler, three exit doors and a sprinkler system for the basement were installed. The board authorized the staff to obtain architectural estimates on the cost of installing more exit doors and sprinklers, he said.

The Mill Valley School District board also:

EDNA MAGUIRE — Held a question-and-answer session on the makeup of Edna Maguire School.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE — Designated Saturday as Foreign Language Day.

LEAVE — Refused a one-year leave of absence to Richard Ponzio, Strawberry Point school teacher, to enter doctoral studies at the University of California at Berkeley. The board, however, said it would make every effort to rehire Ponzio when he returns.

EMPLOYMENT — Hired Dr. Delmo Della-Dora as Edna Maguire principal at $20,000 per year. He will assume his duties July 1.

Trial Set In Werber Case

Sausalito restaurateur Frank N. Werber pleaded innocent Monday in Marin Superior Court to seven felony counts of possessing illegal drugs and narcotics.

Jury trial was set for the week of July 19.

Werber, 41, owner of the Trident Restaurant, is accused of having undisclosed amounts of heroin, LSD, marijuana, cocaine, peyote, codeine and mescaline when arrested by drug agents at his De Silva Island home March 26.

Werber is also out on bail pending an appeal of a six-month jail sentence and $2,000 fine imposed last year after he was convicted of marijuana possessing and cultivation steming from the seizure of six seabags of pot at his home in 1968.

Accreditation Of Hospital Renewed

Officials at Hillcrest Hospital in Petaluma have announced the hospital's accreditation has been renewed for another two years by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals.

The commission is made up of representatives from the American Hospital Association, American College of Physicians, American Medical Association and the American College of Surgeons.

Secretary Of Firemen Will Leave Post

Robert Nolan, secretary of the Novato Volunteer Firemen, has notified the group he will leave the post May 24.

Nolan, a teacher in San Francisco, is moving from Novato, Fire Chief Jack Kidder reported.

Nod To Half-Staff For Kent, War Dead

Flags at the Marin Civic Center will be lowered to half-staff next Wednesday, the first anniversary of the tragedy at Kent State University, in memory of those who met violent death on the Ohio campus and in Southeast Asia.

Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday approved the flag-lowering on a motion by Michael Wornum.

The request came from Robert A. Le Blanc of San Rafael, representing a group called the Marin Veterans for Peace.

"One year ago, four young persons died because Kent State students demonstrated their hate for the war that's taken so many of their fellow Americans," said Le Blanc.

..."Our friends who died in Southeast Asia and didn't know why, and the four young people who died in Ohio must be remembered so that in the future we might not be so quick to send others to their deaths."

"I see no problem in lowering the Flag in memory of people who were killed violently," said Wornum.

John F. McInnis said he wants it clearly understood that the vote to lower the Flag is in memory of veterans killed in the war, and is not an endorsement of the statement read by Le Blanc.

Office Development Gets Approval From Planners

The San Rafael Planning Commission granted last night a use permit and architectural approval for a five-building office development in the Northgate Industrial Park.

The vote was 6 to 1 with Commissioner Jorgen V. Lunding against the use permit but voting for architectural approval.

The commission required that owner Johnny Ribeiro and Margarita Development Co. agree to restrict use of the buildings to offices.

The five buildings will contain 72,260 square feet of floor space.

ADDITION — Approved an 8-by-16-four addition to the office on a used car lot at 805 Irwin Street for Douglas Cowan; a 320 square foot storage building to the Marin Rod and Gun Club at 2675 Francisco Boulevard and a small addition to Dr. Gideon Sorokin's building at 4140 Redwood Highway.

Nod To Half-Staff For Kent, War Dead

Flags at the Marin Civic Center will be lowered to half-staff next Wednesday, the first anniversary of the tragedy at Kent State University, in memory of those who met violent death on the Ohio campus and in Southeast Asia.

Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday approved the flag-lowering on a motion by Michael Wornum.

The request came from Robert A. Le Blanc of San Rafael, representing a group called the Marin Veterans for Peace.

"One year ago, four young persons died because Kent State students demonstrated their hate for the war that's taken so many of their fellow Americans," said Le Blanc.

. . . "Our friends who died in Southeast Asia and didn't know why, and the four young people who died in Ohio must be remembered so that in the future we might not be so quick to send others to their deaths."

"I see no problem in lowering the Flag in memory of people who were killed violently," said Wornum.

John F. McInnis said he wants it clearly understood that the vote to lower the Flag is in memory of veterans killed in the war, and is not an endorsement of the statement read by Le Blanc.

Marin City Residents Charge Police Patrol Lag

Police protection in Marin City, supplied by the Marin County Sheriff's Department, is inadequate and cannot cope with crime in the community, a group of residents charged last night.

The accusations were disputed by sheriff's deputies, who said residents themselves were largely to blame if service is poor.

The charges and rebuttals came at a special meeting of the Marin City Community Services District board to discuss police-community relations.

The residents, led by Thelma McKinney, of 30 Pacheco Street, complained of a growing number of incidents — many involving guns —which they said point to the need for more frequent patrols of Marin City.

Recent incidents mentioned included sniping, brandishing weapons and burglaries as well as less serious offenses such as pilfering gasoline, stripping cars and vandalism.

Mrs. McKinney charged deputies with making infrequent patrols of Marin City, with not responding to calls for several hours and with behaving rudely when they do respond.

Another resident said he once heard a burglar alarm ringing for 70 minutes before deputies arrived.

Sgt. Robert Godina of the Marin City Sheriff's substation responded that the office at times is understaffed in order to provide more patrols on weekends. "That's a legitimate complaint and you should take it to (Sheriff Louis P.) Mountanos," he said.

Deputy Bill J. Dews defended the sheriff's offices, saying, "We're only as good as you in the community make us. You're our eyes and ears. I can't come camp on your doorstep until you need me. When you see something illegal you've got to call us."

Dews compared the attitude of citizens in Marin City to that of Tamalpais Valley residents, where sheriff's deputies also patrol.

"People will call us from Tam Valley and say, 'There's someone breaking into a house next door. Come get him and I'll be in court tomorrow to testify.'

"But in Marin City we find someone who's been shot and we ask, 'Who did this?' and people put their hands into their pockets and say, 'I don't know.'"

Dews said he understands some residents are reluctant to call the sheriff because of the threat of retaliation against informers.

"But this group (responsible for the crimes and threats) only has 15 or 20 in it," he said. "Are 1,500 people going to let 15 tell them what to do? It doesn't make sense."

One woman in the audience agreed that most residents will not cooperate with the authorities because "we see some kids stripping a car and we say, 'that's Tom's kid, and that's Aunt Suzie's boy."

Sgt. Richard A. Nutting of the California Highway Patrol also was present, but most of the questions were directed at Dews and Godina.

Some bitterly complained that on week nights only one patrol car is available to cover a beat from Golden Gate Bridge to Corte Madera and from Tiburon to Muir Beach.

Godina admitted this, explaining that more manpower is needed on weekends. "We think we're understaffed too," he said.

The district board, on a motion by Arthur Miller, seconded by Frank J. Phillips, urged the sheriff and county supervisors to provide adequate patrols of Marin City.

Director C. J. Williams said another community meeting with better attendance should be held soon to further discuss police protection in the community. Although the district distributed 1,000 flyers announcing last night's meeting, only about 15 residents attended.

Bay Fill Projects Win BCDC Support

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Plans for two bay fill projects in Marin have won general approval from Bay Conservation and Development Commisison advisory boards.

The projects are to fill 2.9 acres of Richardson Bay for parking and roadways for new houseboat facilities, and to fill one acre along the shoreline of San Rafael Bay to widen San Pedro Road to four lanes to Peacock Gap.

The full commission will hold its initial hearing on the San Pedro Road project on May 6, at which time it also is to vote on the houseboat projects.

The design review board, meeting Monday evening, urged the staff to investigate removal of the long spit of fill in Richardson Bay at Kappas Yacht Harbor. Houseboats on the spit will be relocated to the new moorings, and the spit then used as a conventional marina.

But the design review board suggested that removal of the spit be considered to improve water circulation.

The engineering criteria review board yesterday tentatively approved the safety of both projects. Suggestions to move the San Pedro Road project inland, it agreed, apparently were not feasible because this would force a deep cut in a hill with a high potential for landslides.

Injuries To 2 Persons In Accidents

Two persons received minor injuries in two accidents yesterday, San Rafael police reported.

Kerry Anne Stanfield, 7, of 41 Coleman Drive, San Rafael was to see her own doctor for bruised hip and head. She was riding her bicycle north on Tampa Drive at 4:33 p.m. when it collided with a truck driven west on Coleman Drive by Paul Anthony Smith, 42, of 77 Porteous Avenue, Fairfax.

Thomas Joseph Sherlock, 17, of 533 Wake Robin Lane, San Rafael, was treated at Marin General Hospital for a muscle sprain in his neck.

He was a passenger in a car driven south on Alexander Street, at 5:35 p.m. by Steven Troy Larkin, 18, of 533 Wake Robin Lane, which collided with one driven west on Fourth Street by Randall Edmund Auvil, 26, of 316 C Street, San Rafael, according to police.

Inmate Held On Traffic Count

A San Quentin inmate who failed to return last night to the prison after being given a one-day pass for job interviews was being held in the Contra Costa County Jail today for a traffic violation, according to prison officials.

Associate Warden James W.L. Park said that Philip Green, 30, had called once yesterday to say that he couldn't meet his 5 p.m. deadline because he had car trouble. He was given a four-hour extension but still had not arrived at 9 p.m.

Park said that Contra Costa officials notified the prison today they were holding Green, who was scheduled to be paroled July 19. He has been in San Quentin since 1961, serving a term for robbery and assault to commit rape.

Offices Bombed In Argentina

ROSARIO, Argentina (UPI)— Nine bombs exploded today at business offices, three of them U.S.-affiliated firms. One policeman was seriously injured while trying to defuse a bomb.

The explosions caused mostly minor damage.

American firms hit included Goodyear, Remington and Bayer.

Youths Selected For City Panel

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The Board of Supervisors has appointed two high school students to the Delinquency Prevention Commission, the first persons in their teens to become city commissioners.

The commission provides services for youths before their problems can lead them to the police and juvenile authorities.

Those appointed are Pelton Stewart, 18, and Maria Leal, 17.

Stewart is student body president at Balboa High School and has been presented the Boy of the Year award from the Boys Clubs of America. President Nixon made the presentation.

Miss Leal is an honor student and year book editor at St. John's High School.

Oil Spill Fouls Puget Sound

A diesel oil spill of more than 200,000 gallons has killed at least 200 birds, endangered many more and covered about 200 square miles of North Puget Sound.

Waterfoul coated with the oil are being cleaned on nearby beaches or being flown to Seattle where other volunteer workers manned a 24-hour rescue operation.

Four tugboats and an oil skimmer boat were being used to concentrate oil so it could be absorbed by bags to shredded straw.

Marin City Residents Charge Police Patrol Lag

Police protection in Marin City, supplied by the Marin County Sheriff's Department, is inadequate and cannot cope with crime in the community, a group of residents charged last night.

The accusations were disputed by sheriff's deputies, who said residents themselves were largely to blame if service is poor.

The charges and rebuttals came at a special meeting of the Marin City Community Services District board to discuss police-community relations.

The residents, led by Thelma McKinney, of 30 Pacheco Street, complained of a growing number of incidents — many involving guns —which they said point to the need for more frequent patrols of Marin City.

Recent incidents mentioned included sniping, brandishing weapons and burglaries as well as less serious offenses such as pilfering gasoline, stripping cars and vandalism.

Mrs. McKinney charged deputies with making infrequent patrols of Marin City, with not responding to calls for several hours and with behaving rudely when they do respond.

Another resident said he once heard a burglar alarm ringing for 70 minutes before deputies arrived.

Sgt. Robert Godina of the Marin City Sheriff's substation responded that the office at times is understaffed in order to provide more patrols on weekends. "That's a legitimate complaint and you should take it to (Sheriff Louis P.) Mountanos," he said.

Deputy Bill J. Dews defended the sheriff's offices, saying, "We're only as good as you in the community make us. You're our eyes and ears. I can't come camp on your doorstep until you need me. When you see something illegal you've got to call us."

Dews compared the attitude of citizens in Marin City to that of Tamalpais Valley residents, where sheriff's deputies also patrol.

"People will call us from Tam Valley and say, 'There's someone breaking into a house next door. Come get him and I'll be in court tomorrow to testify.'

"But in Marin City we find someone who's been shot and we ask, 'Who did this?' and people put their hands into their pockets and say, 'I don't know.'"

Dews said he understands some residents are reluctant to call the sheriff because of the threat of retaliation against informers.

"But this group (responsible for the crimes and threats) only has 15 or 20 in it," he said. "Are 1,500 people going to let 15 tell them what to do? It doesn't make sense."

One woman in the audience agreed that most residents will not cooperate with the authorities because "we see some kids stripping a car and we say, 'that's Tom's kid, and that's Aunt Suzie's boy.'"

Sgt. Richard A. Nutting of the California Highway Patrol also was present, but most of the questions were directed at Dews and Godina.

Some bitterly complained that on week nights only one patrol car is available to cover a beat from Golden Gate Bridge to Corte Madera and from Tiburon to Muir Beach.

Godina admitted this, explaining that more manpower is needed on weekends. "We think we're understaffed too," he said.

The district board, on a motion by Arthur Miller, seconded by Frank J. Phillips, urged the sheriff and county supervisors to provide adequate patrols of Marin City.

Director C. J. Williams said another community meeting with better attendance should be held soon to further discuss police protection in the community. Although the district distributed 1,000 flyers announcing last night's meeting, only about 15 residents attended.

Bay Fill Projects Win BCDC Support

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Plans for two bay fill projects in Marin have won general approval from Bay Conservation and Development Commisison advisory boards.

The projects are to fill 2.9 acres of Richardson Bay for parking and roadways for new houseboat facilities, and to fill one acre along the shoreline of San Rafael Bay to widen San Pedro Road to four lanes to Peacock Gap.

The full commission will hold its initial hearing on the San Pedro Road project on May 6, at which time it also is to vote on the houseboat projects.

The design review board, meeting Monday evening, urged the staff to investigate removal of the long spit of fill in Richardson Bay at Kappas Yacht Harbor. Houseboats on the spit will be relocated to the new moorings, and the spit then used as a conventional marina.

But the design review board suggested that removal of the spit be considered to improve water circulation.

The engineering criteria review board yesterday tentatively approved the safety of both projects. Suggestions to move the San Pedro Road project inland, it agreed, apparently were not feasible because this would force a deep cut in a hill with a high potential for landslides.

Injuries To 2 Persons In Accidents

Two persons received minor injuries in two accidents yesterday, San Rafael police reported.

Kerry Anne Stanfield, 7, of 41 Coleman Drive, San Rafael was to see her own doctor for bruised hip and head. She was riding her bicycle north on Tampa Drive at 4:33 p.m. when it collided with a truck driven west on Coleman Drive by Paul Anthony Smith, 42, of 77 Porteous Avenue, Fairfax.

Thomas Joseph Sherlock, 17, of 533 Wake Robin Lane, San Rafael, was treated at Marin General Hospital for a muscle sprain in his neck.

He was a passenger in a car driven south on Alexander Street, at 5:35 p.m. by Steven Troy Larkin, 18, of 533 Wake Robin Lane, which collided with one driven west on Fourth Street by Randall Edmund Auvil, 26, of 316 C Street, San Rafael, according to police.

Inmate Held On Traffic Count

A San Quentin inmate who failed to return last night to the prison after being given a one-day pass for job interviews was being held in the Contra Costa County Jail today for a traffic violation, according to prison officials.

Associate Warden James W.L. Park said that Philip Green, 30, had called once yesterday to say that he couldn't meet his 5 p.m. deadline because he had car trouble. He was given a four-hour extension but still had not arrived at 9 p.m.

Park said that Contra Costa officials notified the prison today they were holding Green, who was scheduled to be paroled July 19. He has been in San Quentin since 1961, serving a term for robbery and assault to commit rape.

Offices Bombed In Argentina

ROSARIO, Argentina (UPI)— Nine bombs exploded today at business offices, three of them U.S.-affiliated firms. One policeman was seriously injured while trying to defuse a bomb.

The explosions caused mostly minor damage.

American firms hit included Goodyear, Remington and Bayer.

'Ecology Corps' For CO's Is Suggested

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan yesterday announced plans for establishment of a volunteer "California Ecology Corps" whose membership primarily would consist of conscientious objectors to war.

He said it will be the first of its kind in the United States.

The governor said the corps would operate three "Ecology Centers" in Northern California initially, probably in the redwoods area of the north coast.

They will be implemented as five state-operated conservation centers manned by minimum security prison convicts are abandoned in the coming fiscal year. Reagan said the "Ecology Centers" would be staffed by about 80 persons each and could include welfare recipients.

Volunteers will be paid $15 a month and will wear forest ranger-type work uniforms, be housed in dormitories and be provided meals. They will help with reforestation projects, fight fires and floods, clear streams, and improve beaches and parks.

Reagan told a news conference that such work for conscientious objectors meets federal requirements that they serve at least 24 months of "appropriate civilian work" as an alternative to the military.

"The Selective Service System will immediately begin soliciting volunteers for the California Ecology Centers," Reagan said.

Reagan released a statement by state Conservation Director James G. Stearns which said "safety standards required of regular firefighters of the Division of Forestry will apply, including reasonably short hair and an allowance for properly trimmed mustaches."

Per Capita Income: $3,910

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Commerce Department said Tuesday per capita income in the nation was up 5.75 per cent in 1970 to $3,910.

In 1969 it was $2,216, and in 1969 $3,699.

The department said the top gains, around 10 per cent, occurred in the District of Columbia, Alaska, Mississippi, Hawaii, Montana and West Virginia. It rose 3 per cent of less in Delaware, Indiana, Washington and Michigan while declining in North Dakota.

Per capita personal income is total personal income divided by total population.

At the same time the department said personal income rose in every region of the country and in 48 states by at least 4 per cent. The nationwide increase was 7 per cent.

Personal income mainly consists of wage and salary payments, proprietors' income, interest, rent, and dividends and government transfers, less personal contributions for social insurance.

Here is a table showing total personal income, per capita income and per cent of per capita income to the national average for the Western states:

Far West

Washington $13,675,000,000; $3,993; (102.) Oregon $7,775,000,000; $3,700; (95.) Nevada $2,258,000,000; $4,544; (116.) California $89,761,000,000; $4,469; (114.) Alaska $1,426,000,000; $4,676; (120.) Hawaii $3,429,000,000; $4,530; (116.) Arizona $6,334,000,000; $3,542; (91). Montana $2,350,000,000; $3,381; (86.) Idaho $2,289,000,000; $3,206; (82.) Utah $3,416,000,000; $3,210; (82.)

Seeks Delay In Rail Takeover

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A consumer lobbying group today filed suit in U.S. District Court to delay for at least 30 days the takeover of the nation's railroad passenger service by the National Railway Passenger Corporation.

The semipublic corporation, known as AMTRAK, is scheduled to take over most of the nation's passenger service May 1. It will drop about 100 of the present 285 intercity passenger trains and concentrate its remaining service on the more heavily traveled and profitable routes.

The suit was brought by the National Association of Railroad Passengers (NARP), whose lobbying activities were partly responsible for passage of the original AMTRAK law. The states of Michigan and Indiana joined in the suit.

Novato Eyes Effluent Ban Threat

Novato Sanitary District directors are worried about the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board's announced intent to consider a ban on discharge of waste water into San Francisco Bay by 1985.

District Mgr. Charles A. Joseph told directors Monday night such planning "is in conflict with what we are now doing."

Joseph explained that the district and six other agencies from Marin and Southern Sonoma are proceeding on a subregional study for transporting effluent to the bay.

The subregional study is to determine the best method of handling waste water, Joseph said. If the regional board has already decided that a ban is the best way to handle the problem, it has "thrown out two-thirds of the study," he contended.

The regional board has announced that it intends to consider banning waste discharges into the bay as part of its final plan, he said.

Another complication, Joseph said, is that the regional board's interim plan calls for the subregional system to be completed by 1978.

Then if the ban were enacted, it would have to be removed in 1985 at a considerable cost, he said.

The Novato Sanitary District board also:

ANNEXATIONS — Annexed seven acres on the west side of Eucalyptus Avenue at Mendocino Lane, owned by Marinaways Inc., and the city corporation yard at the south end of Davidson Street.

ROBERTS PROPERTY — Rejected a bid by developer Robert Roberts to annex only two of his 43-acre parcel in Marin Highlands, since district policy requires inclusion of the entire parcel for annexation.

RESIGNATION — Accepted the resignation of Benny Gibby, a mechanic.

MEETING SCHEDULE — Adjourned until 6 p.m. May 13 at the North Marin County Water District office, instead of the regularly scheduled May 10 date.

Freeway Vs. Rail Debate Criticized

ASILOMAR (UPI)—The president of a San Francisco engineering firm said Tuesday mass urban transportation was not just a battle between freeways and rapid transit.

"I think we are all wearying of the sterility of the 'freeway vs. rail transit' argument," Louis W. Riggs told an engineering symposium.

"In many cities it is not an either-or situation at all. There are corridors which indicate one or another, or both."

Riggs, president of Tudor Engineering Company, said "there are many more situations where other modes of transportation are needed."

"The point is that we must custom-design future urban transportation systems to fit specific transportation needs."

The conference, sponsored by the Engineering Foundation of New York City, was called to explore ways in which design or public works can be improved.

Riggs' firm is involved in construction of the Bay Area Rapid Transit system.

Reagan told a news conference that such work for conscientious objectors meets federal requirements that they serve at least 24 months of "appropriate civilian work" as an alternative to the military.

"The Selective Service System will immediately begin soliciting volunteers for the California Ecology Centers," Reagan said.

Reagan released a statement by state Conservation Director James G. Stearns which said "safety standards required of regular firefighters of the Division of Forestry will apply, including reasonably short hair and an allowance for properly trimmed mustaches."

Per Capita Income: $3,910

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Commerce Department said Tuesday per capita income in the nation was up 5.75 per cent in 1970 to $3,910.

In 1969 it was $2,216, and in 1969 $3,699.

The department said the top gains, around 10 per cent, occurred in the District of Columbia, Alaska, Mississippi, Hawaii, Montana and West Virginia. It rose 3 per cent of less in Delaware, Indiana, Washington and Michigan while declining in North Dakota.

Per capita personal income is total personal income divided by total population.

At the same time the department said personal income rose in every region of the country and in 48 states by at least 4 per cent. The nationwide increase was 7 per cent.

Personal income mainly consists of wage and salary payments, proprietors' income, interest, rent, and dividends and government transfers, less personal contributions for social insurance.

Here is a table showing total personal income, per capita income and per cent of per capita income to the national average for the Western states:

Far West

Washington $13,675,000,000; $3,993; (102.) Oregon $7,775,000,000; $3,700; (95.) Nevada $2,258,000,000; $4,544; (116.) California $89,761,000,000; $4,469; (114.) Alaska $1,426,000,000; $4,676; (120.) Hawaii $3,429,000,000; $4,530; (116.) Arizona $6,334,000,000; $3,542; (91). Montana $2,350,000,000; $3,381; (86.) Idaho $2,289,000,000; $3,206; (82.) Utah $3,416,000,000; $3,210; (82.)

Seeks Delay In Rail Takeover

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A consumer lobbying group today filed suit in U.S. District Court to delay for at least 30 days the takeover of the nation's railroad passenger service by the National Railway Passenger Corporation.

The semipublic corporation, known as AMTRAK, is scheduled to take over most of the nation's passenger service May 1. It will drop about 100 of the present 285 intercity passenger trains and concentrate its remaining service on the more heavily traveled and profitable routes.

The suit was brought by the National Association of Railroad Passengers (NARP), whose lobbying activities were partly responsible for passage of the original AMTRAK law. The states of Michigan and Indiana joined in the suit.

Novato Eyes Effluent Ban Threat

Novato Sanitary District directors are worried about the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board's announced intent to consider a ban on discharge of waste water into San Francisco Bay by 1985.

District Mgr. Charles A. Joseph told directors Monday night such planning "is in conflict with what we are now doing."

Joseph explained that the district and six other agencies from Marin and Southern Sonoma are proceeding on a subregional study for transporting effluent to the bay.

The subregional study is to determine the best method of handling waste water, Joseph said. If the regional board has already decided that a ban is the best way to handle the problem, it has "thrown out two-thirds of the study," he contended.

The regional board has announced that it intends to consider banning waste discharges into the bay as part of its final plan, he said.

Another complication, Joseph said, is that the regional board's interim plan calls for the subregional system to be completed by 1978.

Then if the ban were enacted, it would have to be removed in 1985 at a considerable cost, he said.

The Novato Sanitary District board also:

ANNEXATIONS — Annexed seven acres on the west side of Eucalyptus Avenue at Mendocino Lane, owned by Marinaways Inc., and the city corporation yard at the south end of Davidson Street.

ROBERTS PROPERTY — Rejected a bid by developer Robert Roberts to annex only two of his 43-acre parcel in Marin Highlands, since district policy requires inclusion of the entire parcel for annexation.

RESIGNATION — Accepted the resignation of Benny Gibby, a mechanic.

MEETING SCHEDULE — Adjourned until 6 p.m. May 13 at the North Marin County Water District office, instead of the regularly scheduled May 10 date.

Largemouth bass can live in water temperatures ranging from near freezing to over 90 degrees.

Freeway Vs. Rail Debate Criticized

ASILOMAR (UPI)—The president of a San Francisco engineering firm said Tuesday mass urban transportation was not just a battle between freeways and rapid transit.

"I think we are all wearying of the sterility of the 'freeway vs. rail transit' argument," Louis W. Riggs told an engineering symposium.

"In many cities it is not an either-or situation at all. There are corridors which indicate one or another, or both."

Riggs, president of Tudor Engineering Company, said "there are many more situations where other modes of transportation are needed."

"The point is that we must custom-design future urban transportation systems to fit specific transportation needs."

The conference, sponsored by the Engineering Foundation of New York City, was called to explore ways in which design or public works can be improved.

Riggs' firm is involved in construction of the Bay Area Rapid Transit system.

G.M. Low Bidder On Commute Fleet

General Motors Corp., beating its only competition by a slim $122,006, yesterday bid $5,833,550 to sell 132 buses to the Golden Gate Bridge District by the end of this year.

Flexible Bus Co., the only other bidder, offered the fleet for $5,955,556.

Flexible, an Ohio-based company, also bid $1,118,520 to develop 20 additional buses powered by smogless diesels fueled with liquid natural gas.

District officials, however, differed on whether they would recommend acceptance of the separate bid by Flexible. General Motors did not bid on the option for smogless power plants. The district board has yet to act on the bids.

The district's bus transit manager, Donald White, had estimated the cost of the buses, with some spare parts, would average $45,000. He was over the actual average by less than $900, but noted he originally had expected to seek more spare parts.

In addition to the 132 new buses, the district also plans to lease 20 buses built since 1964 from Greyhound Lines-West.

The fleet, to serve midday intracounty traffic as well as commuters, is expected to require an annual subsidy of $1 million, including the cost of depreciation.

Luehring doubted the staff's analysis of the bids would be completed in time for Friday's regular board meeting, but said the analysis would be done "as soon as possible."

The district's board of directors has agreed to pay cash for the full cost of the bus system, but has an application pending for a federal grant for two-thirds of the cost.

Both bidders acknowledged that their buses exceeded by some 600 pounds the state's maximum allowance of 20,500 pounds for rear axles, but White said the same buses have been approved by the state for service elsewhere.

The 132 new buses are to include 112 suburban types and 20 transit types. Suburban buses are more posh, with more comfortable seats and all passengers facing forward. Seats are elevated on raised flooring on each side of the aisle.

The transit buses, to be used for short feeder service, especially to the district's planned ferry fleet, have some seats facing the aisle and flat floors, thus allowing easier loading and unloading.

General Motors bid $44,408 for each suburban bus, and $42,070 for each transit bus.

All the buses will be air-conditioned and carry only 45 passengers instead of the maximum capacity of 53. This will increase leg room.

They will be 102 inches wide, compared to conventional 96-inch-wide buses.

Shepard Picked For Admiral Rank

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Navy announced today the selection of Astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr. for promotion to admiral.

Shepard is the first of the astronauts to win star rank from among a large group who were or are Air Force or Navy officers.

He was the first American to be shot into space and was commander of the most recent lunar-landing mission.

Protesters Disrupt ROTC Exercise

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI)— Antiwar protesters turned a Naval ROTC exercise into a two-hour coffee klatch Tuesday of Stanford University.

About 25 peace activists marched toward the drill field armed with cakes and pitchers of steaming coffee as 60 cadets drilled. The exercise was halted and the two groups spent two hours talking politics.

The 132 new buses are to include 112 suburban types and 20 transit types. Suburban buses are more posh, with more comfortable seats and all passengers facing forward. Seats are elevated on raised flooring on each side of the aisle.

The transit buses, to be used for short feeder service, especially to the district's planned ferry fleet, have some seats facing the aisle and flat floors, thus allowing easier loading and unloading.

General Motors bid $44,408 for each suburban bus, and $42,070 for each transit bus.

All the buses will be air-conditioned and carry only 45 passengers instead of the maximum capacity of 53. This will increase leg room.

They will be 102 inches wide, compared to conventional 96-inch-wide buses.

Behr Urges Population Curb Study In Bay Area

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Study of controls on population growth in the Bay Area and Southern California was urged today in a resolution by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael.

The measure requested the state Department of Public Health to make the study and recommend controls to the 1973 Legislature.

The study was asked by the State Environmental Quality Study Council. Behr represents the Senate on the council.

His resolution declared that the continuing concentration of population in the two urbanized regions had depleted and deteriorated "vital resources beyond the capacity of natural processes to restore them." It asserted that no means were available "to restore levels of quality which will assure freedom from injury to health."

Behr's resolution asked that the study relate air, water and land pollution and land use patterns to health effects and each region's "natural carrying capacities."

Rogers Shifts Attention To Vietnam Peace

LONDON (UPI)—Secretary of State William P. Rogers shifted his attention from America's China policy to negotiations for peace in Vietnam today, meeting with David K.E. Bruce, chief U.S. delegate to the Paris talks.

Aides to the secretary of state, who is on a tour of Europe and the Middle East, said Rogers' meeting with Bruce would be a "useful consultation" and no dramatic new peace moves were planned.

On Thursday, Rogers will make a brief visit to Paris to meet French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann before traveling on to Ankara, Turkey, for the ministerial meeting of the Central Treaty Organization (CENTO) at the end of the week.

Sentenced To Center At Corona

Joseph Rivera, 25, of San Rafael, was sentenced to the California Rehabilitation Center at Corona Monday after receipt of doctors' reports in Marin Superior Court that he is, or is in danger of becoming, a heroin addict.

Judge E. Warren McGuire suspended further proceedings against Rivera, who pleaded guilty last month to burglarizing a home at 178 Marina Vista, Larkspur, Jan. 21.

Rivera is also known as Herman Joseph Sanchez.

Foran Bill To Support Transit Plan

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill appropriating $250,000 to the Bay Area's Metropolitan Transportation Commission has been introduced by Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco.

The commission formed this year under legislation passed last year by Foran, but has had no funds of its own to start operations.

His measure would appropriate the money from the unexpended balance of a $9 million state fund for air pollution research. His staff said the special appropriation was a one-time funding, with future funds hoped for from pending legislation to impose a sales tax on gasoline for transit purposes.

The commission was formed to force regional transportation planning on the nine-county Bay Area.

To Be Promoted

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon today announced his intention to nominate Civil Service Commission Chairman James E. Johnson, a black, to be assistant secretary of the Navy for manpower and reserve affairs.

India is one-sixth the size of the Soviet Union.

Behr Attempting To Save River Bills

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, today was drafting extensive amendments to rescue his legislation to preserve the Eel, Trinity and Klamath rivers.

The three wild rivers long have been targeted for massive dams by state and federal water engineers, but they could be preserved permanently under his measure to include them in the Federal Wild and Scenic Rivers Act of 1968.

The amendments will strike from the original bill its provision to condemn for a half-mile-wide greenbelt along each bank, a move designed to meet objections by land owners — especially by major lumber companies and counties concerned about cuts in their tax bases.

The amendments also would declare that the legislation could not "unreasonably limit lumbering and other resource uses" and would permit taking of domestic water within the counties through which the rivers flow.

San Anselmo Joins 'World Community'

San Anselmo today became the first California community to "mundialize," aligning itself with "world cities" which fly the United Nations flag.

The San Anselmo city council, by a 3-to-2 vote, elected to adopt the concept of world citizenship as proposed by World Federalist Youth-USA and its executive director Norman E. Leach. (Another San Anselmo City Council story, page 1.)

Councilmen Woodrow V. Capurro and Warren R. Perry voted against the proposal.

The proposal came at 12:30 a.m. near the end of a long council meeting filled with debate and generated considerable controversy of its own.

"Mundialization" as explained by Leach is an effort at "world citizenship and responsibility." One of its goals is to establish a world court to resolve international disputes.

For San Anselmo residents, mundialization means they will have a United Nations flag flying with the American flag at city hall and they will be paired with a sister city chosen from another country as part of a twinning program.

Leach reported that, Tokyo, the world's largest city, is mundialized as are cities in Canada, Great Britain, France and Scandinavia.

Councilman Capurro said he was against munidalization because "We're here to do city business."

The San Anselmo City Council Also:

RECREATION APPLICATION — Voted to file a letter with HUD to receive matching funds for parks and recreation projects totaling an estimated $46,400 for the coming fiscal year. Projects include $10,000 worth of improvements to Memorial Park. No indication was given on what percentage basis local funds might be matched.

TERMS SET — Approved one year terms for Human Rights Mini-Board members on the recommendation of Dennis Post, board member. Members missing three consecutive meetings will be removed from the board.

EQUIPMENT REQUEST — Approved the use of city equipment and labor to landscape a strip of land separating the Greyhound Terminal and the bank beside Center Boulevard.

ELM SPRAYING — Awarded a contract for elm leaf beetle spraying to low bidder Sohner Tree Service in amount of $983.

COMMITTEE VOLUNTEER — Asked that a resident volunteer to serve on a streets and traffic committee.

BIKE RACKS — Voted to appropriate $300 for three bicycle racks to be permanently placed in three car parking spots in the downtown area.

Rhubarb Souffle Is New Treat

RHUBARB SOUFFLE

30 vanilla wafers, finely rolled (about 1½ cups crumbs)
1 cup sugar
¼ cup butter or margarine, melted
1 (1-pound) package frozen rhubarb, thawed
4 teaspoons unflavored gelatin
⅓ cup cold water
4 eggs, separated
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
½ cup heavy cream, whipped
1 pint fresh strawberries, crushed

Combine crumbs, three tablespoons sugar and butter or margarine: set aside. Wrap a double thickness of wax paper around 10 demitasse cups or a 1 quart souffle dish, forming a 3-inch collar. Secure with tape. Whirl rhubarb in a blender or puree. Soften gelatine in water. Combine egg yolks, salt, lemon juice and ½ cup sugar in top of double boiler. Cook over simmering water, stirring constantly, for 6 to 8 minutes. Remove from heat. Add softened gelatine; stir until dissolved.

Add rhubarb and lemon rind. Chill, stirring occasionally until mixture mounds. Beat egg whites until foamy. Gradually beat in one-quarter cup sugar. Beat until moist distinct peaks form. Lightly fold rhubarb mixture and cream into egg whites. Set aside two tablespoons crumb mixture. Layer crumbs and mixture in cups or souffle dish, beginning with crumbs and ending with rhubarb. Refrigerate four to five hours or until firm but spongy. Remove paper collar carefully. Sprinkly top with reserved crumbs. Serve with strawberries, sweetened with one tablespoon sugar or to taste. Makes 10 (approximately two-thirds cup) servings.

The salad experts from the west who grow and ship nearly all the three and one half billion heads of western iceberg lettuce consumed in the nation each year offer these tips for making really crisp salads.

Select firm (not hard) heads that give slightly to finger pressure.

At home, strip off any damaged leaves, remove the core and run cool water down into the head.

Invert the head and allow to drain thoroughly, core-side down.

Then, refrigerate in tightly-sealed plastic bag or plastic crisper.

Do not add dressing or salt to salads until just before serving.

Malnutrition Can Bring On Loss Of Energy

Malnutrition among American children of the poor results in apathy, listlessness, loss of energy and ability to concentrate and comprehend, inattention and restlessness, behavioral problems and retarded learning. These were the findings of the recent Senate Hearings on Hunger, chaired by Sen. George McGovern.

There is also evidence of lowered resistance to disease and infection and general mental and physical growth retardation.

There are 38 million "poor" and "near poor" Americans living in families with incomes falling below the minimum established as necessary to provide nutritionally adequate meals, according to Social Security Administration estimates.

Because lack of nutrients retards learning capacity and thus affects adjustment and future employment possibilities, attaining adequate nutrition is a key factor influencing the happiness and well-being of these Americans.

ANTIQUE SHOW FEATURE

'Friendship Rum Pot' Ready For Annual Event Tomorrow

Passing from home to home in Mill Valley is a "Friendship Rum Pot" recipe which will become the basis for a new offering at Grandmothers' Cupboard of the annual Marin County Antique Show and Sale which opens tomorrow at the IDESI Hall in Sausalito.

Episcopal Churchwomen of Mill Valley's Church of Our Saviour, which sponsors the show have been adding fruits and sugar to the "rum pot" which gets more mellow as the weeks go by.

FRIENDSHIP RUM POT

1st week: Drain, add and stir 1 cup sugar, 1 cup diced canned peaches, ¼ cup halved maraschino cherries.

2nd week: Drain, add and stir 1 cup sugar, 1 cup pineapple tidbits, ¼ cup maraschino cherries.

3rd week: Drain, add and stir 1 cup sugar, 1 cup diced canned pears, ¼ cup maraschino cherries.

Keep repeating each week; store at room temperature in a covered conatiner. This forms the basis for the rum pot which will be sold at the Cupboard. To this starter various other fruits can be added.

Serve as a delicious topping for ice cream or pound cake.

BEAN SPROUT-SAUERKRAUT RELISH

Mix:
1 large can sauerkraut, drained
1 large can bean sprouts, drained
2 green onions, diced
1 small jar of pimentos, chopped

Blend ¼ cup oil, ½ cup vinegar, 1 cup sugar. Boil mixture one minute. Pour over other ingredients.

Makes three pint jars. Seal. Chill at least overnight before serving.

A Tasty Meat Dish Ideal For A Twosome

Cooking for two has its difficulties. Most recipes are tested for families of four to six.

Here's a main dish developed specifically for twosomes. It's easy to make, yet fancy enough for a Sunday dinner. Be sure to set aside two tablespoons of the almonds for garnish.

MEATLOAF FOR TWO

½ cup dried apricots, cut up
¼ cup water
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 tablespoon brown sugar
½ cup blue cheese or plain croutons
½ cup milk
¾ pound ground chuck
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon rosemary, crumbled
¼ teaspoon seasoned pepper
¼ cup chopped almonds, toasted

Combine apricots and water in small saucepan; simmer four or five minutes until liquid is absorbed. Stir in butter and sugar; set aside. Combine croutons and milk; let soften one-quarter hour. Mix with chuck and seasonings.

Flatten meat mixture on waxed paper into 8x6-inch oval, spoon apricots and two tablespoons almonds in crosswise strip across center. Fold two ends of meat over filling to make a loaf shape. Seal openings and place loaf in shallow pan or pie plate.

Bake at 350 degrees 30 minutes or until done as desired. Garnish with the two tablespoons almonds remaining. Serve with Parmesan sprinkled tomato halves heated in same oven and mashed potatoes.

Makes two generous servings.

Egg Casserole Is Easy On Budget, Tasty, Too

Looking for something different and economical? This one-egg casserole can easily fit the budget.

EGG CASSEROLE

¾ cup diced celery
¾ cup diced green pepper
½ pound mushrooms sliced
½ cup butter or margarine
5 tbs. flour
1 tbs. Worcestershire sauce
6 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
2 cups shredded Cheddar Cheese
2 cups French Croutons
dash tabasco sauce
3 cups milk
1 tsp. salt

Lightly brown celery, green pepper and mushrooms in butter. Remove from pan with slotted spoon. Blend flour into butter remaining in pan, being careful not to let it brown. Gradually blend in milk, Worcestershire sauce, tabasco and salt. Cook, stirring until smooth and thickened.

Add eggs and one cup of the cheese to pepper, celery, mushroom mixture in casserole. Gently fold in sauce. Sprinkle croutons over casserole evenly; top with the remaining cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

Three Types Of Onions; Best Uses

Do you like your onions raw or cooked, or both ways? Knowing which type of onion to use for cooking or eating raw can be a problem. According to the United States Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service, there are three types of onions.

Globe onions — are the most common and are considered primarily for cooking. Most varieties of globe onions have yellow skins, but some are white and a few have red or brown skins. They are round to oval shaped and have a rather pungent flavor. Most fall into the medium size range, but some smaller onions are packed and sold separately.

Granex-Grano onions — have a mild flavor and are considered ideal for slicing and eating raw. They are mostly yellow skinned, but may also be white. The shape tends to be less round and less symmetrical than the globes, ranging from somewhat flattened to top-shaped. The size range is medium to large.

Spanish onions — resemble globe onions in shape, but they are generally much larger. Most varieties are yellow, but some are white-skinned. They are mild in flavor, often called "sweet Spanish." They are ideal for slicing or for salads. Sometimes medium sizes are packed separately from large ones.

Whatever variety you choose, look for hard or firm onions which are dry and have small necks. They should be covered with papery outer scales and reasonably free from green sunburn spots and other blemishes. Avoid onions with wet or very soft necks, which usually are immature or affected by decay. Also avoid onions with thick, hollow, woody centers in the neck or with fresh sprouts.

At home store onions at room temperature or slightly cooler (60 degrees is best). Put in loosely woven or open meshed containers with good circulation of air. Onions sprout or decay if temperature or humidity is high, but will keep several months in a cool, dry place.

Pregnancy Demands Increase Of Proteins

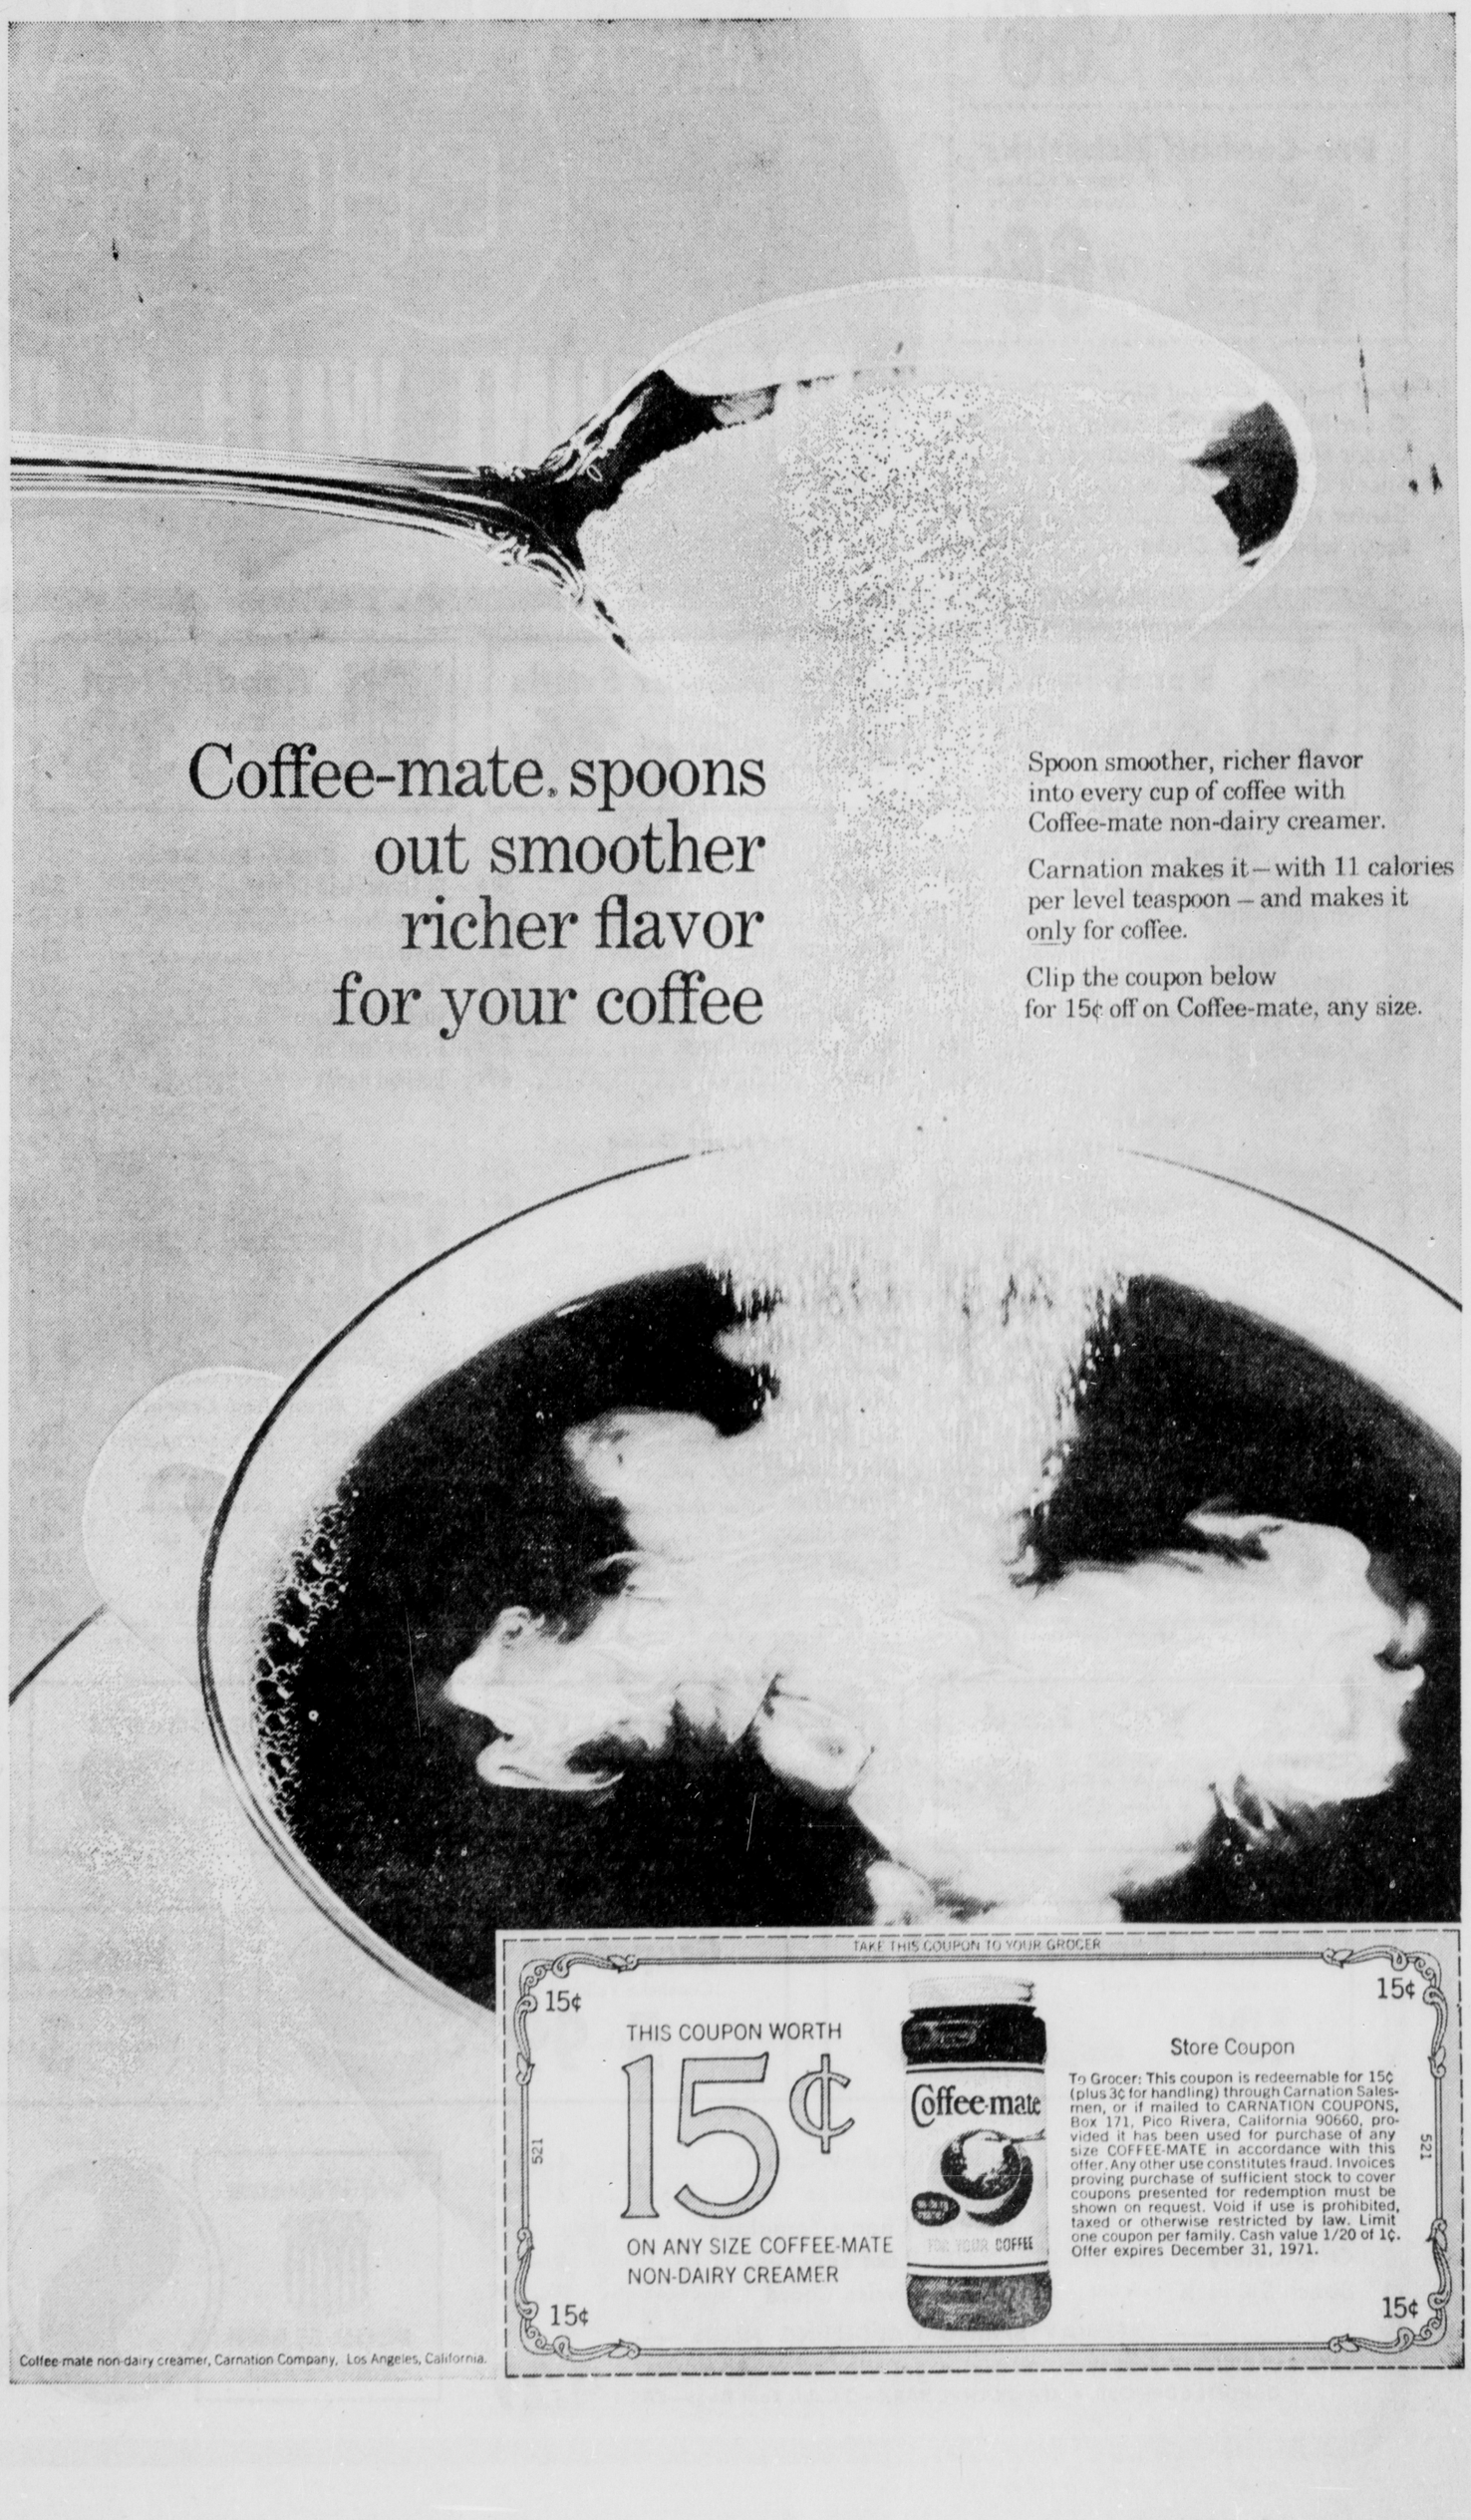
Protein needs increase during pregnancy and lactation. A pregnant woman requires as much protein as an average adult man and a nursing mother 14 per cent more.

To satisfy these special needs, the daily diet should include generous servings of meat. Liver should be included at least once a week because of the large amount of iron and vitamins A and niacin it contributes.

The Importance Of Daily Breakfasts

Breakfast menus which include meat, fruit, bread and milk provide protein, minerals and vitamins which contribute to growth and muscle repair. They also help prevent fatigue, increase resistance to infection and lessen the desire for mid-morning snacking.

Meats popular on the breakfast menu are: bacon, Candadian-style bacon, ham slices, chipped beef, cubed steaks, pork chops, pork shoulder roll slices, beef patties, corned beef hash, pork sausage links and patties and lamb patties.



AN UNUSUAL item available at Grandmother's Cupboard at the Mill Valley Church of Our Saviour's annual antiques show and sale, starting tomorrow, will be starter jars of Friendship Rum Pot. From left, filling jars are Mmes. Lewis Griselle, William Cullen, Grandmother's Cupboard chairman, and Gerald Frank. Mrs. Frank is chairman for the "Fabulous Recipes" cook books which will also be available at the cupboard. (Independent-Journal photo)

Rhubarb Souffle Is New Treat

RHUBARB SOUFFLE

30 vanilla wafers, finely rolled (about 1½ cups crumbs)
1 cup sugar
¼ cup butter or margarine, melted
1 (1-pound) package frozen rhubarb, thawed
4 teaspoons unflavored gelatin
⅓ cup cold water
4 eggs, separated
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
½ cup heavy cream, whipped
1 pint fresh strawberries, crushed

Combine crumbs, three tablespoons sugar and butter or margarine: set aside. Wrap a double thickness of wax paper around 10 demitasse cups or a 1 quart souffle dish, forming a 3-inch collar. Secure with tape. Whirl rhubarb in a blender or puree. Soften gelatine in water. Combine egg yolks, salt, lemon juice and ½ cup sugar in top of double boiler. Cook over simmering water, stirring constantly, for 6 to 8 minutes. Remove from heat. Add softened gelatine; stir until dissolved.

Add rhubarb and lemon rind. Chill, stirring occasionally until mixture mounds. Beat egg whites until foamy. Gradually beat in one-quarter cup sugar. Beat until moist distinct peaks form. Lightly fold rhubarb mixture and cream into egg whites. Set aside two tablespoons crumb mixture. Layer crumbs and mixture in cups or souffle dish, beginning with crumbs and ending with rhubarb. Refrigerate four to five hours or until firm but spongy. Remove paper collar carefully. Sprinkly top with reserved crumbs. Serve with strawberries, sweetened with one tablespoon sugar or to taste. Makes 10 (approximately two-thirds cup) servings.

SWEDISH EXCHANGE student Kaisa Noren, who is spending the year at San Rafael High School, feels young Americans are very much like young Swedes — when you get to know them. "Americans tend to play roles," she said, "to keep up a face." She will tour the United States with other American Field Service students after the school term and return to Sweden in July.

Swedish Girl Amused By Dating

By BETH GAEDDERT

The American custom of dating was one of the things Kaisa Noren has had to adjust to during her year at San Rafael High School on the American Field Service scholarship program.

In Sweden, where 17-year-old Kaisa has already completed one year of college she said, "You have many, many boy friends. They are friends whether they are boys or girls. I can call boys up and ask them if they want to see a show — just like girls."

She also pays her own way most of the time in Sweden, and if not, she is just as likely to foot the bill as the boy. The practice of boys holding doors open for girls is amusing to Kaisa who thinks the boys get in the way more than help.

"THAT'S ANOTHER thing," she laughed. "They go in front of you and sort of get in your way — it's kind of awkward."

"You feel more equal in Sweden. You pay for yourself — you do your own thing more. We don't have any kind of dating system at all." said blonde freckle-faced Kaisa.

Teen-agers in Sweden enjoy more independence than their American counterparts, she said, noting that some American families allow children more freedom than others. Kaisa has already spent one summer in England on her own. "Like most Swedish youngsters do," and another month alone in France, "to practice my French."

It's really quite common for Swedish youngsters to take off alone for the summer to travel in Europe — often hitchhiking — she said, adding it's much safer there. They may be using the money the Swedish government pays them for attending high school. She says students get the equivalent of a few hundred dollars upon graduation.

AFTER HIGH school about 98 per cent go on to continuation school, trade school or to a university. After a year or two a student who does well in continuation school may then enter a university. Students not only get free books and tuition, they are paid to attend.

Despite the fact that almost everybody gets an education in Sweden, Kaisa said there is no unemployment problem such as in the United States.

Kaisa took science courses in Sweden and thinks she may study medicine like her older sister. "About 30 to 35 per cent of doctors are women in Sweden and I think there will be more. There are about 40 per cent studying sciences now," she said.

"You don't notice any prejudice in Sweden. It's not at all uncommon that the woman brings in the most money into the household," she said. Kaisa believes "it's up to them (every woman) what they do. Everyone has to decide for himself. I'm totally for that."

"HERE IT seems you get out of high school and get married" compared to Sweden where "you marry around 25 maybe. It's not a big deal if you do or don't. Even girls in high school are married here — I was so surprised. I wanted to see the United States and travel," said Kaisa adding that she "didn't want to get locked in."

She said she was also surprised to find that high school girls weren't for women's liberation. From what she'd heard of the movement she expected all the people her age to be more independent.

Other than that her preconceived notions of the United States were fairly accurate except for the smog. "I didn't think it should be so smoggy. When I came off the plane in New York I couldn't see the sky and it wasn't a cloudy day."

Kaisa likes hiking in Lucas Valley, where she lives with Mr. and Mrs. Homer E. Marston Jr., but misses the wild forests of Sweden where one can hike and "really get away from everything. You can still hear the noise, she said about hiking in the hills of Marin.

THE NATIONAL sport of Sweden makes use of the forests. "It's like cross country running with no trail," Kaisa says. Each person is armed with a compass and a map and the winner finds his way to a certain location first. "It's really fun, some people always get lost and you have to go looking for them." Soccer and ice hockey — she likes to play both — are also big sports in her country. Youngsters participate in competition between clubs and cities rather than by schools, she said.

The business of school spirit was a new experience, "You say more bad things about your school, than good in Sweden," she said.

Kaisa's mother is a ballet teacher in Linkoping, where the family lives. Her father works for an aircraft company. Although she takes dance classes from her mother, she has no desire to dance as a performer as her mother did before marriage.

Child care centers on "almost every corner" make it possible for more women to work outside the home. Kaisa's sister and her husband are each on a half-day schedule so they can share child-rearing duties, as do an increasing number of Swedish couples, Kaisa said.

SWEDISH CHILD centers are like American nursery schools except that besides the privately owned ones some are for children of residents of a certain apartment complex, some are paid for by city, state or federal taxes and others are put up by a neighborhood.

During the fall semester Kaisa lived with the Raymond Jeffs in San Rafael. She finds her high school classes easy and with a background of seven years of English, she speaks with only the slightest accent.

Kaisa enjoyed a camping trip with other San Rafael High School students to Death Valley over Easter vacation, not only for the camping-out but because she got to know some of the students well.

"When you get to know them there is really not that much difference" between Swedes and Americans, she feels. Although on the surface Americans "tend to play a role, try to keep up a face," she thinks it is a way of "hiding yourself, kind of protecting yourself."

Homemakers Wondering Again 'Why Don't They?'

Marin Women

NEW YORK (UPI) —It's time the voice of the housewife was heard in the land —again. For the "why don't they?" folder is full again, as women continue to voice their suggestions on how manufacturers can improve products and packaging and so increase their sales.

One of the most frequent "why don't they?" complaints involves pantyhose. not sized, as one housewife puts it, "for us big gals." Or, as another, suggested, why not "manufacture pantyhose in sizes designed to fit women with short legs and large hips?" Other complaints involve durability. But let it be said that most manufacturers, are trying sizing so a woman can elect hose that'll fit to her height and weight, and also are working to improve durability of what has become a staple of the lingerie market.

The man of the house complained the other day his shoes wouldn't stay tied. It turned out the laces are nylon, and as a homemaker had written, the nylon is durable but tends to untie more readily than cotton.

One of my own complaints in the clothing department sounds like women's lib is getting to me. Why do manufacturers put hanging loops in the back of men's coats, but not in women's?

Many of the why don't they suggestions come this way through national Family Opinion, Inc., a Toledo, Ohio-based consumer market research firm. Here are samplings of queries sent in by some of its part-time homemaker-consultants:

Why don't they?

—Make a more durable vacuum bottle for children's use. As one mother complained, "the glass liner doesn't last long in a first grader's lunch pail."

—Make all cups and glass with flat bottoms, or at least flatten so-called "everyday" ware. The bases of many have depressions in them that fill with water when they are washed in the dishwasher.

—Save the consumer some money by making pajama tops, only for the men who won't sleep in the bottoms, and vice versa. Fortunately for the former group, anyway, you now can buy nightshirts.

—Make horizontal buttonholes on dresses and blouses for firmer closing.

—Sell spices in smaller containers. There are so many you seldom use and they get stale on the shelf.

—Manufacture bed sheets with top and bottom widths the same. Being able to reverse the sheets should make for longer wear.

—Use less salt in canned vegetables and vegetable juices. It is a simple matter to add salt if wanted at home. But there are low sodium dieters and many regular eaters who don't like the over-salted taste.

—Package bacon so you can see all of it, not just the lean parts.

—Offer canister sets consisting of only two large canisters. Many people use instant coffee and tea and don't need the two small containers.

—Include tea bags or packets of instant tea along with the instant coffee provided for guests in many hotel or motel rooms.

—Make certain that detailed instructions for care and cleaning come with wallpapers, in particular the new vinyl types.

—Offer rubber gloves with an extra right or left hand; the glove more used usually wears out faster.

—Pack a few extra envelopes in greeting card boxes for the inevitable dressing errors.

This Time Mrs. McGovern Is Ready To Take Campaign Dip

By MARGUERITE DAVIS

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Eleanor McGovern said she had mixed feelings when her husband announced he would seek the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972.

Sen. George S. McGovern made his first unsuccessful try in 1968. Then, the South Dakota Democrat announced his candidacy Aug. 10, only 16 days before his party's national convention was to make the selection.

"It hardly dawned on me last time" that her husband actually was seeking the nomination, she said, and this time she "had mixed feelings at first."

By now she has lost all reservations and plans to join the campaign, traveling alone as well as accompanying McGovern.

Mrs. McGovern is a little nervous about the campaign speeches she will make.

"I approach that with some trepidation," she said. "But I worry about things unnecessarily. I expect my self-confidence will return."

She relies in part on the experience she had with her college debating team. Forensic competition already has played an important part in her life—she and McGovern met at a college debate.

The senator was one of the first doves in Congress to speak against the war in Vietnam, and Mrs. McGovern feels as strongly as he.

"Most Americans believe it's a wrong war, no matter how lofty the motives that got us into it," she said.

She did not agree with predictions that the United States would lose face if American soldiers were withdrawn.

"This nation would stand taller if it admitted a mistake," she said.

She believes America is feeling a sense of guilt about the war.

"The returning men are not greeted as heroes," she said. "They wonder why they made the sacrifice."

If Mrs. McGovern should become First Lady, she would continue the absorbing work in which she now is interested—volunteer day care center for babies and small children. There are 39 in the country including one in Washington, she said, and "I am sold on the program."

The center here, which now sends volunteers to the children's homes, will open its headquarters this summer.

But before then, Mrs. McGovern has a problem of her own to solve, a companion to stay with her two children still at home when she is off campaigning.

Massacres, War Films Rated GP But Dirty Words Are Rated X

DEAR HELEN:

Your reader who is under the impression that theater owners or managers do not enforce age limitations in R and X-rated films should, for one night, stand by the box office and listen to the insulting rants of parents who become indignant and abusive because their little Suzie or Bobby was refused admission.

As a manager, I couldn't count the number of times I've had insults thrown at me by a parent who claimed his adolescent knew more about what's going on than I could ever put on the screen. These people are usually on their way to an evening out. They drop the kids off, figuring parental okay is all that is necessary.

One final word: When the day comes that theaters do not get lucrative box-returns from the thousands of patrons who break the door when (and they do) to see "adults only" pictures (then usually protest to City Hall after they've seen them three times), only then will adult films wend their way back to selected urban art houses. — THEATER MANAGER

DEAR HELEN:

These ratings: People can be starved, tortured, massacred in a war movie, and it's general admission. But if they toss in a few so-called dirty words and some nude scenes, it's Restricted.

I guess the code means, "Make War, not Love." — PUZZLED

DEAR HELEN:

Your answer to the young man in Vietnam whose letters were not being received by his wife in the U.S. should have included the suggestion that she contact her local chapter of the American National Red Cross.

Assistance available to U.S. servicemen and their families by the Red Cross includes help with emergency communications, advice and counsel with personal problems, financial assistance to a wife when an allotment check is delayed, or to her husband if he needs cash to get home for a family crisis.

In our one small California county, 1,743 service families received assistance with communications, counseling or emergency financial aid last year.

We're here to help. Please use us. — RED CROSS DIRECTOR

DEAR HELEN:

I, too, have a teenage boy with long hair. He is constantly the butt of rotten remarks, especially from his uncle whose two short-haired sons are the neighborhood troublemakers (perhaps because they resent their tyrannical father so much).

My son, like Mrs. J.B.'s, has worked since he was 12, paid his own way from the time he was 15, bought his own car and keeps up the insurance. He never answers back when these uptight adults downgrade him as a "long-haired hippie." What he thinks is a different matter.

Like Mrs. B., I feel that the great majority of teens are good kids, and I've learned a lot about sharing and giving of oneself and caring, just from watching how they operate. When someone is in trouble, they're often right there to help, which is more than I can say about most adults.

The older generation wants respect, but how many of them give it? Why can't they see past hair style or dress to the real person. My son's hair is neat and clean and doesn't interfere with his job.

After all, George Washington wore a ponytail! — PROUD TO BE THE MOTHER OF A LONG-HAIR

DEAR MOTHER:

As I've said before, "It's not how long you make it, but why you make it long." Too bad more people can't see that for boys like your son, hair is a style, not a drop-out symbol. — H.

'Old Look' In Child Rearing

The pendulum is swinging from permissiveness in child rearing toward the earlier restrictive attitudes, Jerome D. Goldman, M.D., states in an article written for Family Physician magazine.

According to Dr. Goodman, certain segments of our society are beginning to recognize that freedom involves responsibility and that young people need disciplinary guidelines in order to become productive citizens.

The dramatic rise in demand for child psychiatric services, Fr. Goodman reports, is being met by several short-term methods of therapy. The physician stresses the need for accurate diagnosis, and counseling for parents as foundations for all treatment methods including child-focused psychotherapy and intelligent use, when indicated, of psychoactive drugs.

USDA Faces New Labeling Of 'All Meat' Frankfurters

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — If a district court judge here is not overruled, the U.S. Department of Agriculture will have to ban frankfurter labels that say "all meat" or "all beef" when they are not entirely made up of meat or beef.

Judge Barrington D. Parker rules that such labeling is misleading and therefore violates the Wholesome Meat Act.

The suit against the USDA was brought by attorney Edward Berlin in behalf of the Federation of Homemakers, a consumer group headquartered in Arlington, Va. It is headed by Ruth Desmond, who previously gained fame for pushing a standard of 90 per cent peanuts in peanut butter.

THE FEDERATION pointed out that frankfurters bearing such labels as "all meat," "all beef," "all pork" and the like usually contain about 15 per cent non-meat substances.

In its original complaint filed last July, the Federation said these non-meat substances include 10 per cent added water (beyond the amount naturally found in meat), 2 per cent corn syrup solids and approximately 2 per cent miscellaneous ingredients such as salt, spices and curing additives.

According to the complaint, many consumers assume that "all meat" franks are more nourishing when in fact they are less nourishing than those containing 3 per cent dried milk, a substance not allowed now in "all meat" frankfurters.

The federation contended that such labeling practices restricts the production and marketing of more nutritious frankfurter products.

DURING THE legal proceedings, the USDA made no attempt to dispute the facts about what ingredients are allowed in the products at issue. So the court had only to rule on the validity of the complaint.

However, the USDA did dispute the right of the Federation to sue on a matter considered by the USDA to be solely at its own discretion. Judge Parker decided that the Federation had such a right because it had members who might be "injured" by the prevailing labeling practice.

He cited a section of the law saying:

"Misbranded... meat food products... are injurious to the public welfare (and) destroy markets for wholesome... properly labeled... meat food products."

IN SUBMITTING its case, the federation included copies of labels from "all meat" and "all beef" products listing ingredients as beef, water, dextrose, corn syrup, salt, flavorings, hydrolized plant protein, monosodium glutamate, hickory smoke flavoring, sodium erythorbate, sodium nitrite and sodium nitrate.

Ingredients are usually printed in small type next to the Federal inspection seal saying the product has been "inspected and passed" by USDA.

The hot dog decision is the latest bone of contention in attempts to get more truthful labeling of food products. It took the Supreme Court to rule that chicken soup should contain at least 2 per cent chicken.

And it took the Supreme Court to decide another sticky issue, that peanut butter should contain at least 90 per cent peanuts.

Will hot dogs be next on the menu of the Berger court? They may be if the government decides to appeal the latest ruling.

Women's Law Day Announced

Women and men who are interested in finding out more about the woman's role in the legal profession are invited to attend a "Women in Law Day" meeting at the University of California at Davis School of Law on May 4.

The Women's Caucus of the UCD Law School is sponsoring the meeting, beginning at noon on the law school patio.

Scheduled to speak are Fay Stinder, an Oakland attorney, who will discuss prison reform; Ann Wesley, a welfare rights organizer from Sacramento, and Clarissa Bronson of the Woodland Legal Aid office.

Well, here's Sandy Hanna.

Miss Hanna is a meter reader for the Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. She is the only female on such a job in the thousands of miles the utility serves in upstate New York.

She prefers the countryside to the city, and that's where the snowshoes come in. Her territory for meter reading is a large rural area in Warren County around Lake George, where the snow is frequent and deep.

But, Miss Hanna loves the outdoors. And that's half the job, she says.

She sets forth by car from her home near here to check meters on the outside of barns, in farmhouses, at rural stores and scores of vacation homes dotted through the scenic southern Adirondacks area. And, from the main roads, it means snowshoes to carry her over the mountainous drifts on her appointed rounds.

Bundled up in a warmly lined jumpsuit and wearing a company "hard hat," Miss Hanna travels over the deep snow to reach the meters and jot down the figures in her meter reader's book.

"I like to be on the go, and I'd certainly recommend this job to any girl, provided she can cut it," says the pert, slim blonde.

She's In Snowshoes To Read Meters

By BETY BAUER

GLENS FALLS, N.Y. (UPI)— Did you ever meet a woman meter reader? One who reads meters on snowshoes?

Well, here's Sandy Hanna.

Rift Seen On Bruce's Successor

Seemingly split down the middle on how to hire a successor to County Administrator Alan Bruce, the Marin County Board of Supervisors wrangled for more than an hour yesterday before putting off the issue to next Tuesday.

The debate left the board polarized, with Supervisors Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and Arnold M. Baptiste urging promotion of some present county employee. John F. McInnis and Chairman Louis H. Baar urged a wider search for candidates and a screening committee to recommend the top prospects.

Supervisor Michael Wornum argued that promoting a county employee would be "good for morale" but claimed he did not know if any of Bruce's aides or other county employees wanted the administrator's post. "I'd have to talk to anyone who has been in a subordinate role," he explained.

Arrigoni said he was prepared to vote immediately to promote an unnamed county employee, but would agree to wait a week. If the rest of the board took no action at that time, "I will move for an executive session," he warned.

Acting in Baar's absence last week, Arrigoni had arranged for yesterday's agenda to provide a closed session on the hiring issue in case the board wanted to discuss a promotion rather than outside hiring.

McInnis said he wanted to see widespread recruiting but stressed that he felt county employees should be accorded an equal opportunity for the post.

"I believe the . . . position is of such importance it deserves solicitation to get the most qualified person," McInnis said. He urged that the board appoint three other Bay Area administrators — specifically including Thomas J. Mellon of San Francisco — to screen candidates and provide the board a list of the best qualified.

If the board first closeted itself with in-house hopefuls and then went outside, it might "cloud the career" of the in-house men by implying doubt of their capabilities, McInnis argued.

"We owe it to the people of the county to see who's best," interjected Baar.

Arrigoni and Baptiste contended that most recent county department head vacancies have been filled by promotion — citing the public defender and the planning director. "I'd like to continue my expression of confidence in county employees," Arrigoni said.

Two women employees, however, spoke up from the audience to urge widespread recruiting and formal screening.

"I would have the public know I'm opposed to an executive session at this time," McInnis said. "I think we have to explore this," Baar agreed.

Margaret B. Azevedo, spokesman for the Marin Council for Civic Affairs, earlier urged the board to decide publicly what steps it would take to replace Bruce, only going into closed session to discuss specific persons.

Bruce warned that the county counsel had ruled that the method of selection should be decided in open meeting.

Waring On Two Types Of Pottery

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The Food and Drug Administration yesterday issued a warning in 11 western states against using two patterns of pottery sold by Holt Howard Associates of San Rafael because of potentially dangerous lead content.

The cups and saucers, imported from Italy, were sold by the company between February 1968 and October 1969.

A spokesman for the firm said today that the company had "worked for eight months" to recall the dangerous pottery.

"Prolonged use of this pottery could cause severe illness or death," the FDA warning said. It said lead levels in the pottery ranged from 580 to 1,200 parts per million in cups and up to 3,900 parts per million in saucers.

The FDA limits leached lead in pottery to seven parts per million.

The same firm had earlier imported some mugs which also were declared by county officials to contain dangerous amounts of lead.

New Holt Howard pottery, often marked "H H Italy," has been tested and found suitable for distribution, the FDA said.

The dangerous patterns were described as No. 7604 cups which have a cream colored background with small bright blue dots and a green rim, a green band and an aqua colored leaf pattern, and No. 2838 jumbo cup and saucer set which has a cream background and green rim and leaf pattern and clusters of green grapes.

Marin Hospital Gets Cancer Society Aid

The Marin Hospital District board last night accepted a $28,724 grant from the American Cancer Society to provide post-hospital care for cancer and other chronically ill patients.

Acquired through the society's California division, the funds will support the project for one year and will be used to hire a nurse and social worker.

According to Ray K. Bolinger, hospital administrator, the nurse and social worker will help patients adjust to their illness while at Marin General Hospital and to help plan extended care.

It will provide planning for care, facilitate patients' move from the hospital, decrease the amount of time patients spend in the hospital and assist physicians in providing for the needs of patients.

"The continuity of care program will fill a substantial need in our community," Bolinger said. "Hospital staffers providing acute hospital care must, of necessity, focus on short-term goals in crisis situations. This often means that post-hospital planning becomes a second priority."

The Marin Hospital District board also:

THRIFT SHOP — Approved a proposal by the hospital volunteers to operate a second-hand clothing store at the old Northwestern Pacific Railroad building in San Rafael to raise funds for the hospital. The project still must receive city approval.

MENTAL HEALTH — Heard a report from Dr. John S. Guerrant head of the Marin Community Mental Health Center, outlining a program aimed at treating the mental patient before hospitalization becomes necessary. Guerrant said the proposed program seeks to work not only with patients but also with those influencing his life. The board took no action.

FIRE PROTECTION — Selected a two-man committee to meet Monday with representatives of the Kentfield Fire District board to discuss the hospital's $1 per year contract for fire protection. The fire district would like the amount increased. No time or place has been set for the meeting.

CIRCULATION CAMPAIGN — Authorized the Mill Valley Record to use the hospital's name in a circulation promotion. The hospital will receive a $500 donation from the newspaper for purchase of equipment for the pediatrics ward.

Crash Kills 34

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)— The Joranl do Brasil news service said an air force DC6 exploded today at Manaus airport in the Amazon basin, killing 34 of 80 passengers aboard.

Confusion Over Burglary Reporting

San Anselmo City Council last night indicated a belief that reporting of burglary victims in the Independent-Journal singles out the easy mark for burglars, but was confused about how reporting should be changed.

Police Chief Raymond Buchignani was told to provide reporters with a list of burglaries identifying only the blocks in which the offense occurred without the names of victims. However, councilmen changed their minds when Buchignani told them reporters take information off police reports and that is the only way the department can accommodate the press.

Span Bike Lane Urged By Board

Richardson Bay Bridge, which is undergoing a widening to eight lanes, should also have a special path for bicycles and pedestrians, the Marin County Board of Supervisors decided yesterday.

On a motion by Michael Wornum, the supervisors voted unanimously to ask the State Division of Highways to add a pedestrian-bicycle path to the bridge.

"It's absolutely crazy to put in an eight-lane highway without a bike path," said Wornum.

Pierre W. Joske, director of county parks and recreation, said he would particularly urge a bicycle facility on Richardson Bay Bridge because the only other route from Marin City to Strawberry Shopping Center entails a six-mile detour toward Mill Valley and over heavily travelled city streets.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

APPOINTMENTS — By a 3-2 vote, with the appointees laughingly dissenting, reappointed Supervisors John F. McInnis and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. to the City-County Services Committee as delegate and alternate. Reappointed McInnis to the Association of Bay Area Governments. Named A.L. (Ray) Crebassa to a vacant seat on Flood Control Zone 3 advisory board. Postponed decision between nominees Carolos Gonzales and Warren Jacobs for a four-year term on the county board of appeals, as the engineering representative. Postponed to May 4 naming a replacement for attorney Lloyd Tunik on the county law library board of trustees.

ADVISERS — Voted 5-0 to expand membership of the Flood Control Zone 3 (Richardson Bay) advisory board to seven persons, in order to provide Mill Valley City Council representation on the board. No appointments were made.

MENTAL HEALTH — After a warning by McInnis against treating the issue routinely, reappointed Dr. John Guerrant as program chief of the mental health center.

MC NEARS BEACH — Approved a call for food concession bids for three months at McNears Beach, to include optional beer and wine sales.

PERSONNEL — Raised the $600 annual maximum reimbursement — at $25 per meeting — to $750 for county personnel commissioners.

FIRE STATION — Approved plans and specifications for a new Marin City police and fire substation; awarded a $2,550 contract to Maggiora and Ghilotti, Inc. of Corte Madera, for fill at the site.

GIFTS — Voted thanks for a $303.44 check from the Marge Leech Memorial Fund for courtyard benches for the new Novato branch library, and for a $200 copy of a venereal disease prevention film made in Marin County, courtesy of the Civic Center Lions Club.

RETIREMENT — Put on the agenda for May 4, discussion of a replacement for County Fire Chief Louis J. Bloom, who faces mandatory retirement June 1.

SACRAMENTO — Agreed to cut short their May 11 agenda to travel to Sacramento for an afternoon meeting with State Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-Mill Valley, and Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Anselmo, on Marin legislative problems.

INDIAN ARTIFACTS — Ordered revision of the county ordinance on excavating Indian middens to clarify sections concerning excavations at the College of Marin.

RESERVE — Received a report from Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell that the contingency fund was down to $8,825 from the $1,447,348 allocated for the fiscal year.

AUDITORIUM — Accepted as complete the $4,868.10 installation of cabinetwork for the Veterans Memorial Auditorium.

BICYCLE FESTIVAL — Authorized public works department to erect barricades on old San Geronimo Road intersections to control traffic for 25-mile bicycle race Saturday, and requested the sheriff to provide two deputies for traffic patrol.

CAPITAL PROJECTS — After hearing objections from County Parks and Recreation Director Pierre W. Joske and Planning Director Werner Von Gundell, as well as criticism by individual supervisors, accepted the proposed five-year spending program for roads and parks, subject to further hearings at budget session in June.

GNOSS FIELD — Authorized an outlay of $18,958 to pay for a $39,675 repaving job on the runway at Gnoss Field. The federal share will be $20,717. Last year, $13,500 had been budgeted at the request of Public Director Donald R. Frost. More stringent requirements by the Federal Aviation Administration raised the cost, said Frost.

SPECIAL RAISE — Approved a special salary raise for county planner Marjorie Macris, from the present $937 per month to $984. Louis H. Baar voted against the raise, but the other four supervisors were convinced by County Planning Director Werner Von Gundell, who argued that he has held back raises for the underserving but is now asking for a special raise because of outstanding work.

SLIDE REPAIR — Awarded a $20,923.55 contract to Bresnan and Dalecio of San Rafael to repair storm damage on Fawn Drive and DeBurgh Drive in Sleepy Hollow. Ten bids ranged to a high of $35,345.

TOMALES BAY — Approved a rezoning of the 23-acre Tomales Bay Ranch near Blake's Landing, north of Marshall, where architects Robert Hersey and Bruce Wendell Beebe want to develop eight homes on four lots.

BAHAI — Received books of Bahai teachings from Mr. and Mrs. Edward Boyle of Forest Knolls and Pauline Whitney of Novato, representing the Central Marin District of the Bahais.

AGRICULTURAL PRESERVE — Heard from Anthony Silveira and his attorney Albert Bianchi that the Silveeira family want to get their two ranches out of the agricultural preserve contract because the law has been tightened since they signed the contract four years ago and a new contract is being offered.

Tart Reply From Judge To Bruce

A Marin Superior Court judge sent a blistering letter yesterday to County Administrator Alan Bruce for comments Bruce made about the court's failure to realease Angela Y. Davis on bail.

Judge E. Warren McGuire told the county administrator that the statement "has to be one of the more stupid statements of your career and fully demonstrates your lack of knowledge, understanding and good judgment in such a serious matter as this."

In his letter of resignation presented to the Marin County Board of Supervisors on April 20, the county administrator said: "I must say that I am happy to remove myself from an establishment of which the judicial branch has not found yet a way to release Angela Y. Davis on bail . . ."

Judge McGuire gave a chronological outline of the Davis court appearances and her requests for delays and continuances. Any delay in the hearings on various motions, including the motion for bail, is due to Miss Davis and her co-defendant Ruchell Magee, and not to any action or inaction of the courts, declared Judge McGuire.

"I recognize that criticism and attacks on the courts are in vogue these days, but one would expect a person in a position of responsibility such as you hold to speak accurately in matters of importance and when you know your comments will be the subject of widespread dissemination by the news media, particularly when the distribution of your letter was so extensive."

Board Balks At Master Teacher Pact

The Petaluma Board of Education balked last night at teachers' request to negotiate a so-called master contract that defines school policy as well as calling for increased pay.

Supt. Lesly H. Meyer said the board objected to the request by the Association of Petaluma Area Teachers because many of the rules called for in the proposed master contract already are part of adopted school board policy.

Meyer won approval from the board to refer the teachers' request to the Sonoma County Counsel for review.

The proposed master pact, among other things, calls for method under which teacher-school board impasses would be resolved and asks that a teacher approve a document before school officials place it in his personnel file, Meyer said.

The teachers' group already has asked the board for an 11 per cent pay increase for fiscal 1971-72.

In other business, the board told the Penngrove Advisory Committee it may have to condemn to obtain acreage for a playground addition at Penngrove School. The committee expressed concern the purchase was not moving fast enough, Meyer said, but the group was told school officials only recently were able to sell bonds to cover the cost of the land.

The committee also complained about teaching duties being assigned Penngrove Principal John Anderson, but Meyer said it was pointed out to the group that other principals in the district were similarly affected because of defeat of the recent tax increase election.

Seale Case Rested

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI)— The state rested its case today against Black Panther chairman Bobby G. Seale and court was recessed until 10 a.m. next Tuesday when the defense will offer motions.

The 5,400 windows at United Nations headquarters require six to eight full-time window-washers.

Percy Gets Principalship In Cotati

Paul Percy, temporary principal of both Thomas Page and Cotati schools the past year, was named principal last night by trustees of the Cotati School District.

Percy, appointed following a closed session of the board, replaces Annagene Cornish, who has been on extended sick leave, according to Miriam Horne, board secretary.

Percy's salary will remain the same, since he received a boost when he became acting principal last year.

In other matters, the board extended teacher contracts except for the two instructors it previously announced would not be reemployed because of tight finances; gave the county schools office space at Waldo Rohnert School for three portable classrooms for the trainable mentally retarded, and heard a report from the Citizens Advisory Committee on planning for the June 1 tax increase election.

Hikes For Prison Guards Proposed

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO—Salary increases up to 20 per cent for prison guards for college credits earned during employment have been proposed in legislation by Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally, D-Los Angeles.

The increases would be paid from federal funds available for this purpose, according to Dymally.

His measure said it was intended to make correctional work financially more competitive with other law enforcement work "and to encourage more dedicated people to choose a career in the field of corrections.

Waring On Two Types Of Pottery

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The Food and Drug Administration yesterday issued a warning in 11 western states against using two patterns of pottery sold by Holt Howard Associates of San Rafael because of potentially dangerous lead content.

The cups and saucers, imported from Italy, were sold by the company between February 1968 and October 1969.

A spokesman for the firm said today that the company had "worked for eight months" to recall the dangerous pottery.

"Prolonged use of this pottery could cause severe illness or death," the FDA warning said. It said lead levels in the pottery ranged from 580 to 1,200 parts per million in cups and up to 3,900 parts per million in saucers.

The FDA limits leached lead in pottery to seven parts per million.

The same firm had earlier imported some mugs which also were declared by county officials to contain dangerous amounts of lead.

New Holt Howard pottery, often marked "H H Italy," has been tested and found suitable for distribution, the FDA said.

The dangerous patterns were described as No. 7604 cups which have a cream colored background with small bright blue dots and a green rim, a green band and an aqua colored leaf pattern, and No. 2838 jumbo cup and saucer set which has a cream background and green rim and leaf pattern and clusters of green grapes.

Marin Hospital Gets Cancer Society Aid

The Marin Hospital District board last night accepted a $28,724 grant from the American Cancer Society to provide post-hospital care for cancer and other chronically ill patients.

Acquired through the society's California division, the funds will support the project for one year and will be used to hire a nurse and social worker.

According to Ray K. Bolinger, hospital administrator, the nurse and social worker will help patients adjust to their illness while at Marin General Hospital and to help plan extended care.

It will provide planning for care, facilitate patients' move from the hospital, decrease the amount of time patients spend in the hospital and assist physicians in providing for the needs of patients.

"The continuity of care program will fill a substantial need in our community," Bolinger said. "Hospital staffers providing acute hospital care must, of necessity, focus on short-term goals in crisis situations. This often means that post-hospital planning becomes a second priority."

The Marin Hospital District board also:

THRIFT SHOP — Approved a proposal by the hospital volunteers to operate a second-hand clothing store at the old Northwestern Pacific Railroad building in San Rafael to raise funds for the hospital. The project still must receive city approval.

MENTAL HEALTH — Heard a report from Dr. John S. Guerrant head of the Marin Community Mental Health Center, outlining a program aimed at treating the mental patient before hospitalization becomes necessary. Guerrant said the proposed program seeks to work not only with patients but also with those influencing his life. The board took no action.

FIRE PROTECTION — Selected a two-man committee to meet Monday with representatives of the Kentfield Fire District board to discuss the hospital's $1 per year contract for fire protection. The fire district would like the amount increased. No time or place has been set for the meeting.

CIRCULATION CAMPAIGN — Authorized the Mill Valley Record to use the hospital's name in a circulation promotion. The hospital will receive a $500 donation from the newspaper for purchase of equipment for the pediatrics ward.

Crash Kills 34

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)— The Joranl do Brasil news service said an air force DC6 exploded today at Manaus airport in the Amazon basin, killing 34 of 80 passengers aboard.

Confusion Over Burglary Reporting

San Anselmo City Council last night indicated a belief that reporting of burglary victims in the Independent-Journal singles out the easy mark for burglars, but was confused about how reporting should be changed.

Police Chief Raymond Buchignani was told to provide reporters with a list of burglaries identifying only the blocks in which the offense occurred without the names of victims. However, councilmen changed their minds when Buchignani told them reporters take information off police reports and that is the only way the department can accommodate the press.

Span Bike Lane Urged By Board

Richardson Bay Bridge, which is undergoing a widening to eight lanes, should also have a special path for bicycles and pedestrians, the Marin County Board of Supervisors decided yesterday.

On a motion by Michael Wornum, the supervisors voted unanimously to ask the State Division of Highways to add a pedestrian-bicycle path to the bridge.

"It's absolutely crazy to put in an eight-lane highway without a bike path," said Wornum.

Pierre W. Joske, director of county parks and recreation, said he would particularly urge a bicycle facility on Richardson Bay Bridge because the only other route from Marin City to Strawberry Shopping Center entails a six-mile detour toward Mill Valley and over heavily travelled city streets.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

APPOINTMENTS — By a 3-2 vote, with the appointees laughingly dissenting, reappointed Supervisors John F. McInnis and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. to the City-County Services Committee as delegate and alternate. Reappointed McInnis to the Association of Bay Area Governments. Named A.L. (Ray) Crebassa to a vacant seat on Flood Control Zone 3 advisory board. Postponed decision between nominees Carolos Gonzales and Warren Jacobs for a four-year term on the county board of appeals, as the engineering representative. Postponed to May 4 naming a replacement for attorney Lloyd Tunik on the county law library board of trustees.

ADVISERS — Voted 5-0 to expand membership of the Flood Control Zone 3 (Richardson Bay) advisory board to seven persons, in order to provide Mill Valley City Council representation on the board. No appointments were made.

MENTAL HEALTH — After a warning by McInnis against treating the issue routinely, reappointed Dr. John Guerrant as program chief of the mental health center.

MC NEARS BEACH — Approved a call for food concession bids for three months at McNears Beach, to include optional beer and wine sales.

PERSONNEL — Raised the $600 annual maximum reimbursement — at $25 per meeting — to $750 for county personnel commissioners.

FIRE STATION — Approved plans and specifications for a new Marin City police and fire substation; awarded a $2,550 contract to Maggiora and Ghilotti, Inc. of Corte Madera, for fill at the site.

GIFTS — Voted thanks for a $303.44 check from the Marge Leech Memorial Fund for courtyard benches for the new Novato branch library, and for a $200 copy of a venereal disease prevention film made in Marin County, courtesy of the Civic Center Lions Club.

RETIREMENT — Put on the agenda for May 4, discussion of a replacement for County Fire Chief Louis J. Bloom, who faces mandatory retirement June 1.

SACRAMENTO — Agreed to cut short their May 11 agenda to travel to Sacramento for an afternoon meeting with State Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-Mill Valley, and Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Anselmo, on Marin legislative problems.

INDIAN ARTIFACTS — Ordered revision of the county ordinance on excavating Indian middens to clarify sections concerning excavations at the College of Marin.

RESERVE — Received a report from Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell that the contingency fund was down to $8,825 from the $1,447,348 allocated for the fiscal year.

AUDITORIUM — Accepted as complete the $4,868.10 installation of cabinetwork for the Veterans Memorial Auditorium.

BICYCLE FESTIVAL — Authorized public works department to erect barricades on old San Geronimo Road intersections to control traffic for 25-mile bicycle race Saturday, and requested the sheriff to provide two deputies for traffic patrol.

CAPITAL PROJECTS — After hearing objections from County Parks and Recreation Director Pierre W. Joske and Planning Director Werner Von Gundell, as well as criticism by individual supervisors, accepted the proposed five-year spending program for roads and parks, subject to further hearings at budget session in June.

GNOSS FIELD — Authorized an outlay of $18,958 to pay for a $39,675 repaving job on the runway at Gnoss Field. The federal share will be $20,717. Last year, $13,500 had been budgeted at the request of Public Director Donald R. Frost. More stringent requirements by the Federal Aviation Administration raised the cost, said Frost.

SPECIAL RAISE — Approved a special salary raise for county planner Marjorie Macris, from the present $937 per month to $984. Louis H. Baar voted against the raise, but the other four supervisors were convinced by County Planning Director Werner Von Gundell, who argued that he has held back raises for the underserving but is now asking for a special raise because of outstanding work.

SLIDE REPAIR — Awarded a $20,923.55 contract to Bresnan and Dalecio of San Rafael to repair storm damage on Fawn Drive and De Burgh Drive in Sleepy Hollow. Ten bids ranged to a high of $35,345.

TOMALES BAY — Approved a rezoning of the 23-acre Tomales Bay Ranch near Blake's Landing, north of Marshall, where architects Robert Hersey and Bruce Wendell Beebe want to develop eight homes on four lots.

BAHAI — Received books of Bahai teachings from Mr. and Mrs. Edward Boyle of Forest Knolls and Pauline Whitney of Novato, representing the Central Marin District of the Bahais.

AGRICULTURAL PRESERVE — Heard from Anthony Silveira and his attorney Albert Bianchi that the Silveeira family want to get their two ranches out of the agricultural preserve contract because the law has been tightened since they signed the contract four years ago and a new contract is being offered.

Tart Reply From Judge To Bruce

A Marin Superior Court judge sent a blistering letter yesterday to County Administrator Alan Bruce for comments Bruce made about the court's failure to realease Angela Y. Davis on bail.

Judge E. Warren McGuire told the county administrator that the statement "has to be one of the more stupid statements of your career and fully demonstrates your lack of knowledge, understanding and good judgment in such a serious matter as this."

In his letter of resignation presented to the Marin County Board of Supervisors on April 20, the county administrator said: "I must say that I am happy to remove myself from an establishment of which the judicial branch has not found yet a way to release Angela Y. Davis on bail . . ."

Judge McGuire gave a chronological outline of the Davis court appearances and her requests for delays and continuances. Any delay in the hearings on various motions, including the motion for bail, is due to Miss Davis and her co-defendant Ruchell Magee, and not to any action or inaction of the courts, declared Judge McGuire.

"I recognize that criticism and attacks on the courts are in vogue these days, but one would expect a person in a position of responsibility such as you hold to speak accurately in matters of importance and when you know your comments will be the subject of widespread dissemination by the news media, particularly when the distribution of your letter was so extensive."

Board Balks At Master Teacher Pact

The Petaluma Board of Education balked last night at teachers' request to negotiate a so-called master contract that defines school policy as well as calling for increased pay.

Supt. Lesly H. Meyer said the board objected to the request by the Association of Petaluma Area Teachers because many of the rules called for in the proposed master contract already are part of adopted school board policy.

Meyer won approval from the board to refer the teachers' request to the Sonoma County Counsel for review.

The proposed master pact, among other things, calls for method under which teacher-school board impasses would be resolved and asks that a teacher approve a document before school officials place it in his personnel file, Meyer said.

The teachers' group already has asked the board for an 11 per cent pay increase for fiscal 1971-72.

In other business, the board told the Penngrove Advisory Committee it may have to condemn to obtain acreage for a playground addition at Penngrove School. The committee expressed concern the purchase was not moving fast enough, Meyer said, but the group was told school officials only recently were able to sell bonds to cover the cost of the land.

The committee also complained about teaching duties being assigned Penngrove Principal John Anderson, but Meyer said it was pointed out to the group that other principals in the district were similarly affected because of defeat of the recent tax increase election.

Seale Case Rested

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI)— The state rested its case today against Black Panther chairman Bobby G. Seale and court was recessed until 10 a.m. next Tuesday when the defense will offer motions.

The 5,400 windows at United Nations headquarters require six to eight full-time window-washers.

Percy Gets Principalship In Cotati

Paul Percy, temporary principal of both Thomas Page and Cotati schools the past year, was named principal last night by trustees of the Cotati School District.

Percy, appointed following a closed session of the board, replaces Annagene Cornish, who has been on extended sick leave, according to Miriam Horne, board secretary.

Percy's salary will remain the same, since he received a boost when he became acting principal last year.

In other matters, the board extended teacher contracts except for the two instructors it previously announced would not be reemployed because of tight finances; gave the county schools office space at Waldo Rohnert School for three portable classrooms for the trainable mentally retarded, and heard a report from the Citizens Advisory Committee on planning for the June 1 tax increase election.

Hikes For Prison Guards Proposed

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO—Salary increases up to 20 per cent for prison guards for college credits earned during employment have been proposed in legislation by Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally, D-Los Angeles.

The increases would be paid from federal funds available for this purpose, according to Dymally.

His measure said it was intended to make correctional work financially more competitive with other law enforcement work "and to encourage more dedicated people to choose a career in the field of corrections.

SYMBOLIC PHOTOGRAPHY — Simply titled "Peter," this photograph by Jerry Uelsmann is featured with 39 other "post-visualization" pictures now in the College of Marin's Fine Arts Building gallery.

ART REVIEW

Photography Has Surrealist Feel

By KAY KSANDA

The photography of Jerry Uelsmann is almost a surrealist art form approaching the dream world of Salvador Dali.

In 1967 and 1969 Uelsmann received the Guggenheim Fellowship in Photography. His pictures have been reproduced in magazines and books from the most esoteric to "Life" and "Newsweek." Although, he teaches today at the University of Florida, his one man exhibitions still travel through most of the colleges in the United States.

Looking at his 40 photographs on display now in the gallery at College of Marin, a painter or sculptor might dismiss many of the Uelsmann effects as a montage technique. Incredibly, it is not. All the dramatic unreal reversals, all the startling images are created within his own medium.

He remains a purist within his darkroom. From long hours of printing and reprinting with complicated processes, sometimes using many negatives, he achieves one picture.

In many of his dream-sequences, it seems that he has used a sponge, ink, or even paint to achieve a particular effect. However, in his facility with his medium, he can achieve almost any effect staying within the confines of his paper, scissors, and enlarger.

Unlike Ansel Adams, who studies his subject and sets his shot up far in advance with just the correct exposure, definition, and design, Uelsmann is a "post-visualist" photographer. Although he knows equally well what is going to happen, his greatest creativity is within the darkroom after the shutter has snapped.

In his pictures he has huge trees growing out of the tips of a thicket. He has rocks forming out of the tops of trees. He has stones creating symbols and shapes. In one picture he has a bush with exposed roots floating upright in the air over a horizon of mountains. Another, has a huge eye in a toilet.

The show will continue through May 14 at the gallery in the Fine Arts Building on the college's Kentfield campus. Hours are week-days, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and in the evenings from 6:30 till 10 o'clock.

New Pact For Creek Flood Work

By ERIK M. INGRAM

The Army Corps of Engineers announced yesterday it has awarded a new contract for completion of Phase 3 of the Corte Madera Creek flood control project.

Eugene Huggins, public affairs officers for the corps in San Francisco, said the Army has contracted with the Elmer J. Freethy Co. of El Cerrito for the remaining work.

The original contractor, J B and C Co. of Scottsdale, Ariz., pulled out of the project Friday, claiming financial difficulties. Work was already more than a week behind schedule at the time of the pullout.

STORMY ROUND

The Arizona firm's first year in 1970 was marked by a stormy relationship with the Army over operational procedures. A one-day shut down of the project — called by the contractor — highlighted the dispute.

J B and C completed the first stage of Phase 3 in November about two weeks behind schedule. During the 1970 construction season they constructed a concrete channel from the College Avenue Bridge upstream to a point 600 feet below the Laurel Avenue Bridge.
Bridge.

This year's stage, now in the hands of Freethy Co., will see the reinforced concrete channel moved up to a point 200 feet downstream from the Ross post office.

FINAL COSTS

Freethy will be paid about $490,000 for the second and final stage of Phase 3 due for completion in October, Huggins said.

Freethy Co. is no newcomer to the Corte Madera Creek scene. In 1968 it was awarded a $2,513,508 contract to build 4,000 feet of earth channel and 2,000 feet of concrete channel up to the College Avenue Bridge.

It is also the firm which channeled Tamalpais Creek in 1969 after a swirling controversy ended with the arrest of 38 conservationists who attempted to block the project.

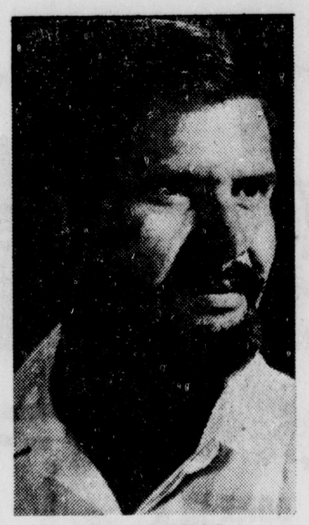
President of the firm, Elmer J. Freethy, said yesterday his men are already at the site preparing for the new construction season.

"TIME IS SHORT"

"To be perfectly frank with you," he said, "time is short. We have to begin moving on this thing right away."

While the deadline for completion is October, Freethy said he plans to complete the project by the middle of September at the latest.

"You know what the weather is like up there," he said. "We can't go by calendar days . . . We have to go by seasons."



J. D. NICHOLS
Baritone in recital

Baritone Will Sing On Friday

Baritone J. D. Nichols will present a free song recital at 8 p.m. Friday in Caleruega Hall, Dominican College, San Rafael.

Nichols will be accompanied by pianist Judith Storss in a program that will include songs by Salvator Rosa, Benedetto Marcello, J. S. Bach, Hugo Wolf, Francis Poulenc, Maurice Ravel and Ralph Vaughan Williams.

A teacher of vocal music and musical theater at Redwood High School, Nichols earned a bachelor's degree in music from San Jose State College. He is a candidate at Dominican College for the degree of Master of Music in performance.

The baritone sang in and provided musical direction for the Marin Shakespeare Festival production of "Brigadoon" last summer and has participated as director or singer in a number of musicals in Marin presented by the Tamalpais High School District and the Festival Theater.

Nixon Schedules News Conference

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon plans to hold a nationally broadcast news conference Thursday at 9 p.m. EDT, before leaving Friday morning to spend the weekend in California.

The White House said Nixon would return to Washington Monday so he could hold his regular Tuesday morning meeting with GOP congressional leaders.

College To Present Premiere Of A Play

The premiere of a first play by a young playwright, "Psalms of Two Davids," will open May 7 at the College of Marin under a Rockefeller Foundation grant.

The play by Joel Schwartz will be presented at 8 p.m. May 7-9 and May 11-15 in the Fine Arts Building theater.

The play's story centers around the Old Testament character, David, with the first act portraying him as a young man and the second as King of Israel.

Although the story is historical, it is contemporary in its conflicts, according to Director James Dunn, who has been working with Schwartz for the past three weeks.

Scheduling of the play began more than a year ago when a scout from the Rockefeller Foundation selected College of Marin's drama department for a program in which new plays by young playwrights are presented.

Dunn selected Schwartz's play from among several scripts, and the college was given a $3,000 grant to produce it.

Schwartz, 26, a Harvard University graduate, also studied under fellowship at the University of Minnesota for play writing.

Dunn said that he will use techniques of the Japanese Kabuki theater in this final performance of the year for his department.

Bid For Markers On Highway 37

The California Division of Highways has announced acceptance of the low bid of $27,775 by Rayalco, Inc. of Danville, for placement of pavement markers to include a portion of Highway 37 in Marin County.

The plain and reflective markers will be placed between Atherton Avenue north of Novato and the Highway 37 and Highway 121 junction in Sonoma County. The total bid also includes sign placement in San Francisco County and elsewhere in Sonoma County.

British Industrial Rubbish Rate Soars

The report, published Tuesday, said industry accounted for 20 million tons of waste material last year. Homes turned out 14 million tons, it said.

Montessori Plan To Be Explained

A public meeting to explain the Montessori method of early childhood education will be held at 8:30 p.m. today at the Kenilworth Recreation Building in Petaluma.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lord of Ross, administrators of two Montessori schools in Marin County, will talk to parents of children between the ages of two and six about the possibility of opening a Montessori school in Petaluma.

The Montessori teaching method is aimed at allowing a child to mature at his own rate, allows the learning experience to occur naturally and through the use of sensorial material and repetition, helps the child develop and refine his senses, according to the Lords.

Israeli General Indicted On Manslaughter

TEL AVIV (UPI) —One of the men who commanded Israel's victory in the 1967 Middle East War was indicted today on charges of manslaughter and driving too fast in connection with the death of a pedestrian last month.

Retired Maj. Gen. Ezer Weizmann was at the wheel of a car that struck and killed an 81-year-old doctor outside Tel Aviv March 21, police said. He is free on bail.

Weizmann masterminded the preemptive aerial strikes that destroyed most of Egypt's air force on the ground on the first day of the 1967 war.

No date was set for his trial.

$200,000 In Stanford Fires, Disruptions

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI)—Disruptions and fires on the Stanford University campus have caused $200,000 in damage over the past month, President Richard W. Lyman said Tuesday.

Lyman said that this does not include the $300,000 increase in campus security forces during the past two years of campus troubles.

The president of the 13,000 student university said Stanford has been "brought to the edge of the abyss" by violence, "especially the horror of someone's willingness to play Russian roulette with student lives in the dormitory."

He referred to an early morning fire in a freshman dormitory that caused more than $50,000 damage.

Corte Madera Housing Inquiry Result Due Study

A questionnaire to sample community opinion on low and moderate-income housing will be discussed tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. by the Corte Madera citizens' housing committee.

The proposed questionnaire consists of 16 questions aimed primarily at probing community acceptance of a low-income housing program.

"Families with low, fixed or moderate incomes will not be able to find housing in Corte Madera (in the future) and some resident families may have to sell their homes because of high property taxes and move to other areas," it says. "The effect this change will have on Corte Madera must be considered now."

"Do you oppose property tax relief to handicapped families?" one question asks. "Would you support construction of a low income (under $20,000) federal housing project in Corte Madera?" asks another.

Meeting at town hall, the committee also is expected to continue drafting a report on a housing element for the town's general plan. Drafting such an element is required by law.

Indictment In Hunt For Fortune

CHICAGO (UPI)—A federal grand jury looking for the source of an $800,000 "shoebox fortune" left by the late Illinois Secretary of State Paul Powell has indicted one of his former business associates on extortion charges.

The three indictments, returned Tuesday, charge Seymour Emalfarb, 46, with extorting $2,000 from the president of a trucking company "for the purported benefit of Paul Powell and on the purported behalf of Paul Powell."

Powell, a native of Vienna, Ill., was fond of calling himself a "poor boy."

At the time of the alleged extortion, Powell and Emalfarb were partners in Statewide Tire Sales Inc., a firm that sold tires to trucking firms.

President Arnold B. Come said that bells will be tolled in Stewart Chapel from noon to 1 p.m. "to give further expression to repentance for involvement in the Indo-China war and to acknowledge the need for intervention of Divine Providence."

Pair Is Found Stabbed To Death

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The fatally stabbed bodies of two young persons were found Tuesday night in an apartment near the San Francisco Mint.

The victims were identified as Tom Cornell, 18, a gasoline station attendant, and Nadine Smeage, 17, who had lived nearby.

Both had been bound hand and foot and stabbed several times.

John Lippman, Cornell's roommate, found them when he returned from classes at the City College of San Francisco.

Inspectors Jack Cleary and Gene Fogarty said the victims were "definitely not hippie types."

$4 Million Jet Settlement

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A $4 million settlement was announced Monday in payment for a DC8 aircraft destroyed in a fire at the McDonnell Douglas Corp. plant in Long Beach in 1966.

Five insurance companies which agreed to the settlement had contended the company was not eligible to collect on the insurance because it would not give up the plane in return for payment.

The companies involved were Eagle Star, National Fire, North America, Commerce and Industry and Northwestern Mutual.

SYMBOLIC PHOTOGRAPHY — Simply titled "Peter," this photograph by Jerry Uelsmann is featured with 39 other "post-visualization" pictures now in the College of Marin's Fine Arts Building gallery.

ART REVIEW

Photography Has Surrealist Feel

By KAY KSANDA

The photography of Jerry Uelsmann is almost a surrealist art form approaching the dream world of Salvador Dali.

In 1967 and 1969 Uelsmann received the Guggenheim Fellowship in Photography. His pictures have been reproduced in magazines and books from the most esoteric to "Life" and "Newsweek." Although, he teaches today at the University of Florida, his one man exhibitions still travel through most of the colleges in the United States.

Looking at his 40 photographs on display now in the gallery at College of Marin, a painter or sculptor might dismiss many of the Uelsmann effects as a montage technique. Incredibly, it is not. All the dramatic unreal reversals, all the startling images are created within his own medium.

He remains a purist within his darkroom. From long hours of printing and reprinting with complicated processes, sometimes using many negatives, he achieves one picture.

In many of his dream-sequences, it seems that he has used a sponge, ink, or even paint to achieve a particular effect. However, in his facility with his medium, he can achieve almost any effect staying within the confines of his paper, scissors, and enlarger.

Unlike Ansel Adams, who studies his subject and sets his shot up far in advance with just the correct exposure, definition, and design, Uelsmann is a "post-visualist" photographer. Although he knows equally well what is going to happen, his greatest creativity is within the darkroom after the shutter has snapped.

In his pictures he has huge trees growing out of the tips of a thicket. He has rocks forming out of the tops of trees. He has stones creating symbols and shapes. In one picture he has a bush with exposed roots floating upright in the air over a horizon of mountains. Another, has a huge eye in a toilet.

The show will continue through May 14 at the gallery in the Fine Arts Building on the college's Kentfield campus. Hours are week-days, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and in the evenings from 6:30 till 10 o'clock.

New Pact For Creek Flood Work

By ERIK M. INGRAM

The Army Corps of Engineers announced yesterday it has awarded a new contract for completion of Phase 3 of the Corte Madera Creek flood control project.

Eugene Huggins, public affairs officers for the corps in San Francisco, said the Army has contracted with the Elmer J. Freethy Co. of El Cerrito for the remaining work.

The original contractor, J B and C Co. of Scottsdale, Ariz., pulled out of the project Friday, claiming financial difficulties. Work was already more than a week behind schedule at the time of the pullout.

STORMY ROUND

The Arizona firm's first year in 1970 was marked by a stormy relationship with the Army over operational procedures. A one-day shut down of the project — called by the contractor — highlighted the dispute.

J B and C completed the first stage of Phase 3 in November about two weeks behind schedule. During the 1970 construction season they constructed a concrete channel from the College Avenue Bridge upstream to a point 600 feet below the Laurel Avenue Bridge.
Bridge.

This year's stage, now in the hands of Freethy Co., will see the reinforced concrete channel moved up to a point 200 feet downstream from the Ross post office.

FINAL COSTS

Freethy will be paid about $490,000 for the second and final stage of Phase 3 due for completion in October, Huggins said.

Freethy Co. is no newcomer to the Corte Madera Creek scene. In 1968 it was awarded a $2,513,508 contract to build 4,000 feet of earth channel and 2,000 feet of concrete channel up to the College Avenue Bridge.

It is also the firm which channeled Tamalpais Creek in 1969 after a swirling controversy ended with the arrest of 38 conservationists who attempted to block the project.

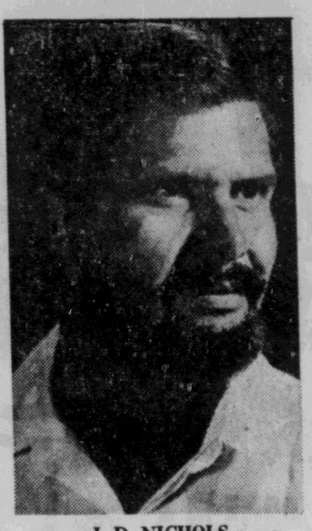
President of the firm, Elmer J. Freethy, said yesterday his men are already at the site preparing for the new construction season.

"TIME IS SHORT"

"To be perfectly frank with you," he said, "time is short. We have to begin moving on this thing right away."

While the deadline for completion is October, Freethy said he plans to complete the project by the middle of September at the latest.

"You know what the weather is like up there," he said. "We can't go by calendar days . . . We have to go by seasons."



J. D. NICHOLS
Baritone in recital

Baritone Will Sing On Friday

Baritone J. D. Nichols will present a free song recital at 8 p.m. Friday in Caleruega Hall, Dominican College, San Rafael.

Nichols will be accompanied by pianist Judith Storss in a program that will include songs by Salvator Rosa, Benedetto Marcello, J. S. Bach, Hugo Wolf, Francis Poulenc, Maurice Ravel and Ralph Vaughan Williams.

A teacher of vocal music and musical theater at Redwood High School, Nichols earned a bachelor's degree in music from San Jose State College. He is a candidate at Dominican College for the degree of Master of Music in performance.

The baritone sang in and provided musical direction for the Marin Shakespeare Festival production of "Brigadoon" last summer and has participated as director or singer in a number of musicals in Marin presented by the Tamalpais High School District and the Festival Theater.

Nixon Schedules News Conference

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon plans to hold a nationally broadcast news conference Thursday at 9 p.m. EDT, before leaving Friday morning to spend the weekend in California.

The White House said Nixon would return to Washington Monday so he could hold his regular Tuesday morning meeting with GOP congressional leaders.

College To Present Premiere Of A Play

The premiere of a first play by a young playwright, "Psalms of Two Davids," will open May 7 at the College of Marin under a Rockefeller Foundation grant.

The play by Joel Schwartz will be presented at 8 p.m. May 7-9 and May 11-15 in the Fine Arts Building theater.

The play's story centers around the Old Testament character, David, with the first act portraying him as a young man and the second as King of Israel.

Although the story is historical, it is contemporary in its conflicts, according to Director James Dunn, who has been working with Schwartz for the past three weeks.

Scheduling of the play began more than a year ago when a scout from the Rockefeller Foundation selected College of Marin's drama department for a program in which new plays by young playwrights are presented.

Dunn selected Schwartz's play from among several scripts, and the college was given a $3,000 grant to produce it.

Schwartz, 26, a Harvard University graduate, also studied under fellowship at the University of Minnesota for play writing.

Dunn said that he will use techniques of the Japanese Kabuki theater in this final performance of the year for his department.

Bid For Markers On Highway 37

The California Division of Highways has announced acceptance of the low bid of $27,775 by Rayalco, Inc. of Danville, for placement of pavement markers to include a portion of Highway 37 in Marin County.

The plain and reflective markers will be placed between Atherton Avenue north of Novato and the Highway 37 and Highway 121 junction in Sonoma County. The total bid also includes sign placement in San Francisco County and elsewhere in Sonoma County.

British Industrial Rubbish Rate Soars

LONDON (UPI)—British industry is turning out more rubbish than at any time in its history, according to a government report.

The report, published Tuesday, said industry accounted for 20 million tons of waste material last year. Homes turned out 14 million tons, it said.

Montessori Plan To Be Explained

A public meeting to explain the Montessori method of early childhood education will be held at 8:30 p.m. today at the Kenilworth Recreation Building in Petaluma.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lord of Ross, administrators of two Montessori schools in Marin County, will talk to parents of children between the ages of two and six about the possibility of opening a Montessori school in Petaluma.

The Montessori teaching method is aimed at allowing a child to mature at his own rate, allows the learning experience to occur naturally and through the use of sensorial material and repetition, helps the child develop and refine his senses, according to the Lords.

Israeli General Indicted On Manslaughter

TEL AVIV (UPI) —One of the men who commanded Israel's victory in the 1967 Middle East War was indicted today on charges of manslaughter and driving too fast in connection with the death of a pedestrian last month.

Retired Maj. Gen. Ezer Weizmann was at the wheel of a car that struck and killed an 81-year-old doctor outside Tel Aviv March 21, police said. He is free on bail.

Weizmann masterminded the preemptive aerial strikes that destroyed most of Egypt's air force on the ground on the first day of the 1967 war.

No date was set for his trial.

Fenner Rite Set By Novato Jaycees

Worth (Skip) Fenner Jr. of Fenner Insurance Co. will be installed as president of the Novato Jaycees at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Cloud 5 Restaurant, Novato.

Tom G. Senior will be installed as internal vice president; Raymond Nielsen, external vice president; Capt. Joseph W. Corfield, secretary; and Jeff Cornish, treasurer.

$200,000 In Stanford Fires, Disruptions

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI)—Disruptions and fires on the Stanford University campus have caused $200,000 in damage over the past month, President Richard W. Lyman said Tuesday.

Lyman said that this does not include the $300,000 increase in campus security forces during the past two years of campus troubles.

The president of the 13,000 student university said Stanford has been "brought to the edge of the abyss" by violence, "especially the horror of someone's willingness to play Russian roulette with student lives in the dormitory."

He referred to an early morning fire in a freshman dormitory that caused more than $50,000 damage.

Corte Madera Housing Inquiry Result Due Study

A questionnaire to sample community opinion on low and moderate-income housing will be discussed tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. by the Corte Madera citizens' housing committee.

The proposed questionnaire consists of 16 questions aimed primarily at probing community acceptance of a low-income housing program.

"Families with low, fixed or moderate incomes will not be able to find housing in Corte Madera (in the future) and some resident families may have to sell their homes because of high property taxes and move to other areas," it says. "The effect this change will have on Corte Madera must be considered now."

"Do you oppose property tax relief to handicapped families?" one question asks. "Would you support construction of a low income (under $20,000) federal housing project in Corte Madera?" asks another.

Meeting at town hall, the committee also is expected to continue drafting a report on a housing element for the town's general plan. Drafting such an element is required by law.

Indictment In Hunt For Fortune

CHICAGO (UPI)—A federal grand jury looking for the source of an $800,000 "shoebox fortune" left by the late Illinois Secretary of State Paul Powell has indicted one of his former business associates on extortion charges.

The three indictments, returned Tuesday, charge Seymour Emalfarb, 46, with extorting $2,000 from the president of a trucking company "for the purported benefit of Paul Powell and on the purported behalf of Paul Powell."

Powell, a native of Vienna, Ill., was fond of calling himself a "poor boy."

At the time of the alleged extortion, Powell and Emalfarb were partners in Statewide Tire Sales Inc., a firm that sold tires to trucking firms.

Park Plaza Plan Will Be Aired

Sausalito's controversial park plaza plan will be discussed at 9 a.m. tomorrow on KTIM's "Marin Sounding Board."

Panelists include Vice-Mayor Robin Sweeny, Councilman Stephen A. Fraser, Planning Director H. Eric Borgwardt and Margot Gergus, vice president of Sausalito Citizens Council.

Questions telephoned in will be answered on the live broadcast tomorrow. The program, moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer, will be rebroadcast at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

Seminary To Join In Prayer Day

San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo will join with other religious institutions in observing Saturday as a time of "prayer, repentance and mourning" for those who have died in Southeast Asia.

President Arnold B. Come said that bells will be tolled in Stewart Chapel from noon to 1 p.m. "to give further expression to repentance for involvement in the Indo-China war and to acknowledge the need for intervention of Divine Providence."

Pair Is Found Stabbed To Death

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The fatally stabbed bodies of two young persons were found Tuesday night in an apartment near the San Francisco Mint.

The victims were identified as Tom Cornell, 18, a gasoline station attendant, and Nadine Smeage, 17, who had lived nearby.

Both had been bound hand and foot and stabbed several times.

John Lippman, Cornell's roommate, found them when he returned from classes at the City College of San Francisco.

Inspectors Jack Cleary and Gene Fogarty said the victims were "definitely not hippie types."

$4 Million Jet Settlement

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A $4 million settlement was announced Monday in payment for a DC8 aircraft destroyed in a fire at the McDonnell Douglas Corp. plant in Long Beach in 1966.

Five insurance companies which agreed to the settlement had contended the company was not eligible to collect on the insurance because it would not give up the plane in return for payment.

The companies involved were Eagle Star, National Fire, North America, Commerce and Industry and Northwestern Mutual.

Capitalistic Look At Nation's Ills

By DAVID DIETZ

A vocally antiwar banker with a Prince Valiant haircut, an educator whose specialty is peacetime use of money and a soft-spoken physician who wondered whether America could adjust to a society free of war and degradation made up a varied peace alliance last night at a Sonoma State College forum.

The three, together with a Cotati businessman, appeared before a largely student audience in Fred Warren Memorial Auditorium to describe a professional man's view of a "peaceful alternative to war." The program was part of a two-week-long college Peace Festival that got under way yesterday.

Other festival activities yesterday included folk music, prayers, a lecture on population growth and a discussion of so-called political prisoners. On today's schedule is a program on nonviolence and an 8:30 p.m. folk concert in Ives Hall.

Last night's panelists, who expressed divergent outlooks, met scattered hostility and suspicion, largely from radical students who saw no remedy for the nation's ills through capitalism.

Many comments seemed aimed at the so-called rebel banker, Fortney Stark, president of Security National Bank of Walnut Creek. Stark, billed as the evening's main attraction, gained nationwide attention recently when he placed a huge peace symbol on his new East Bay bank building, declaring he wouldn't take it down until the war ended.

Stark dresses mod, wears his hair collar-length in back. Despite criticism which sprang from the crowd, he clung to an endorsement of free enterprise, although in one instance he foresaw changes in property laws to halt property speculation.

At one point, Stark challenged the student critics in the audience.

"You spend $150 to $200 a year on such things as cigarettes, Cokes, SCOPE . . . on real or imaginary things that bother you," he said in a fatherly tone. "Not many of you give to the Free Angela Fund or the Peace Coalition thing."

"How much have you given to Angela Davis? a student inquired as he attacked capitalism's shortcomings. "Students give what they can."

The educator, Sonoma State economics professor Richard M. Bell, feared that if present trends continue, a swelling social conscience could collide with an unyielding "power structure," and overthrow of the government might result.

"Indestructible force meets immovable object," Bell summed up.

The nation's first priority should be dismantling of weaponry, said Bell, who is conducting doctoral research on the economics of peace and war, and he explained he didn't believe that massive government spending, including that for the military, was good for the economy.

He espoused, instead, a controlled speed-up in the country's growth rate once peace were achieved, although noting the expansion would have to be controlled by restrictions on savings and profit.

A student challenged Bell's modified free enterprise plan as piling "encumbrances upon encumbrances." Stark said, however, he was "more afraid of a police-type state" under a system that eliminates private ownership.

Dr. Brad Lundborg of Santa Rosa, a member of the Sonoma State Advisory Board and of Sonoma environmental groups, held a cautious outlook, believing social and political change could be achieved only through a "nonconfrontation approach."

But he wondered whether the U.S., since it has "never lived in peace," a reference also to harming of the environment, has the "faintest idea how to go about living in such a society."

Lundborg's father, Louis, board chairman emeritus of the Bank of America, also was to have appeared as a panelist, but had an educational television engagement in San Francisco.

The fourth panelist, Stephen Jones, manager of the Exchange Bank in Cotati and president of that city's chamber of commerce, said one method to prevent war is with "massive effort to reduce the world's population."

Postal Rate Hearing Set

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Postal Rate Commission has set May 17 for the start of hearings on the U.S. Postal Service's request for $1.45 billion a year in higher rates.

The service, which already has printed billions of new stamps, contends the 1970 Postal Reorganization Act permits it to temporarily raise rates by one-third within 100 days of its request if the commission has not acted —and it plans to do so on May 16.

First-class mail would be raised from 6 to 8 cents, airmail from 10 to 11, and other classes by one-third. The service also intends to raise second class mail by 142 per cent over a five-year period.

RAP SESSION

Orr Reflects On His Youth, Problems Then

By SANDRA YOUNG
(Third in a series of 24 raps)

With memories of his own youth in his mind's eye, Fairfax Police Chief James R. Orr finds himself looking with some envy and some distaste across the chasm he finds between the generations.

Recently, the I-J "rapped" with Orr about youth today, its attitudes and problems.

He feels that today's young people have a lot to offer: "They're interested in the environment, government, world affairs. They're educated. They have far more to offer than I can, say I did at that age."

Orr, 42, can recall peddling papers at the age of 10 on the streets of San Francisco to earn money and feels he learned more from "struggling to get it" than today's youth who are growing up with "everything handed to them."

While Orr envies the increased availability of education today, he questions the direction in which he sees it leading some young people.

"Youth nowadays are far more educated, far more inquisitive and far more concerned with what's going on." he said. "But I can't say they take the intelligence they have and direct it the right way. A lot of them aren't directing it anywhere."

The police chief feels today's youth show a greater consciousness of and participation in city government.

"In my day, I didn't even know there was such a thing as a board of supervisors. I didn't even know the name of the mayor of the city," declared the police chief.

A question about the so-called new morality caused Orr to scratch his head.

"They're doing things today in the open that I plotted to do in secret and then worried about for two weeks afterward," he said, laughing.

"I guess they're still doing the same things — they're just uninhibited about it. They aren't stuck with the guilt hangups we were," Orr said.

Orr, who served as a Marine during World War II and has two daughters, is sympathetic to the way young people feel about the Vietnam War, and especially to the feelings of young men facing the draft.

"Kids today have plenty of gripes against the Establishment. They're growing up in a world that's moving too fast for all of us," Orr commented. "Young fellows nowadays don't know if they'll be able to finish their education or not."

But Orr — a police chief for 10 years, who says he became a policeman as a challenge "to see if I had the right material" — has little sympathy for revolutionaries or "long-haired hippies that call me 'pig.'"

"I don't see any need for long hair. I'm not talking about mod length, it's the shoulder length hair that gets me. It's not an expression of individuality anymore — there are too many of them," Orr remarked.

Asked if he would wear his hair long if he were a youth today, Orr answered, "No, I wouldn't. But then, I didn't wear my hair in a crew cut when it was popular either."

Much of the discontent evident in today's youths is caused by the problems they see around them, Orr said. He thinks, however, that there are other ways to effect changes than through violent means.

"Blowing up a chemical plant doesn't stop the war in Vietnam," the police chief said. "Tearing down educational buildings, destroying millions of dollars of property just to say, 'We don't like it and if you don't change it, we'll level it,' will never work."

Orr said the recent election in Berkeley is evidence of a new kind of revolution "through the vote."

The verbal attack some young people make upon policeman, calling them "pig" or shouting "oink, oink" as the patrol car rolls down the street, is "shameful" according to Orr.

"Why, I never would have dreamed of saying something like that to a policeman in San Francisco when I was a kid," he said. "They know they can get away with it now, that's why they do it. If they had been spanked more when they were kids, maybe they would have learned some respect."

"Just a simple yes or no."

U.S. Troop Cut Running Ahead Of Timetable

SAIGON (UPI)—U. S. troop strength in South Vietnam dropped by 6,200 men last week, spokesmen said today, officially beating the sixth phase of President Nixon's troop withdrawal program by at least nine days.

Spokesmen said there were 281,400 men in South Vietnam as of April 22. Phase VI of the troop withdrawal program was aimed at having a strength of 284,000 men by May 1.

The rapid reduction launched Phase VII early, officials said. That phase is aimed at reducing the manpower in South Vietnam by another 100,000 by Dec. 1, 1971.

80 Marin Pupils Exhibiting Art

Eighty Marin County students are among the 2,000 students from throughout the state displaying their works through May 9 at the Oakland Museum's Great Hall.

The students are participating in "Upstart," a display of original works by art students from kindergarten to college.

Their work represents expressions about such issues as deteriorating environment, racism and politics as well as whimsical caricatures of their own life styles.

Madrigal Group Sets Performances

The Madrigal group of the College of Marin Music Department will present a concert of madrigals and anthems at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the Choral Hall of the Fine Arts Building.

The group, conducted by Dr. S. Drummond Wolff, will present motetes by Weelkes, Ford, Farrant and Dr. Wolff. Madrigals by Donato, Arkadelt, Wilbye, Dowland, and Morley and anthems by Purcell, Casals and Mendelssohn will also be sung.

Doctor Develops Home Treatment that
RINSES AWAY BLACKHEADS
Help Dry Up ACNE-PIMPLES...

QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE 15 MINUTE HOME TREATMENT
MUST SHOW IMMEDIATE IMPROVEMENT OR YOUR MONEY BACK

A leading New York Doctor, working with a cosmetic laboratory, has developed a simple home treatment that rinses away blackheads, helps dry up acne pimples, and shrinks enlarged pores. The name of this medicated product is QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE. Apply this delightfully Mint-Scented Cream and within 2 or 3 minutes an absorbing agent called Argilla, dries and turns this cream into a plastic-like masque. You will now feel as though hundreds of "tiny fingers" are kneading the skin, loosening pore-caked dirt, blackheads, and other foreign impurities. As it firms and hardens, its suction action draws out waste matter from the pores. . . . In 15 minutes you simply rinse the masque away with lukewarm water which dissolves it immediately. When you wipe your face, you can see that blackheads and other pore "filler" actually comes off on your wash cloth. And your skin feels clean . . . really clean . . . refreshed, smooth like velvet. Women 35 and over will enjoy the skin tightening experience as the masque relaxes tired facial muscles and eases tension lines on face and throat. If you suffer the agony of blackheads, acne-pimples, and enlarged pores, give yourself this home treatment and see the breath-taking results. Ask for it by name QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE.

Bathe Away Aches and Pains
RELAX TIRED MUSCLES
Reduce Tension
Sleep soundly tonight!

A leading New York doctor has discovered a way to turn an ordinary tub of hot water into a relaxing, soothing, satisfying Mineral Bath. BATHERAPY is a unique combination of minerals similar to the beneficial mineral waters found in famous Spas throughout the world. Imagine what this means to those who suffer the disturbing aches and pains that are so often associated with over-exertion and fatigue. Many who have tried this new discovery give glowing reports of how they now "soak away" many of the pains of sore muscles and stiffness right in their own bathtubs—just as though they were bathing at one of the world's famous Mineral Springs. In fact, millions of people who have been traveling to distant Health Spas for pain relief—on the advice of their Physicians—may soon be saved this bother and expense. Thanks to this new triumph in medical chemistry, they may find that they can enjoy the often comforting benefits of true mineral bathing in the snug convenience of their own homes.

If you are one of the millions who suffer the misery of minor aches and pains, body tensions and fatigue, uneasy sleep . . . BATHERAPY, a doctor's prescription, is the quick easy way to relief. When such distress occurs and your whole body cries out for relief, wouldn't it be wonderful if you could suddenly find yourself at one of the world's great Health Spas . . . where so many wealthy people bathe away their aches and pains in the soaking warmth of Mineral Baths?

As this is being written, BATHERAPY is being made available to hospitals everywhere—and to the public through this announcement. Already thousands are enjoying its benefits. Yet BATHERAPY does not help everyone. Unfortunately, there are some people who are constitutionally unable to respond even to Nature's own Mineral Baths. If you, however, are among the millions who suffer from minor aches and pains—or from the tensions and fatigue of modern living—ask your doctor about BATHERAPY. If he thinks it might help you, by all means try it. The chances are you'll find its soothing, cushioning, pain-softening action will give you surprising relief from minor discomforts and a feeling of well-being that may last for quite some time.

Even if you are fortunately free of any bodily discomforts, you'll find a bath with BATHERAPY is a delightful and rewarding experience. A wonderful sensation of physical freedom envelopes you. Tensions unwind, nerves are soothed, and you relax so blissfully, you sleep as though you hadn't a care in the world.

Postal Rate Hearing Set

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Postal Rate Commission has set May 17 for the start of hearings on the U.S. Postal Service's request for $1.45 billion a year in higher rates.

The service, which already has printed billions of new stamps, contends the 1970 Postal Reorganization Act permits it to temporarily raise rates by one-third within 100 days of its request if the commission has not acted —and it plans to do so on May 16.

First-class mail would be raised from 6 to 8 cents, airmail from 10 to 11, and other classes by one-third. The service also intends to raise second class mail by 142 per cent over a five-year period.

RAP SESSION

Orr Reflects On His Youth, Problems Then

By SANDRA YOUNG
(Third in a series of 24 raps)

With memories of his own youth in his mind's eye, Fairfax Police Chief James R. Orr finds himself looking with some envy and some distaste across the chasm he finds between the generations.

Recently, the I-J "rapped" with Orr about youth today, its attitudes and problems.

He feels that today's young people have a lot to offer: "They're interested in the environment, government, world affairs. They're educated. They have far more to offer than I can, say I did at that age."

Orr, 42, can recall peddling papers at the age of 10 on the streets of San Francisco to earn money and feels he learned more from "struggling to get it" than today's youth who are growing up with "everything handed to them."

While Orr envies the increased availability of education today, he questions the direction in which he sees it leading some young people.

"Youth nowadays are far more educated, far more inquisitive and far more concerned with what's going on." he said. "But I can't say they take the intelligence they have and direct it the right way. A lot of them aren't directing it anywhere."

The police chief feels today's youth show a greater consciousness of and participation in city government.

"In my day, I didn't even know there was such a thing as a board of supervisors. I didn't even know the name of the mayor of the city," declared the police chief.

A question about the so-called new morality caused Orr to scratch his head.

"They're doing things today in the open that I plotted to do in secret and then worried about for two weeks afterward," he said, laughing.

"I guess they're still doing the same things — they're just uninhibited about it. They aren't stuck with the guilt hangups we were," Orr said.

Orr, who served as a Marine during World War II and has two daughters, is sympathetic to the way young people feel about the Vietnam War, and especially to the feelings of young men facing the draft.

"Kids today have plenty of gripes against the Establishment. They're growing up in a world that's moving too fast for all of us," Orr commented. "Young fellows nowadays don't know if they'll be able to finish their education or not."

But Orr — a police chief for 10 years, who says he became a policeman as a challenge "to see if I had the right material" — has little sympathy for revolutionaries or "long-haired hippies that call me 'pig.'"

"I don't see any need for long hair. I'm not talking about mod length, it's the shoulder length hair that gets me. It's not an expression of individuality anymore — there are too many of them," Orr remarked.

Asked if he would wear his hair long if he were a youth today, Orr answered, "No, I wouldn't. But then, I didn't wear my hair in a crew cut when it was popular either."

Much of the discontent evident in today's youths is caused by the problems they see around them, Orr said. He thinks, however, that there are other ways to effect changes than through violent means.

"Blowing up a chemical plant doesn't stop the war in Vietnam," the police chief said. "Tearing down educational buildings, destroying millions of dollars of property just to say, 'We don't like it and if you don't change it, we'll level it,' will never work."

Orr said the recent election in Berkeley is evidence of a new kind of revolution "through the vote."

The verbal attack some young people make upon policeman, calling them "pig" or shouting "oink, oink" as the patrol car rolls down the street, is "shameful" according to Orr.

"Why, I never would have dreamed of saying something like that to a policeman in San Francisco when I was a kid," he said. "They know they can get away with it now, that's why they do it. If they had been spanked more when they were kids, maybe they would have learned some respect."

U.S. Troop Cut Running Ahead Of Timetable

SAIGON (UPI)—U. S. troop strength in South Vietnam dropped by 6,200 men last week, spokesmen said today, officially beating the sixth phase of President Nixon's troop withdrawal program by at least nine days.

Spokesmen said there were 281,400 men in South Vietnam as of April 22. Phase VI of the troop withdrawal program was aimed at having a strength of 284,000 men by May 1.

The rapid reduction launched Phase VII early, officials said. That phase is aimed at reducing the manpower in South Vietnam by another 100,000 by Dec. 1, 1971.

80 Marin Pupils Exhibiting Art

Eighty Marin County students are among the 2,000 students from throughout the state displaying their works through May 9 at the Oakland Museum's Great Hall.

The students are participating in "Upstart," a display of original works by art students from kindergarten to college.

Their work represents expressions about such issues as deteriorating environment, racism and politics as well as whimsical caricatures of their own life styles.

Madrigal Group Sets Performances

The Madrigal group of the College of Marin Music Department will present a concert of madrigals and anthems at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the Choral Hall of the Fine Arts Building.

The group, conducted by Dr. S. Drummond Wolff, will present motetes by Weelkes, Ford, Farrant and Dr. Wolff. Madrigals by Donato, Arkadelt, Wilbye, Dowland, and Morley and anthems by Purcell, Casals and Mendelssohn will also be sung.

Doctor Develops Home Treatment that
RINSES AWAY BLACKHEADS
Help Dry Up ACNE-PIMPLES...

QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE 15 MINUTE HOME TREATMENT
MUST SHOW IMMEDIATE IMPROVEMENT OR YOUR MONEY BACK

A leading New York Doctor, working with a cosmetic laboratory, has developed a simple home treatment that rinses away blackheads, helps dry up acne pimples, and shrinks enlarged pores. The name of this medicated product is QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE. Apply this delightfully Mint-Scented Cream and within 2 or 3 minutes an absorbing agent called Argilla, dries and turns this cream into a plastic-like masque. You will now feel as though hundreds of "tiny fingers" are kneading the skin, loosening pore-caked dirt, blackheads, and other foreign impurities. As it firms and hardens, its suction action draws out waste matter from the pores. . . . In 15 minutes you simply rinse the masque away with lukewarm water which dissolves it immediately. When you wipe your face, you can see that blackheads and other pore "filler" actually comes off on your wash cloth. And your skin feels clean . . . really clean . . . refreshed, smooth like velvet. Women 35 and over will enjoy the skin tightening experience as the masque relaxes tired facial muscles and eases tension lines on face and throat. If you suffer the agony of blackheads, acne-pimples, and enlarged pores, give yourself this home treatment and see the breath-taking results. Ask for it by name QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE.

Bathe Away Aches and Pains
RELAX TIRED MUSCLES
Reduce Tension
Sleep soundly tonight!

A leading New York doctor has discovered a way to turn an ordinary tub of hot water into a relaxing, soothing, satisfying Mineral Bath. BATHERAPY is a unique combination of minerals similar to the beneficial mineral waters found in famous Spas throughout the world. Imagine what this means to those who suffer the disturbing aches and pains that are so often associated with over-exertion and fatigue. Many who have tried this new discovery give glowing reports of how they now "soak away" many of the pains of sore muscles and stiffness right in their own bathtubs—just as though they were bathing at one of the world's famous Mineral Springs. In fact, millions of people who have been traveling to distant Health Spas for pain relief—on the advice of their Physicians—may soon be saved this bother and expense. Thanks to this new triumph in medical chemistry, they may find that they can enjoy the often comforting benefits of true mineral bathing in the snug convenience of their own homes.

If you are one of the millions who suffer the misery of minor aches and pains, body tensions and fatigue, uneasy sleep . . . BATHERAPY, a doctor's prescription, is the quick easy way to relief. When such distress occurs and your whole body cries out for relief, wouldn't it be wonderful if you could suddenly find yourself at one of the world's great Health Spas . . . where so many wealthy people bathe away their aches and pains in the soaking warmth of Mineral Baths?

As this is being written, BATHERAPY is being made available to hospitals everywhere—and to the public through this announcement. Already thousands are enjoying its benefits. Yet BATHERAPY does not help everyone. Unfortunately, there are some people who are constitutionally unable to respond even to Nature's own Mineral Baths. If you, however, are among the millions who suffer from minor aches and pains—or from the tensions and fatigue of modern living—ask your doctor about BATHERAPY. If he thinks it might help you, by all means try it. The chances are you'll find its soothing, cushioning, pain-softening action will give you surprising relief from minor discomforts and a feeling of well-being that may last for quite some time.

Even if you are fortunately free of any bodily discomforts, you'll find a bath with BATHERAPY is a delightful and rewarding experience. A wonderful sensation of physical freedom envelopes you. Tensions unwind, nerves are soothed, and you relax so blissfully, you sleep as though you hadn't a care in the world.

South Is Very Foolish In Taking Out Safety Insurance

If you are a careful householder, you keep your pills in labeled bottles to avoid taking ascorbic acid when what you want is aspirin. You probably keep sugar and salt in separate containers. Things that look alike are not always exactly the same. I wouldn't be telling you this if I didn't have a bridge hand to prove it.

HEART TRICKS

The defenders swiftly rattled off the first three tricks in hearts. After East had won the third trick he returned a diamond to dummy's weakness.

South won with the ace of diamonds and swiftly led out the ace of spades as a "safety" play. South had seen hands of this kind in bridge books and newspaper columns, and he played the ace of spades first in the hope of capturing a singleton queen.

When nothing startling happened on the first round of spades, South led a club to dummy's king in order to return the jack of spades for a finesse. East covered with the queen, forcing out the king. West's discard revealed the bad trump break: East was sure to take the setting trick with the seven or eight of trumps.

WRONG SINGLETON

South's "safety" play of leading the ace of trumps first would have worked if West had the singleton queen, but it was sure to lose a trump trick if West had any other singleton. It was four times as likely that West had a low singleton since he could hold the 8, the 7, the 5 or the 4. It was foolish of South to take out insurance against one possibility, while ignoring four other equally likely cases.

South was, of course, deceived by appearances. His play would have been quite all right if his own spades had been headed by A-K-J, A-K-10 or even A-K-9.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠-5
♥-Q J 10
♦-J 9 8 4 3
♣-J 9 4 3.

What do you say?

Answer: Pass.

Avoid responding when you have only five points. You would raise if partner had bid any other suit, since then your singleton spadw would be an asset. When your partner has bid spades, however, a singleton in his suit is a liability rather than an asset.

Wagner, 41, married Miss Marshall, 38, in Europe in 1963. They separated last June. The couple has one daughter, Katherine, 6.

It was the second marriage for Wagner, who previously was wed to actress Natalie Wood, and the third for Miss Marshall, who has two children from a previous one.

Wagner filed the action Monday.

Angered Reagan Denounces Probe

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Gov. Ronald Reagan says a three-judge commission appointed by the Nixon administration should quit unless it conducts field investigations of the embattled California Rural Legal Assistance.

"They either misunderstood or they were misinformed in Washington as to what their purpose was," the governor angrily told a news conference Tuesday.

The three judges refused to comment, but CRLA released the transcript of a telegram from the federal official who named the panel which indicated Reagan was wrong. A CRLA spokesman said the governor knew it.

Reagan said the commission's hearings in San Francisco are being conducted in an "adversary" manner and therefore the state won't actively participate. But he pledged "our full cooperation in any study they want to make of the CRLA."

He said the judges were appointed to "study the entire situation, study CRLA, study any other ideas, and come up with a recommendation as to how to provide better rural legal assistance."

The commission was named by Federal OEO Director Frank Carlucci shortly after he upheld Reagan's veto of a $1.8 million CRLA grant for 1971 and at the same time issued an abbreviated six-month grant.

"I'm afraid they came here with the idea that they could sit at a bench while everyone else did the work and brought a case before them and then they would sit back and make a judgment," Reagan said.

"This is not what they were supposed to do," he insisted. "They were to go into the field and investigate CRLA. And if they are unwilling to do that they ought to resign."

In San Francisco, CRLA released a transcript of an April 1 telegram from Carlucci to commission chairman Robert Williamson which contradicted the governor's explanation on the group's instructions.

"The commission has determined that the only feasible method by which it is prepared to proceed with its task is by receiving testimony on the record at hearings," Carlucci wired. "In my March 29 letter to you I said it is understood that the commission shall adopt such procedures as it deems appropriate to accomplish this task.

"Accordingly, this is to advise you that the procedure the commission has chosen is acceptable and I request the commission to proceed with its task."

Cruz Reynoso, executive director of CRLA, told newsmen in San Francisco that Reagan "is absolutely wrong and I believe he knows he is wrong." He said the governor "understood full well what the hearings were going to be" because state OEO director Lewis K. Uhler attended a session at which the Carlucci telegram was read.

Reagan accused the CRLA attorneys of behaving "like a bunch of ideological ambulance chasers doing their own thing at the expense of the rural poor who actually needed help."

At the time of the veto, Reagan accused the CRLA of engaging in politics, handling criminal cases contrary to federal rules and of denying civil legal aid to the rural needy.

The CRLA denied the charges and accused the administration of waging a vendetta against its success rate of 86 per cent. The federally financed agency has been a frequent and successful courtroom challenger of Reagan's cutbacks in welfare and Medi-Cal.

At the hearing Tuesday, Earl Johnson Jr., former director of legal services for the OEO, testified that Reagan had threatened to veto CRLA funding in 1967 unless certain conditions were met.

Johnson said he mentioned the threat to Sargent Shriver, then head of the war on poverty, who replied: "If I don't overrule a veto like that, we may as well turn the country over to the John Birch Society."

The commission ruled the testimony irrelevant and said it would not be considered.

The most intense endorsement of the CRLA came from Mario Obledo, general counsel of the Mexican-American Legal Defense Fund, who called the legal group's work "magnificent."

"CRLA for the first time has established in the Chicanos a sense of faith in the legal system," Obledo said.

"Before its existence, frustration builds up and you have no trust in the administration of justice," he said. "CRLA taught Mexican-Americans they could trust lawyers, could take their problems to the courts instead of the streets. We say CRLA stands for 'Chicano Rural Legal Assitance.'"

The commission continued its administration-boycotted hearing today.

Hatfield: Return Republic To People

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., says the Constitution should be amended so that House members would be limited to six consecutive two-year terms, and senators to two consecutive six-year terms at any given time.

Hatfield plans to propose a constitutional amendment to that effect Thursday. Under his proposal, any lawmaker who has served the full 12 years would be eligible to try for re-election after a two-year furlough.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Bicycle Injuries Can Be Serious; Some Examples Cited

A bike provided some of my fondest childhood memories. It was fun to ride, a good way to exercise and definitely beat walking to school or to the park. In those days, there was less traffic, and we were exposed to fewer hazards. Today city youngsters are forbidden to ride bikes on many streets. Even older boys and girls must know and follow the rules of the road to survive a trip of any distance. Some falls are inevitable and it is surprising that injuries are not more common. Minor cuts and lacerations should be washed thoroughly with soap and water and covered with a clean dressing. Be sure to remove all pieces of dirt, gravel, and cinders.

MANY ACCIDENTS occur when the cyclist tries to show off or is not paying attention to the job at hand. I remember crashing into a parked car when turning my head to wave at a girl. Mark, one of my grandsons, did the same and he ended up with a serious fracture of his right elbow.

NOW AND THEN a child puts his foot through the moving wheel and the spokes produce an extensive laceration. The bike usually tips over and the rider has a nasty fall.

AN ENGLISH surgeon recently reported several cases of handlebar injuries. (Four involved boys.) While riding, the child turned suddenly to avoid a hazard, lost balance and fell forward on to the handlebars. In each case, the handlebar grip went into the groin and caused severe tears or bruises.

ONE 7-YEAR-OLD injured the major blood vessels in his right groin. Following an operation to stop a serious hemorrhage the lad made a satisfactory recovery. However, the leg was still swollen when he was released from the hospital. All of these accidents involved small-wheel type cycles with handlebars that turned completely around (360 degrees). These proved to be a hazard when the rider turned too short.

SAWING SOUNDS

J. G. writes: Will you please explain why my heartbeat sounds like wood being sawed? It is so loud that I can hear it when lying down or sitting up. Is this serious?

REPLY

I don't know, because the heart never snores when resting. Unless, of course, these strange sounds represent a murmur. This question could be answered in a moment by your physician after he listened to the ticker with his stethoscope.

DRIVING AND HEART

A reader writes: Does driving a car put an added strain on the heart?

REPLY

Only in those who get excited in traffic or angry with pokey drivers or pests who cut in and out. Anyone who develops heart pain or severe palpitation when driving should never get behind the wheel.

LEG PAIN

L. writes: My left leg aches constantly and seems to turn in. Can you make any suggestions? P.S. I am 78.

REPLY

You need a firsthand medical opinion. Possible causes include arthritis, osteoporosis, poor circulation, flat feet or a nerve or brain disorder.

HARELIP IN CHILD

Mrs. G. writes: Is harelip in a child caused by malnutrition in the mother during pregnancy?

REPLY

The cause of this defect is not known and no one has been able to pin it on the mother's diet.

Controls On Ocean Dumping Sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Nixon administration, contending it would not be feasible to ban all ocean dumping at once today asked Congress instead simply to authorize strict controls on what may be thrown away at sea.

William D. Ruckelshaus, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), told a Senate subcommittee the administration wants to see "the creation of the farthest reaching and strongest authority that law and technology will allow" to control the dumping of wastes in the nation's coastal waters.

But Ruckelshaus said the EPA does not favor several bills now pending before the Senate Oceans and Atmosphere subcommittee to prohibit all ocean dumping.

"It would not be feasible to ban all ocean dumping at once," Ruckelshaus said in testimony prepared for the subcommittee. "In some instances, waste disposal methods which are less damaging to the environment than ocean dumping are not immediately available . . .

"This approach has a certain appeal when you look at it out of its full context. But the problem of ocean dumping must be examined in the broad context of the staggering problems of waste disposal experienced by many communities."

He said many communities that now dump at sea simply could not convert to land disposal immediately. And, he said, not all materials dumped into coastal waters are harmful.

"Some . . . may actually be beneficial, for example the sinking of car bodies or other similar materials to serve as shelters for fish," Ruckelshaus said.

He urged enactment of the Nixon administration's anti-dumping bill, which would give him as EPA administrator sweeping powers to decide what could be dumped where.

The 'Attractive' Nuisance Studied

The big tree in Mrs. Oakley's yard had long been a child's delight. Nearly every boy in the neighborhood had climbed it one time or another. But parts of the tree were dying, and some branches were brittle. When Tommy, age 8, climbed the tree, a branch cracked, and he fell 30 feet to the ground. Tommy was permanently injured.

Tommy's parents sued Mrs. Oakley, contending that she should have put up a fence or otherwise warned Tommy of the danger. They claimed that she was keeping an "attractive" nuisance.

The court held that Mrs. Oakley was not liable. It said that the tree was a natural part of the land, not an artificial structure, and that youngsters should know the dangers of high places. Further, the court said that an 8-year-old should know that branches might break.

An "attractive" nuisance may result in a property owner being held liable to trespassing children, but certain tests must be met:

The place must be one where children are likely to trespass, resulting in an implied invitation. A property owner is under no obligation to take precautions, however, if he does not have reason to believe that children will trespass.

The condition must involve a recognizable risk of harm, such as a special danger which children cannot comprehend. The usual dangers, such as fire, water, and height, are understood by most children.

The child must not discover the dangerous condition, or must be unable to appreciate the risk. This depends upon the maturity of the child. A child of ten, for example, should know the dangers of jumping over a pile of burning leaves, where a four-year-old may not. Each case turns on the age of the child, as well as on the special nature of the risk.

In applying these tests, the courts will balance the utility of maintaining the condition against the risk to children. But the more dangerous the condition of the property, the greater are the property owner's responsibilities. Note: California lawyers offer this column so you know about our laws.

Angered Reagan Denounces Probe

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Gov. Ronald Reagan says a three-judge commission appointed by the Nixon administration should quit unless it conducts field investigations of the embattled California Rural Legal Assistance.

"They either misunderstood or they were misinformed in Washington as to what their purpose was," the governor angrily told a news conference Tuesday.

The three judges refused to comment, but CRLA released the transcript of a telegram from the federal official who named the panel which indicated Reagan was wrong. A CRLA spokesman said the governor knew it.

Reagan said the commission's hearings in San Francisco are being conducted in an "adversary" manner and therefore the state won't actively participate. But he pledged "our full cooperation in any study they want to make of the CRLA."

He said the judges were appointed to "study the entire situation, study CRLA, study any other ideas, and come up with a recommendation as to how to provide better rural legal assistance."

The commission was named by Federal OEO Director Frank Carlucci shortly after he upheld Reagan's veto of a $1.8 million CRLA grant for 1971 and at the same time issued an abbreviated six-month grant.

"I'm afraid they came here with the idea that they could sit at a bench while everyone else did the work and brought a case before them and then they would sit back and make a judgment," Reagan said.

"This is not what they were supposed to do," he insisted. "They were to go into the field and investigate CRLA. And if they are unwilling to do that they ought to resign."

In San Francisco, CRLA released a transcript of an April 1 telegram from Carlucci to commission chairman Robert Williamson which contradicted the governor's explanation on the group's instructions.

"The commission has determined that the only feasible method by which it is prepared to proceed with its task is by receiving testimony on the record at hearings," Carlucci wired. "In my March 29 letter to you I said it is understood that the commission shall adopt such procedures as it deems appropriate to accomplish this task.

"Accordingly, this is to advise you that the procedure the commission has chosen is acceptable and I request the commission to proceed with its task."

Cruz Reynoso, executive director of CRLA, told newsmen in San Francisco that Reagan "is absolutely wrong and I believe he knows he is wrong." He said the governor "understood full well what the hearings were going to be" because state OEO director Lewis K. Uhler attended a session at which the Carlucci telegram was read.

Reagan accused the CRLA attorneys of behaving "like a bunch of ideological ambulance chasers doing their own thing at the expense of the rural poor who actually needed help."

At the time of the veto, Reagan accused the CRLA of engaging in politics, handling criminal cases contrary to federal rules and of denying civil legal aid to the rural needy.

The CRLA denied the charges and accused the administration of waging a vendetta against its success rate of 86 per cent. The federally financed agency has been a frequent and successful courtroom challenger of Reagan's cutbacks in welfare and Medi-Cal.

At the hearing Tuesday, Earl Johnson Jr., former director of legal services for the OEO, testified that Reagan had threatened to veto CRLA funding in 1967 unless certain conditions were met.

Johnson said he mentioned the threat to Sargent Shriver, then head of the war on poverty, who replied: "If I don't overrule a veto like that, we may as well turn the country over to the John Birch Society."

The commission ruled the testimony irrelevant and said it would not be considered.

The most intense endorsement of the CRLA came from Mario Obledo, general counsel of the Mexican-American Legal Defense Fund, who called the legal group's work "magnificent."

"CRLA for the first time has established in the Chicanos a sense of faith in the legal system," Obledo said.

"Before its existence, frustration builds up and you have no trust in the administration of justice," he said. "CRLA taught Mexican-Americans they could trust lawyers, could take their problems to the courts instead of the streets. We say CRLA stands for 'Chicano Rural Legal Assitance.'"

The commission continued its administration-boycotted hearing today.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Bicycle Injuries Can Be Serious; Some Examples Cited

A bike provided some of my fondest childhood memories. It was fun to ride, a good way to exercise and definitely beat walking to school or to the park. In those days, there was less traffic, and we were exposed to fewer hazards. Today city youngsters are forbidden to ride bikes on many streets. Even older boys and girls must know and follow the rules of the road to survive a trip of any distance. Some falls are inevitable and it is surprising that injuries are not more common. Minor cuts and lacerations should be washed thoroughly with soap and water and covered with a clean dressing. Be sure to remove all pieces of dirt, gravel, and cinders.

MANY ACCIDENTS occur when the cyclist tries to show off or is not paying attention to the job at hand. I remember crashing into a parked car when turning my head to wave at a girl. Mark, one of my grandsons, did the same and he ended up with a serious fracture of his right elbow.

NOW AND THEN a child puts his foot through the moving wheel and the spokes produce an extensive laceration. The bike usually tips over and the rider has a nasty fall.

AN ENGLISH surgeon recently reported several cases of handlebar injuries. (Four involved boys.) While riding, the child turned suddenly to avoid a hazard, lost balance and fell forward on to the handlebars. In each case, the handlebar grip went into the groin and caused severe tears or bruises.

ONE 7-YEAR-OLD injured the major blood vessels in his right groin. Following an operation to stop a serious hemorrhage the lad made a satisfactory recovery. However, the leg was still swollen when he was released from the hospital. All of these accidents involved small-wheel type cycles with handlebars that turned completely around (360 degrees). These proved to be a hazard when the rider turned too short.

SAWING SOUNDS

J. G. writes: Will you please explain why my heartbeat sounds like wood being sawed? It is so loud that I can hear it when lying down or sitting up. Is this serious?

REPLY

I don't know, because the heart never snores when resting. Unless, of course, these strange sounds represent a murmur. This question could be answered in a moment by your physician after he listened to the ticker with his stethoscope.

Controls On Ocean Dumping Sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Nixon administration, contending it would not be feasible to ban all ocean dumping at once today asked Congress instead simply to authorize strict controls on what may be thrown away at sea.

William D. Ruckelshaus, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), told a Senate subcommittee the administration wants to see "the creation of the farthest reaching and strongest authority that law and technology will allow" to control the dumping of wastes in the nation's coastal waters.

But Ruckelshaus said the EPA does not favor several bills now pending before the Senate Oceans and Atmosphere subcommittee to prohibit all ocean dumping.

"It would not be feasible to ban all ocean dumping at once," Ruckelshaus said in testimony prepared for the subcommittee. "In some instances, waste disposal methods which are less damaging to the environment than ocean dumping are not immediately available . . .

"This approach has a certain appeal when you look at it out of its full context. But the problem of ocean dumping must be examined in the broad context of the staggering problems of waste disposal experienced by many communities."

He said many communities that now dump at sea simply could not convert to land disposal immediately. And, he said, not all materials dumped into coastal waters are harmful.

"Some . . . may actually be beneficial, for example the sinking of car bodies or other similar materials to serve as shelters for fish," Ruckelshaus said.

He urged enactment of the Nixon administration's anti-dumping bill, which would give him as EPA administrator sweeping powers to decide what could be dumped where.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

The 'Attractive' Nuisance Studied

The big tree in Mrs. Oakley's yard had long been a child's delight. Nearly every boy in the neighborhood had climbed it one time or another. But parts of the tree were dying, and some branches were brittle. When Tommy, age 8, climbed the tree, a branch cracked, and he fell 30 feet to the ground. Tommy was permanently injured.

Tommy's parents sued Mrs. Oakley, contending that she should have put up a fence or otherwise warned Tommy of the danger. They claimed that she was keeping an "attractive" nuisance.

The court held that Mrs. Oakley was not liable. It said that the tree was a natural part of the land, not an artificial structure, and that youngsters should know the dangers of high places. Further, the court said that an 8-year-old should know that branches might break.

An "attractive" nuisance may result in a property owner being held liable to trespassing children, but certain tests must be met:

The place must be one where children are likely to trespass, resulting in an implied invitation. A property owner is under no obligation to take precautions, however, if he does not have reason to believe that children will trespass.

The condition must involve a recognizable risk of harm, such as a special danger which children cannot comprehend. The usual dangers, such as fire, water, and height, are understood by most children.

The child must not discover the dangerous condition, or must be unable to appreciate the risk. This depends upon the maturity of the child. A child of ten, for example, should know the dangers of jumping over a pile of burning leaves, where a four-year-old may not. Each case turns on the age of the child, as well as on the special nature of the risk.

In applying these tests, the courts will balance the utility of maintaining the condition against the risk to children. But the more dangerous the condition of the property, the greater are the property owner's responsibilities. Note: California lawyers offer this column so you know about our laws.

Hatfield: Return Republic To People

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., says the Constitution should be amended so that House members would be limited to six consecutive two-year terms, and senators to two consecutive six-year terms at any given time.

Hatfield plans to propose a constitutional amendment to that effect Thursday. Under his proposal, any lawmaker who has served the full 12 years would be eligible to try for re-election after a two-year furlough.

THE PLEASURE OF HIS COMPANY

Chimo, a 7-month-old cougar makes noises, which his master, David Hancock (background) of British Columbia, insists are "snarls of pleasure." Hancock, visiting the Independent-Journal yesterday to promote an ecology film at the College of Marin, reassured the reporter: "When he snarls, he's happy. It's like when a cat purrs." Moments later, the 50-pound beast, with one swift slash of a furry paw, seized the reporter's notebook. Fortunately, however, he missed the page that reports: the ecology film on wildlife will be shown in the college's Olney Hall Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. as part of ecology week activities. Long-Range Strategy By Guerrillas

Toronto Telegram News Service

SINGAPORE — Politics in Malaysia which now look to be run so firmly on communal lines, may lose their hard edge because of Communist guerrilla long-range strategy.

The change is noticeable because Malays, all of whom are Moslems, are worried about Malayan Chinese Communist influence upon the separatist rebellion being waged in far southern Thailand by Moslems of Malay racial origin.

These Malays in four southern provinces want to break away from domination by far-distant Bangkok (850 miles) and join racially and religiously-akin Malaysia, or else set up their own independent Moslem "Republic of Patani."

"Patani" was the name of the ancient Malay sultanate which covered the area of the present Thai provinces of Songkhla, Patani, Narathiwat and Yala.

Most Malaysian Malays are, of course, thoroughly in sympathy with the Patani armed struggle. They think the British should have taken the provinces away from the Thais when they had their chance — at the end of World War II.

The Thais, as allies of the Japanese, had, after all, annexed four other Malay states during the war, with Japanese encouragement.

No Malay state is more thoroughly (and some say actively) sympathetic towards the Patani rebels than the northeastern state of Kelantan, the only one in Malaysia governed by the Pan-Malay Islamic Party.

The PMIP would like to see all government in west Malaysia controlled by Malays, with the immigrant races, Chinese and Indians, aware of their "guest status".

But a PMIP senator from Kelantan got up in Federal Parliament recently to break the pattern.

Sen. Amaluddin Bin Darus said he feared that "we shall be forced to confront not only Communists from other races, but also Communists of the Malay race."

"It's very dangerous," he added during a speech of almost two hours on these and other defense and security considerations.

The senator said that he did not want to comment on the actions of the rebels, but "we will be in a state of danger whenever the rebels who want to set up a Republic of Patani succeed in being armed by the Communists."

He claimed that the separatists had not received help from anyone yet, but he believed that they would take aid from anywhere, including the (Malayan Chese) Communists who also operate on the border, if the circumstances forced them to.

And, echoing the official attitude of the Kelantan State Government, Senator Amaluddin said that Malaysia could not aid the Malay struggle in the north, as it had to protect good relations with Thailand.

The appearance of more Malays among the Communist Guerrillas, which is happening at the other (western) end of the border in Perak and Kedah states, could, quite seriously, have some beneficial side-effects for Malaysian nation-building.

The over-simplified view sometimes taken — as if the conflict were wholly one between a predominantly Malay army and a predominantly Chinese guerrilla force which is also directed to political extremism —would have to be modified.

It is not hard to see how this could have some effect on legitimate politics inside Malaysia, now so organized along communal lines that there seems no end to the pattern.

The only possible change would be through parties which wanted to improve the lot of all Malaysians, advocating different methods approved by the law, but not, in effect, racial ones as they now are.

Malaysian officials told me on a recent visit to the western end of the border that they are worried by the numbers of Malays joining Communist guerrillas there who have been hitherto of almost overwhelmingly Chinese descent.

It is not hard to see how the guerrillas manage this rapprochement with Islam on two scores:

The Kuala Lumpur government, despite its strong Malay composition, can be represented as stillsympathetic to the former colonial British. The five-power defense arrangements with Britain, Singapore, Australia, and New Zealand, are used in this argument.

GM Vs. Nader: Microfilm Saga

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. paid $20,000 to regain 19 boxes of microfilmed complaint letters about the Corvair and other Chevrolet products to keep them from falling into Ralph Nader's hands, a salvage dealer said today.

The microfilmed letters from the years 1964 and 1965 had vanished from the Chevrolet Customer Relations Department sometime after 1965 and turned up in a warehouse in downtown Detroit that was purchased by two suburban Wyandotte men new to the salvage business.

The years involved were the height of Nader's campaign against safety defects in the Corvair, which has since gone out of production.

Scrap dealers Kenneth A. Simpson, 31, and Floyd E. Avery, 44, discovered the cardboard boxes marked "GM," among surplus goods they purchased from a Detroit electronic concern in March. They moved the salvage, which cost them $7,500, to their warehouse in Wyandotte, not knowing of the value of the film.

"We just had them sitting on the floor in the warehouse and a customer came in and bought some of the films," Simpson said. "Then he called back and said he wanted to buy them all. We got suspicious because we couldn't figure out why he wanted all of it." Simpson said he did not get the man's name and has not heard from him since.

Simpson said a woman then identifying herself as an associate of Nader called offering to pay for shipping the boxes to Washington.

Avery and Simpson then contacted GM. "We called one day and they sent a man the next day and he made a deal right then, within 45 minutes, and came down in the evening with a cashiers check and a truck," Simpson said. "They were anxious to get them back."

W.E. Ludwick, assistant manager of Chevrolet customer relations, identified the microfilmed letters "as obsolete correspondence which at one time had been processed for destruction in the normal course of events."

Ludwick paid the asking price of 20 cents per microfilm card, or $20,000, Simpson said. "We bargained and he agreed to that figure."

John Cutter, Chevrolet public relations director, said what is puzzling is how the letters, marked for destruction, got into the Detroit warehouse.

He said a sampling of the contents showed they were a "cross section of the type of owner correspondence which is normal in this business." He said there was not an unusual amount of letters dealing with the Corvair.

Avery said Ludwick "told us that if 'Nader ever got these we'd be hurting.' He was really in a panic."

Cutter said he wouldn't describe Chevrolet as in a "panic," but "you could say we were desirous of getting them back to determine what was in them."

Behr To Push Gas Tax For Bike Lanes

SACRAMENTO — Use of gas taxes for bicycle lanes alongside highways, backed for the first time by the legislation by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael.

His measure would end the long stalemate between the state and Marin over putting a bicycle lane on Richardson Bay Bridge as part of its current widening project.

State law now prohibits this use of gas taxes unless local government foots the entire cost. Past attempts to eliminate the prohibition always foundered on the claim by highway forces that such a use would violate the constitutional restriction of gas taxes for highway purposes.

The claim, however, has been disputed for the first time by Legislative Counsel George H. Murphy. In an opinion to Behr, the counsel concluded that such use "would probably be upheld by the courts."

Murphy reasoned that using gas taxes for bicycle lanes could be justified "since bicycle traffic would then be separated from the motor vehicle traffic on the highway and thereby increase the traffic capacity and safety of the highway."

He said that this also was the justification for using gas taxes for pedestrian facilities and railroad grade crossings.

Welfare Pay Delay Seen

Welfare checks may be delayed a few days in delivery each month, starting in May, because of a change in federal policy, Marin County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell said yesterday.

Mitchell said that the federal government has in the past sent welfare money to the county a few days before the end of each month so that the county could mail checks on the last day of the month.

He said that under a new policy the federal money will not arrive until the first of the month so that checks will no longer be received by Marin's 4,500 welfare recipients on the first day of each month.

Federal funds provide half the county's welfare bill.

CO Is Killed In Vietnam

NEW YORK (UPI)—A young conscientious objector serving two years of alternate service with a church missionary organization in Vietnam reportedly was slain last Sunday when Communist troops overran the village where he was working.

A spokesman for the Vietnam Christian Service (VCS) a branch of the World Church Service, said Tuesday that Ted A. Studebaker, 25, of Union, Ohio was killed when North Vietnamese troops took the village of Di Linh, a Central Highlands hamlet about 140 miles northwest of Saigon.

Three other VCS members, including Studebaker's bride escaped the assault unharmed. Studebaker and his wife, Ven Pak Lee of Hong Kong, had been married April 17.

Former Premier Asks Smoking Ban

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Sweden's former premier Tage Erlander, now a member of Parliament, has proposed a total ban on smoking in the new Parliament building.

"The pollution of our environment is serious enough," he said. "At least, we should avoid polluting the place in which we work." Erlander stopped smoking 33 years ago. He admits he had a relapse in 1942 but definitely put away cigarettes after a bad cold.

Wilderness For Farallon Isles Asked

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Richard M. Nixon today asked Congress to designate the Farallon Islands a national wilderness area. The 141-acre preserve was included in a list suggesting 1.8 million acres to be added to the wilderness areas in nine states.

Conservationists recently, had expressed alarm that the group's seven islands would be left open to vandals when the Coast Guard automates its light and removes its small crew. Attempts had been made to have the area declared a state wildlife refuge or to find funds to maintain biologists on the island to protect thousands of nesting waterfowl.

Another California area proposed by Nixon for wilderness status was 721,970 acres in Kings Canyon and Sequoia national parks. Joseph C. Rumberg, regional director for the National Park Service, said today in San Francisco he did not know what effect the proposal would have on the Walt Disney Enterprise plans for a Sierra playground in the area.

Britannia II Out In Pacific

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Rowers John Fairfax and Sylvia Cook were finally headed in the right direction today as they pulled their oars toward Australia 8,000 miles away.

The Coast Guard reported the British adventurers, who shoved off from San Francisco Bay on Monday, were "way out in the Pacific."

Fairfax, 33, who rowed solo across the Atlantic in 1969, and Miss Cook, 32, a London art dealer, were pushed north by winds and currents as they rowed out of the Golden Gate. They got on the right course after reaching Point Reyes, 25 miles northwest of here.

Hiring Consultant For Project Backed

The Southern Marin Sanitary District Advisory Committee last night recommended hiring consultant Dexter Alghren of Sunnyvale as project director for a $190,000 study of Southern Marin sewage disposal proposals.

The hiring request was to be before the Marin Municipal Water District board of directors today, according to William R. Seeger, water district general manager.

Seeger reported to the advisory committee that nearly all the necessary joint powers agreements have been completed for the formation of Improvement District A, created by the water district to study the area's sewage problems.

Seeger said the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board will hold hearings in May on its San Francisco basin plan, which calls for export of all sewage from the District A area. He told the advisory committee of alternatives to the primary proposal — discharge via Tennessee Cove — that included possible discharge areas between Sausalito and Raccoon Strait, offshore of Tiburon, or the Point San Quentin area.

The advisory committee, which represents Mill Valley, Tamalpais Community Services District and the Alto, Almonte, Homestead Valley, Richardson Bay and Sausalito sanitary districts, met a day earlier than its regular meeting date yesterday without notification of the press. Seeger said a staff error in the water district offices was to blame for the lack of notice.

'Massacre' In Vietnam Report Told

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A witness at an informal House group hearing on possible U.S. war crimes claimed today that as an infantryman in Vietnam he saw members of his squad kill 30 Vietnamese women and children at a village in Quang Ngai province in April, 1969.

Danny Spencer Notley of St. Paul, Minn., told the informal House group conducting the hearings he could identify four or five men responsible for "shooting women and kids."

Notley, now a University of Minnesota journalism student, said the shootings took place with the knowledge of a lieutenant colonel but that no punitive action was taken.

He said the men were members of the 1st Squad, Reconnaisance Platoon, E Company, 1st Battalion, 21st Infantry Brigade, Americal Division.

In what Notley said was his first public disclosure of the incident, he said the squad indiscriminately opened fire on the villagers.

Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., called the shooting a "massacre" and said Notley had "my highest respect" for coming forward with the story.

Notley, 23, said he told his wife of the incident only Tuesday night. "This is the first time I've been able to talk about it."

The squad of about 10 men entered the village without encountering hostile fire and began "shooting women and kids —they didn't say anything. They were just shooting."

Notley said: "I was in a state of shock, they killed these 10 people ... It was too traumatic. I couldn't believe it, I was in a state of shock."

Search Launched For Missing Jail Trusty

Marin County sheriff's deputies were searching today for a county jail trusty who walked away from the sheriff's substation at Marin City.

Deputies said Frank Garcia, 22, of Daly City, was washing patrol cars outside the substation when he disappeared Saturday morning.

He has not been seen since.

Garcia was in custody pending a superior court trial on charges of transporting and driving under the influence of methamphetamine.

He was arrested Feb. 19, 1970, on Highway 101 for erratic driving. His car reportedly contained four large plastic bottles of the drug in the next-to-last stage of refinement.

One man arrested with him faces similar charges in Superior Court and a third man arrested was charged only with a misdemeanor in municipal court.

Garcia also faces drug-related charges in San Francisco.

Search For Cabin Cruiser Going

The Coast Guard was searching San Francisco Bay today for a 30-foot cabin cruiser last seen Sunday at the Corinthian Yacht Club in Tiburon.

Coast Guard officers said the boat, described as white with blue trim, was reported overdue last night and a helicopter, and two patrol boats checked harbors throughout the night without finding the boat.

Aboard were Wayland A. Borst, about 70, of Burlingame, and Beverly Greenfield, whose age and address were not known.

Officers said that the boat was believed headed for Coyote Point Marina on the Peninsula. The name of the vessel was not known by the Coast Guard.

Engaged in the search today were a helicopter, air cushion vehicle and two patrol boats.

Cal-Vet Bill Makes Gain

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Bills allowing wives of Vietnam prisoners of war to obtain CalVet loans and allowing loans for mobile homes were approved today by the Assembly Government Administration Committee.

The measures by Assemblyman Ernest N. Mobley, RSanger, were sent to the Ways and Means Committee.

The first bill provides that the wife of a man who entered the service while in California and who lived here for six months immediately before and who is a prisoner of war or designated missing in action can take out a loan.

The second allows loans of up to $12,500 for buying mobile homes if the veteran owns the property on which the home is situated.

But the committee rejected a bill by Assemblyman Jim Keysor, D-Granada Hills, to allow the Department of Veterans Affairs to defer CalVet loan payments on homes damaged by earthquakes. The department said it already had such authority.

Funds To Save School Lunches

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation guaranteeing California will not lose $20 million in federal school lunch funds was approved today by the Senate Education Committee.

The measure by Sen. George R. Moscone, D-San Francisco, was sent to the Finance Committee despite Republican objections its provisions were unclear as to how many youngsters would qualify for the program.

Moscone said the measure provides $1.2 million in state funds to match the federal money, but also deletes a requirement that a child be eligible for Aid to Families with Dependent Children in order to qualify for a free or reduced-price lunch.

Death Ruled As Auto Fatality

The death of a Marin City man Monday was accidental, the Marin County Coroner's office reported today.

Will Wilson, 74, died when his car careened down an embankment and into a tree in his front yard at 100 Waldo Court.

It was believed at first that he may have suffered a heart attack, but Coroner's Investigator Keither Craig said today that an autopsy had determined Wilson died of injuries suffered in the accident.

He was the sixth person to die in an automobile accident this year compared to 14 such fatalities in the same period last year.

FRUSTRATION OF TIMES

Two Seattle men, Jim Youngren and Bob McDonald, spent $160 to erect this billboard, expressing the frustrations of many who are leaving the Seattle area to find work elsewhere. The loss of the SST and cutbacks in the space program have brought financial hardship to the area.

The Kuala Lumpur government, despite its strong Malay composition, can be represented as stillsympathetic to the former colonial British. The five-power defense arrangements with Britain, Singapore, Australia, and New Zealand, are used in this argument.

GM Vs. Nader: Microfilm Saga

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. paid $20,000 to regain 19 boxes of microfilmed complaint letters about the Corvair and other Chevrolet products to keep them from falling into Ralph Nader's hands, a salvage dealer said today.

The microfilmed letters from the years 1964 and 1965 had vanished from the Chevrolet Customer Relations Department sometime after 1965 and turned up in a warehouse in downtown Detroit that was purchased by two suburban Wyandotte men new to the salvage business.

The years involved were the height of Nader's campaign against safety defects in the Corvair, which has since gone out of production.

Scrap dealers Kenneth A. Simpson, 31, and Floyd E. Avery, 44, discovered the cardboard boxes marked "GM," among surplus goods they purchased from a Detroit electronic concern in March. They moved the salvage, which cost them $7,500, to their warehouse in Wyandotte, not knowing of the value of the film.

"We just had them sitting on the floor in the warehouse and a customer came in and bought some of the films," Simpson said. "Then he called back and said he wanted to buy them all. We got suspicious because we couldn't figure out why he wanted all of it." Simpson said he did not get the man's name and has not heard from him since.

Simpson said a woman then identifying herself as an associate of Nader called offering to pay for shipping the boxes to Washington.

Avery and Simpson then contacted GM. "We called one day and they sent a man the next day and he made a deal right then, within 45 minutes, and came down in the evening with a cashiers check and a truck," Simpson said. "They were anxious to get them back."

W.E. Ludwick, assistant manager of Chevrolet customer relations, identified the microfilmed letters "as obsolete correspondence which at one time had been processed for destruction in the normal course of events."

Ludwick paid the asking price of 20 cents per microfilm card, or $20,000, Simpson said. "We bargained and he agreed to that figure."

John Cutter, Chevrolet public relations director, said what is puzzling is how the letters, marked for destruction, got into the Detroit warehouse.

He said a sampling of the contents showed they were a "cross section of the type of owner correspondence which is normal in this business." He said there was not an unusual amount of letters dealing with the Corvair.

Avery said Ludwick "told us that if 'Nader ever got these we'd be hurting.' He was really in a panic."

Cutter said he wouldn't describe Chevrolet as in a "panic," but "you could say we were desirous of getting them back to determine what was in them."

Behr To Push Gas Tax For Bike Lanes

SACRAMENTO — Use of gas taxes for bicycle lanes alongside highways, backed for the first time by the legislation by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael.

His measure would end the long stalemate between the state and Marin over putting a bicycle lane on Richardson Bay Bridge as part of its current widening project.

State law now prohibits this use of gas taxes unless local government foots the entire cost. Past attempts to eliminate the prohibition always foundered on the claim by highway forces that such a use would violate the constitutional restriction of gas taxes for highway purposes.

The claim, however, has been disputed for the first time by Legislative Counsel George H. Murphy. In an opinion to Behr, the counsel concluded that such use "would probably be upheld by the courts."

Murphy reasoned that using gas taxes for bicycle lanes could be justified "since bicycle traffic would then be separated from the motor vehicle traffic on the highway and thereby increase the traffic capacity and safety of the highway."

He said that this also was the justification for using gas taxes for pedestrian facilities and railroad grade crossings.

Welfare Pay Delay Seen

Welfare checks may be delayed a few days in delivery each month, starting in May, because of a change in federal policy, Marin County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell said yesterday.

Mitchell said that the federal government has in the past sent welfare money to the county a few days before the end of each month so that the county could mail checks on the last day of the month.

He said that under a new policy the federal money will not arrive until the first of the month so that checks will no longer be received by Marin's 4,500 welfare recipients on the first day of each month.

Federal funds provide half the county's welfare bill.

Death Ruled As Auto Fatality

The death of a Marin City man Monday was accidental, the Marin County Coroner's office reported today.

Will Wilson, 74, died when his car careened down an embankment and into a tree in his front yard at 100 Waldo Court.

It was believed at first that he may have suffered a heart attack, but Coroner's Investigator Keither Craig said today that an autopsy had determined Wilson died of injuries suffered in the accident.

He was the sixth person to die in an automobile accident this year compared to 14 such fatalities in the same period last year.

CO Is Killed In Vietnam

NEW YORK (UPI)—A young conscientious objector serving two years of alternate service with a church missionary organization in Vietnam reportedly was slain last Sunday when Communist troops overran the village where he was working.

A spokesman for the Vietnam Christian Service (VCS) a branch of the World Church Service, said Tuesday that Ted A. Studebaker, 25, of Union, Ohio was killed when North Vietnamese troops took the village of Di Linh, a Central Highlands hamlet about 140 miles northwest of Saigon.

Three other VCS members, including Studebaker's bride escaped the assault unharmed. Studebaker and his wife, Ven Pak Lee of Hong Kong, had been married April 17.

Former Premier Asks Smoking Ban

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Sweden's former premier Tage Erlander, now a member of Parliament, has proposed a total ban on smoking in the new Parliament building.

"The pollution of our environment is serious enough," he said. "At least, we should avoid polluting the place in which we work." Erlander stopped smoking 33 years ago. He admits he had a relapse in 1942 but definitely put away cigarettes after a bad cold.

Wilderness For Farallon Isles Asked

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Richard M. Nixon today asked Congress to designate the Farallon Islands a national wilderness area. The 141-acre preserve was included in a list suggesting 1.8 million acres to be added to the wilderness areas in nine states.

Conservationists recently, had expressed alarm that the group's seven islands would be left open to vandals when the Coast Guard automates its light and removes its small crew. Attempts had been made to have the area declared a state wildlife refuge or to find funds to maintain biologists on the island to protect thousands of nesting waterfowl.

Another California area proposed by Nixon for wilderness status was 721,970 acres in Kings Canyon and Sequoia national parks. Joseph C. Rumberg, regional director for the National Park Service, said today in San Francisco he did not know what effect the proposal would have on the Walt Disney Enterprise plans for a Sierra playground in the area.

Britannia II Out In Pacific

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Rowers John Fairfax and Sylvia Cook were finally headed in the right direction today as they pulled their oars toward Australia 8,000 miles away.

The Coast Guard reported the British adventurers, who shoved off from San Francisco Bay on Monday, were "way out in the Pacific."

Fairfax, 33, who rowed solo across the Atlantic in 1969, and Miss Cook, 32, a London art dealer, were pushed north by winds and currents as they rowed out of the Golden Gate. They got on the right course after reaching Point Reyes, 25 miles northwest of here.

Hiring Consultant For Project Backed

The Southern Marin Sanitary District Advisory Committee last night recommended hiring consultant Dexter Alghren of Sunnyvale as project director for a $190,000 study of Southern Marin sewage disposal proposals.

The hiring request was to be before the Marin Municipal Water District board of directors today, according to William R. Seeger, water district general manager.

Seeger reported to the advisory committee that nearly all the necessary joint powers agreements have been completed for the formation of Improvement District A, created by the water district to study the area's sewage problems.

Seeger said the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board will hold hearings in May on its San Francisco basin plan, which calls for export of all sewage from the District A area. He told the advisory committee of alternatives to the primary proposal — discharge via Tennessee Cove — that included possible discharge areas between Sausalito and Raccoon Strait, offshore of Tiburon, or the Point San Quentin area.

The advisory committee, which represents Mill Valley, Tamalpais Community Services District and the Alto, Almonte, Homestead Valley, Richardson Bay and Sausalito sanitary districts, met a day earlier than its regular meeting date yesterday without notification of the press. Seeger said a staff error in the water district offices was to blame for the lack of notice.

'Massacre' In Vietnam Report Told

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A witness at an informal House group hearing on possible U.S. war crimes claimed today that as an infantryman in Vietnam he saw members of his squad kill 30 Vietnamese women and children at a village in Quang Ngai province in April, 1969.

Danny Spencer Notley of St. Paul, Minn., told the informal House group conducting the hearings he could identify four or five men responsible for "shooting women and kids."

Notley, now a University of Minnesota journalism student, said the shootings took place with the knowledge of a lieutenant colonel but that no punitive action was taken.

He said the men were members of the 1st Squad, Reconnaisance Platoon, E Company, 1st Battalion, 21st Infantry Brigade, Americal Division.

In what Notley said was his first public disclosure of the incident, he said the squad indiscriminately opened fire on the villagers.

Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., called the shooting a "massacre" and said Notley had "my highest respect" for coming forward with the story.

Notley, 23, said he told his wife of the incident only Tuesday night. "This is the first time I've been able to talk about it."

The squad of about 10 men entered the village without encountering hostile fire and began "shooting women and kids —they didn't say anything. They were just shooting."

Notley said: "I was in a state of shock, they killed these 10 people ... It was too traumatic. I couldn't believe it, I was in a state of shock."

Funds To Save School Lunches

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation guaranteeing California will not lose $20 million in federal school lunch funds was approved today by the Senate Education Committee.

The measure by Sen. George R. Moscone, D-San Francisco, was sent to the Finance Committee despite Republican objections its provisions were unclear as to how many youngsters would qualify for the program.

Moscone said the measure provides $1.2 million in state funds to match the federal money, but also deletes a requirement that a child be eligible for Aid to Families with Dependent Children in order to qualify for a free or reduced-price lunch.

Search Launched For Missing Jail Trusty

Marin County sheriff's deputies were searching today for a county jail trusty who walked away from the sheriff's substation at Marin City.

Deputies said Frank Garcia, 22, of Daly City, was washing patrol cars outside the substation when he disappeared Saturday morning.

He has not been seen since.

Garcia was in custody pending a superior court trial on charges of transporting and driving under the influence of methamphetamine.

He was arrested Feb. 19, 1970, on Highway 101 for erratic driving. His car reportedly contained four large plastic bottles of the drug in the next-to-last stage of refinement.

One man arrested with him faces similar charges in Superior Court and a third man arrested was charged only with a misdemeanor in municipal court.

Garcia also faces drug-related charges in San Francisco.

Cal-Vet Bill Makes Gain

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Bills allowing wives of Vietnam prisoners of war to obtain CalVet loans and allowing loans for mobile homes were approved today by the Assembly Government Administration Committee.

The measures by Assemblyman Ernest N. Mobley, RSanger, were sent to the Ways and Means Committee.

The first bill provides that the wife of a man who entered the service while in California and who lived here for six months immediately before and who is a prisoner of war or designated missing in action can take out a loan.

The second allows loans of up to $12,500 for buying mobile homes if the veteran owns the property on which the home is situated.

But the committee rejected a bill by Assemblyman Jim Keysor, D-Granada Hills, to allow the Department of Veterans Affairs to defer CalVet loan payments on homes damaged by earthquakes. The department said it already had such authority.

Search For Cabin Cruiser Going

The Coast Guard was searching San Francisco Bay today for a 30-foot cabin cruiser last seen Sunday at the Corinthian Yacht Club in Tiburon.

Coast Guard officers said the boat, described as white with blue trim, was reported overdue last night and a helicopter, and two patrol boats checked harbors throughout the night without finding the boat.

Aboard were Wayland A. Borst, about 70, of Burlingame, and Beverly Greenfield, whose age and address were not known.

Officers said that the boat was believed headed for Coyote Point Marina on the Peninsula. The name of the vessel was not known by the Coast Guard.

Engaged in the search today were a helicopter, air cushion vehicle and two patrol boats.

FRUSTRATION OF TIMES

Two Seattle men, Jim Youngren and Bob McDonald, spent $160 to erect this billboard, expressing the frustrations of many who are leaving the Seattle area to find work elsewhere. The loss of the SST and cutbacks in the space program have brought financial hardship to the area.

Sen. Jackson Rises To FBI's Defense

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)—Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said Tuesday "the FBI never makes a move without legal sanction" but called for a congressional watchdog committee to monitor its activities.

Jackson was here for a series of speaking engagements as part of his self-proclaimed status as "an official non-candidate" for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Jackson gave his appraisal of the current controversy over Federal Bureau of Investigation activities during a news conference on mass demonstrations and efforts to protect national security.

"The best way to deal with internal security is to rely on the professionalism of the FBI," Jackson said. "I think the FBI has a responsibility to keep track of the extremists in our society. My definition of an extremist is one who would take the law into his own hands —the Ku Klux Klan, the Minutemen, the Weathermen and others of the fringe left groups."

He suggested, however, that in view of recent criticism of the FBI a joint House-Senate committee be formed to hear charges about the organization.

He said the committee could function permanently as a congressional monitor of FBI activities much as a joint congressional committee serves as watchdog on the Central Intelligence Agency. Jackson serves on that committee.

Jackson said, "The FBI never makes a move without legal sanctions" but conceded that the agency has made some mistakes. He said these were in the area of "public statements more than in substance."

He said retention of J. Edgar Hoover as head of the FBI was a decision to be made entirely by the President based on performance, not age.

Jackson said he is concerned about an increasing tendency of Americans to "take to the streets" to voice their grievances.

He said such actions "make for political instability which erode our free institutions and could lead toward totalitarianism." He added, "Let us never become a banana republic."

New Aide For Crime Fighting

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Attorney General John N. Mitchell today appointed Dean Pohlenz, former administrative assistant to Sen. Roman L. Hruska R-Neb., to a newly created position at the Law Enforcement Assistance Association (LEAA).

Pohlenz, 50, is the second Hruska aide to be put on the crime fighting agency created by the 1968 Safe Streets Act to channel federal aid to state and local law enforcement agenes.

Mitchell named Pohlenz to be assistant administrator, in charge of LEAA's office of Public Information, Office of Intergovernmental Liaison, and Office of Special Projects.

More Support For Mills' Nomination

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Reps. John C. Watts, D-Ky., and Al Ullman, D-Ore., have added their support to the handful of congressmen backing Rep. Wilbur D. Mills for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972.

Mills, 61, has said he is not a candidate and would withdraw his name from the New Hampshire primary if it is entered there.

Pentagon Show, Scott Nominated

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—"The Selling of the Pentagon," the controversial documentary, and George C. Scott, the controversial actor, were nominated Tuesday for Emmy awards for excellence in television.

The National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences announced a total of 31 nominations in the categories of news documentaries and culture programs. NBC garnered the most with 14 and CBS was second with 11.

"The Selling of the Pentagon," which covered the public relations activities of the military, was nominated for outstanding achievement in news documentary programming.

The program became a political controversy when it was criticized by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew. It now is the object of a congressional investigation.

Scott was nominated for his narration of "A Man Called Lombardi" in the cultural documentary category. He was nominated earlier in the entertainment division of the Emmy awards for his performance in "The Price."

Scott refused to accept the movie Oscar for best actor of 1970 for his role in "Patton." He called the Academy Awards show a "parade of meat."

The news and cultural awards will be presented May 7 and the entertainment Emmys on May 9.

Sen. Jackson Rises To FBI's Defense

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)—Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said Tuesday "the FBI never makes a move without legal sanction" but called for a congressional watchdog committee to monitor its activities.

Jackson was here for a series of speaking engagements as part of his self-proclaimed status as "an official non-candidate" for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Jackson gave his appraisal of the current controversy over Federal Bureau of Investigation activities during a news conference on mass demonstrations and efforts to protect national security.

"The best way to deal with internal security is to rely on the professionalism of the FBI," Jackson said. "I think the FBI has a responsibility to keep track of the extremists in our society. My definition of an extremist is one who would take the law into his own hands —the Ku Klux Klan, the Minutemen, the Weathermen and others of the fringe left groups."

He suggested, however, that in view of recent criticism of the FBI a joint House-Senate committee be formed to hear charges about the organization.

He said the committee could function permanently as a congressional monitor of FBI activities much as a joint congressional committee serves as watchdog on the Central Intelligence Agency. Jackson serves on that committee.

Jackson said, "The FBI never makes a move without legal sanctions" but conceded that the agency has made some mistakes. He said these were in the area of "public statements more than in substance."

He said retention of J. Edgar Hoover as head of the FBI was a decision to be made entirely by the President based on performance, not age.

Jackson said he is concerned about an increasing tendency of Americans to "take to the streets" to voice their grievances.

He said such actions "make for political instability which erode our free institutions and could lead toward totalitarianism." He added, "Let us never become a banana republic."

New Aide For Crime Fighting

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Attorney General John N. Mitchell today appointed Dean Pohlenz, former administrative assistant to Sen. Roman L. Hruska R-Neb., to a newly created position at the Law Enforcement Assistance Association (LEAA).

Pohlenz, 50, is the second Hruska aide to be put on the crime fighting agency created by the 1968 Safe Streets Act to channel federal aid to state and local law enforcement agenes.

Mitchell named Pohlenz to be assistant administrator, in charge of LEAA's office of Public Information, Office of Intergovernmental Liaison, and Office of Special Projects.

More Support For Mills' Nomination

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Reps. John C. Watts, D-Ky., and Al Ullman, D-Ore., have added their support to the handful of congressmen backing Rep. Wilbur D. Mills for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972.

Mills, 61, has said he is not a candidate and would withdraw his name from the New Hampshire primary if it is entered there.

Pentagon Show, Scott Nominated

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—"The Selling of the Pentagon," the controversial documentary, and George C. Scott, the controversial actor, were nominated Tuesday for Emmy awards for excellence in television.

The National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences announced a total of 31 nominations in the categories of news documentaries and culture programs. NBC garnered the most with 14 and CBS was second with 11.

"The Selling of the Pentagon," which covered the public relations activities of the military, was nominated for outstanding achievement in news documentary programming.

The program became a political controversy when it was criticized by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew. It now is the object of a congressional investigation.

Scott was nominated for his narration of "A Man Called Lombardi" in the cultural documentary category. He was nominated earlier in the entertainment division of the Emmy awards for his performance in "The Price."

Scott refused to accept the movie Oscar for best actor of 1970 for his role in "Patton." He called the Academy Awards show a "parade of meat."

The news and cultural awards will be presented May 7 and the entertainment Emmys on May 9.

Mays' Single Outdoes Aaron's Big Homer

ATLANTA (UPI) —Hank Aaron got his 600th homer against the San Francisco Giants but it was Willie Mays' 3,087th career base hit that made the difference.

Mays, who will be 40 on May 6, singled home the winning run in the 10th inning with his fourth hit of the game Tuesday night to break a tie and send the Giants off to a 6-5 win over the Atlanta Braves.

Aaron, three years younger than Mays, teed off on starter Gaylord Perry in the third inning for a two-run homer that gave Atlanta a 4-3 lead. That put Aaron 114 homers behind Babe Ruth and 33 in back of Mays on the alltime list.

Only two of Aaron's homers have been off Perry. However, Giant pitchers also have surrendered Aaron's 500th homer (Mike McCormick) and 550th (Ron Bryant).

San Francisco unleashed a 14hit attack on three Atlanta pitchers but stranded 13 runners. With two on and two out in the 10th, Mays rifled a pitch off loser Bob Priddy into right field to score Hal Lanier with the deciding run.

In the bottom of the 10th with two out and a runner on first, Jerry Johnson took over for winner John Cumberland (2-0), and got Earl Williams to force the runner at second to end the game as a sigh of relief rippled through the Giants' radio listening audience.

In addition to Mays, a couple of other bright spots for the Giants were the return to the lineup of outfielder Bobby Bonds and the long-range hitting of first baseman Willie McCovey.

Bonds was at his regular post in right field after being sidelined for a week with a sprained ankle. He collected two singles and drove in a run.

McCovey drilled his third homer of the season in the fifth to tie the score 4-4 and pushed the Giants ahead 5-4 in the seventh with a sacrifice fly to score Chris Speier. Speier led off the inning with a single and raced to third on a single by Mays.

In tonight's second game of the series, rookie righthander Steve Stone, who blanked Pittsburgh in his last outing, goes against former Oakland A's hurler Jim Nash (1-1) of Atlanta.

HISTORIC SWING — Atlanta Braves superstar Henry Aaron blasted the 600th home run of his major league career last night before a hometown crowd of 13,494. The blow, a 350 foot shot down the left field line, came off San Francisco's Gaylord Perry with a man on in the third inning. The Giants spoiled it, however, by winning, 6-5. (UPI Telephoto)

A'S FALL

Quiet Win For Orioles

OAKLAND (UPI) —Diego Segui and the Oakland A's made a lot of noise and commotion but it was the Baltimore Orioles who quietly won the game.

With Dave Johnson hitting and lefty Jim McNally pitching, the Orioles beat the A's 6-2 Tuesday night to end Segui's complete-game string at three before 5,502 chilled fans at the Oakland Coliseum.

Johnson drove in four runs with a double and a single to hit safely in all 16 games in which he has played. That puts him only four off the club record held by Bob Nieman. Johnson is hitting .354 and leading the world champions with 16 runs batted in.

Segui was wild while absorbing his first loss after three straight wins. He hit Frank Robinson on the left wrist and Brooks Robinson in the back in the third inning when the Orioles bunched three runs off him.

Frank Robinson may be sidelined for a few games. He retired from the game and had the wrist x-rayed but Brooks stayed in.

Rookie outfielder Angel Mangual provided the loudest noise for the A's with his bat by stroking his first major league homer off McNally in the fourth following a double by Tommy Davis.

Other than that, McNally, a 24-game winner last year, had little trouble in running his 1971 record to 4-0 with a sevenhitter.

Brooks Robinson set an alltime major league assists record in the third inning when he threw out a runner to surpass the mark of 4,322 held by Eddie Mathews.

The loss for the A's was only their third in the last 16 games.

In the third game of the series tonight, Mike Cuellar (10) of the Orioles throws against Jim Hunter (2-2).

ENROUTE TO VICTORY

Jerry Suyderhoud, Drake High School's No. 1 tennis player, shot a forehand smash back at Joe Lusk of San Marin yesterday in a Marin County Athletic League match in Novato. Suyderhoud blanked his opponent, 6-0, 6-0, and led Drake to a 5-0 win. See high school tennis story page 34.

Kids Get Chance At Ice Hockey

With the Stanley Cup playoffs in progress, I imagine some of you youngsters out there in readerland have taken more interest in ice hockey.

Thus, this is the ripe opportunity to tell you about the Marin Junior Hockey Club that is interested in enlisting the membership of some young blood in the 6 through 10 age bracket.

If you join this spring or summer, says Coach Charlie Crawford, you'll be ready for action during the inter-club competition which will start next fall.

You needn't be an experienced skater, says Crawford. "Just show up at the Raydine Ice Arena in Corte Madera any Sunday from 5 to 6 p.m.," he advised. Cost is $1.50 per week with skate rental available at 40 cents. There's also a summer insurance fee of $2.50. No equipment is needed as the club provides helmets and sticks.

"Non-skaters learn to skate in a few weeks," Crawford explained. The club's series of junior teams, with more than 85 boys enrolled, played numerous games throughout Northern California last season.

And, if you practice hard to perfect your game, kids, you'll be in line for some glory. Last season, for example, the Marin Club had three boys who were awarded trophies from the Northern California League. They were Tim O'Hara of the Squirt Division, top scorer; Pat McPartlan and Scott Anderson, both in the Pee Wee Division.

The local boys who garnered All-Star status included Jeff Southern, Tim O'Hara, Chris Bonbright and Dan Quan in the Squirts Division, McPartlan, Anderson, Shaun Mitchell and Mike Long in the PeeWee class and Gene Presley and Rob Long in the Bantams.

GOOD NEWS from the Houston Astros organization. Novato's John Dolinsek has moved up to the Triple A club at Oklahoma City and is the starting left fielder.

An All-American at Arizona State College in 1969, Dolinsek started his professional career on a Class A team, last year graduated to Double A and now is Triple A. Next, the Astrodome!

Incidentally, Dolinsek became a proud papa last month when his wife, Sue, presented him with a son. They've been sweethearts since Novato High School days.

HAL FISCHER, former Corte Madera resident now living in Sonoma County, has been selected as the United States representative to the World Technical Committee which reviews international basketball rules, regulations and competitions for more than 150 nations.

Fischer recently coached the Armed Forces team to its fourth consecutive National Amateur Athletic Union championship and fifth in the last six years.

Hal, sports director at the Presidio of San Francisco, is internationally known as a basketball expert.

2-1 Win For Tars Of Marin

Supported by a pair of unearned runs, Dennis Bueler pitched the College of Marin Tars to a 2-1 victory over De Anza Junior College yesterday in a Camino Norte Conference baseball game in Cupertino.

The victory, in the first game of the third and final round robin of the season, lifted Marin's record to 10-5, and kept them in third place behind Santa Rosa and West Valley.

Larry Brazda, the leading hitter in the CNC, increased his average to above .450 with a pair of infield singles, the first of which led to the first run of the game. Brazda stole second, went to third after Steve Henrickson walked on an infield single by Jim Peters, and came home on a throwing error by the Dons' pitcher.

Henrickson scored moments later on a wild pitch, and Bueler had all the runs he would need. The redheaded righthander struck out seven and walked three and allowed only six hits in his second victor this season over De Anza.

Wrong Way Colt Shakes Up The Fans

ALBANY, Calif. (UPI)—A wrong-way colt who had thrown his jockey and bolted through a temporary inner rail and out again caused a stir Tuesday at Golden Gate Fields.

At the start of the seventh race, Findal broke from post position No. 3 directly across the path of French Jacket and Uncle Mark. Findal then broke through the inner rail onto the infield and threw apprentice Gary McSwan who was not hurt.

As six horses headed up the backstretch, Findal made his way out through the hole in the rail and began sprinting towards the onrushing field.

With announcer Tod Creed shouting warnings and valets and grooms waving their arms, they managed to keep the errant colt toward the outside of the oncoming pack.

Jockey Dale Long, aboard winner Kaweah Kid, and Mel Lewis aboard My Day, who finished third, spotted the oncoming horse as they neared the sixteenth pole.

"We just kept on riding, hoping he wouldn't veer over toward the rail," said Lewis. "If he had, there would have been a hell of a wreck."

NBA Playoff Game On TV

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Admitting "nobody's going to hand anything to us," Milwaukee Bucks coach Larry Costello felt confident about winning game No. 3 tonight in the National Basketball Association finals against the Baltimore Bullets.

"It could be the knockout blow. I'm not saying it will be, but it could be," Costello said Tuesday. "Heck, if we lost they could square it at 2-2 Friday and we'd be right back where we started."

The game will be televised by ABC (Channels 7, 11, 13) beginning at 6 p.m.

Very Tight Race At Halfway Mark

The Marin County Athletic League baseball season reached its halfway point yesterday, and when the last of the year's first round of games was over, the top four teams were separated by just one and one-half games.

Marin Catholic High School's Vince Bormolini personally tightened up the race when he tripled home Tom Olson in the top of the eighth with the run that gave the Wildcats a 3-1 victory over Terra Linda at Albert Park.

Both teams emerged with 4-2 records, tied for third place.Taking over the second spot from Terra Linda was the MCAL's Cinderella team, the Redwood Giants. They demolished last place Tamalpais in Mill Valley, 11-4 for their fifth victory in seven games.

The Giants remained a full game back of league leading Novato, winners by a 5-4 count over San Rafael in Novato. In the day's other game, Drake edged San Marin, 3-2 in nine innings in San Anselmo.

For a while it looked as though Marin Catholic and Terra Linda might have to settle for their second tie games of the season; with Olson at bat and one out in the eighth, Albert Park's sprinkler system decided to turn on in left field, and it was over half an hour before a helpful fan could find the handle and shut it off.

The delay must have been too much for Terra Linda pitcher Scott Seefeldt, who up until then had allowed only two hits. After Olson got aboard on an error and Don Bianchini popped up, Bormolini ripped his triple and scored seconds later on a clean single by shortstop Steve Sherry.

Olson set the Trojans down in order in the bottom of the eighth, thereby recording his fourth complete game on the mound this season. It was his second win.

Terra Linda's only run came on the first hit of the game off Olson, an off field home run by Bill Sherbert to lead off the fifth. The blow cleared the left-field fence at a distance of 350 feet.

Redwood's Giants exploded for 14 hits, but only three of them came in the second inning, when they scored six times to put the game out of reach. Tam's defense collapsed in that frame, commiting four errors.

Sophomore second baseman Daryl Edralin and junior third baseman Bob Brown each collected three hits in the rout, while the only live bat for the Indians belonged to catcher Bill Rudolph, who doubled and tripled in three at bats.

John Moresco went all the way for the win, allowing only one earned run while striking out eight.

Randy Jackson's two-run homer in the first inning and the late inning relief work of pitcher Dave Judnick helped the Novato Hornets edge San Rafael for their sixth win of the season against a single loss. The Hornets scored all their runs in the first two innings, and then held on while the Bulldogs picked away at their lead with single runs in the sixth and seventh.

Curt Flood In Europe After Quitting Nats

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Curt Flood who was showing his age in a $110,000 comeback effort with the Washington Senators, is done with baseball today for the second season in a row because of "very serious personal problems mounting every day."

A half an hour after game time when he was supposed to have been suited up for the Senators, Flood, an all-star outfielder only two seasons ago, was aboard an airliner in New York City Tuesday night enroute to Europe with a one-way ticket.

He took with him a .200 batting average which had reduced him to benchwarmer status with the Senators and the genuine regrets of owner Robert E. Short and Manager Ted Williams that the former St. Louis Cardinal suddenly called it quits again. The 33-year-old player's departure for Barcelona caught the players and the front office by total surprise.

Mays' Single Outdoes Aaron's Big Homer

ATLANTA (UPI) —Hank Aaron got his 600th homer against the San Francisco Giants but it was Willie Mays' 3,087th career base hit that made the difference.

Mays, who will be 40 on May 6, singled home the winning run in the 10th inning with his fourth hit of the game Tuesday night to break a tie and send the Giants off to a 6-5 win over the Atlanta Braves.

Aaron, three years younger than Mays, teed off on starter Gaylord Perry in the third inning for a two-run homer that gave Atlanta a 4-3 lead. That put Aaron 114 homers behind Babe Ruth and 33 in back of Mays on the alltime list.

Only two of Aaron's homers have been off Perry. However, Giant pitchers also have surrendered Aaron's 500th homer (Mike McCormick) and 550th (Ron Bryant).

McCovey drilled his third homer of the season in the fifth to tie the score 4-4 and pushed the Giants ahead 5-4 in the seventh with a sacrifice fly to score Chris Speier. Speier led off the inning with a single and raced to third on a single by Mays.

In tonight's second game of the series, rookie righthander Steve Stone, who blanked Pittsburgh in his last outing, goes against former Oakland A's hurler Jim Nash (1-1) of Atlanta.

Brooks Robinson set an alltime major league assists record in the third inning when he threw out a runner to surpass the mark of 4,322 held by Eddie Mathews.

The loss for the A's was only their third in the last 16 games.

In the third game of the series tonight, Mike Cuellar (10) of the Orioles throws against Jim Hunter (2-2).

NBA Playoff Game On TV

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Admitting "nobody's going to hand anything to us," Milwaukee Bucks coach Larry Costello felt confident about winning game No. 3 tonight in the National Basketball Association finals against the Baltimore Bullets.

"It could be the knockout blow. I'm not saying it will be, but it could be," Costello said Tuesday. "Heck, if we lost they could square it at 2-2 Friday and we'd be right back where we started."

The game will be televised by ABC (Channels 7, 11, 13) beginning at 6 p.m.

Very Tight Race At Halfway Mark

The Marin County Athletic League baseball season reached its halfway point yesterday, and when the last of the year's first round of games was over, the top four teams were separated by just one and one-half games.

Marin Catholic High School's Vince Bormolini personally tightened up the race when he tripled home Tom Olson in the top of the eighth with the run that gave the Wildcats a 3-1 victory over Terra Linda at Albert Park.

Both teams emerged with 4-2 records, tied for third place.Taking over the second spot from Terra Linda was the MCAL's Cinderella team, the Redwood Giants. They demolished last place Tamalpais in Mill Valley, 11-4 for their fifth victory in seven games.

The Giants remained a full game back of league leading Novato, winners by a 5-4 count over San Rafael in Novato. In the day's other game, Drake edged San Marin, 3-2 in nine innings in San Anselmo.

For a while it looked as though Marin Catholic and Terra Linda might have to settle for their second tie games of the season; with Olson at bat and one out in the eighth, Albert Park's sprinkler system decided to turn on in left field, and it was over half an hour before a helpful fan could find the handle and shut it off.

The delay must have been too much for Terra Linda pitcher Scott Seefeldt, who up until then had allowed only two hits. After Olson got aboard on an error and Don Bianchini popped up, Bormolini ripped his triple and scored seconds later on a clean single by shortstop Steve Sherry.

Olson set the Trojans down in order in the bottom of the eighth, thereby recording his fourth complete game on the mound this season. It was his second win.

Terra Linda's only run came on the first hit of the game off Olson, an off field home run by Bill Sherbert to lead off the fifth. The blow cleared the left-field fence at a distance of 350 feet.

Redwood's Giants exploded for 14 hits, but only three of them came in the second inning, when they scored six times to put the game out of reach. Tam's defense collapsed in that frame, commiting four errors.

Sophomore second baseman Daryl Edralin and junior third baseman Bob Brown each collected three hits in the rout, while the only live bat for the Indians belonged to catcher Bill Rudolph, who doubled and tripled in three at bats.

John Moresco went all the way for the win, allowing only one earned run while striking out eight.

Randy Jackson's two-run homer in the first inning and the late inning relief work of pitcher Dave Judnick helped the Novato Hornets edge San Rafael for their sixth win of the season against a single loss. The Hornets scored all their runs in the first two innings, and then held on while the Bulldogs picked away at their lead with single runs in the sixth and seventh.

Curt Flood In Europe After Quitting Nats

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Curt Flood who was showing his age in a $110,000 comeback effort with the Washington Senators, is done with baseball today for the second season in a row because of "very serious personal problems mounting every day."

A half an hour after game time when he was supposed to have been suited up for the Senators, Flood, an all-star outfielder only two seasons ago, was aboard an airliner in New York City Tuesday night enroute to Europe with a one-way ticket.

He took with him a .200 batting average which had reduced him to benchwarmer status with the Senators and the genuine regrets of owner Robert E. Short and Manager Ted Williams that the former St. Louis Cardinal suddenly called it quits again. The 33-year-old player's departure for Barcelona caught the players and the front office by total surprise.

ENROUTE TO VICTORY

Jerry Suyderhoud, Drake High School's No. 1 tennis player, shot a forehand smash back at Joe Lusk of San Marin yesterday in a Marin County Athletic League match in Novato. Suyderhoud blanked his opponent, 6-0, 6-0, and led Drake to a 5-0 win. See high school tennis story page 34.

Tam Track Team Keeps Rolling On

San Rafael High School knocked off Redwood High in a battle for second place in the Marin County Athletic League track race yesterday, while Tamalpais continued toward an undefeated season.

Tamalpais defeated San Marin 77-52 and San Rafael outscored Redwood 72-64.

In other MCAL meets yesterday, Terra Linda defeated Marin Catholic, 81-55 and Novato outscored Drake, 74-52.

Getting double wins from Paul Crovo in the 100-yard dash and long jump and Jim Grigg in the triple jump and 220, San Rafael ran its record to 5-1, while dropping Redwood to 4-2. A season mark was set by San Rafael's Doug Puskar in the discus with a heave of 152-4, and Redwood's Kip Kermoian equaled the best pole vault effort to date with a 12-6 leap.

Terra Linda moved into a tie for third with the win over Marin Catholic. Dave Johnson and Mark Lowey each grabbed two victories to pace the win, while Don Nelson was a double winner for the Wildcats.

Novato bested Drake in a battle of winless teams despite a triple win by the Pirates' Tom Thompson. He took the 100, 220 and long jump. The Hornets did not have a double winner.

MCAL, upped his average with a double and a single in three trips to the plate. And Jackson, also one of the league's top hitters, slapped a single to go with his homer.

With one out in the ninth, John Loane singled for Drake, and moved to second on a walk. Damian Casalnuovo expertly dropped a sacrifice bunt to move both runners along, and after an intentional walk, Kevin Marshall grounded to San Marin's shortstop, Marty Larson. Larson bobbled the chance, and Loane sped home with the winning run.

George Shawver went all nine innings for Drake and got the win, while Len Hoffman, victimized by the ninth inning unearned tally, got the loss.

THIS DAY IN SPORTS

"He was big league all the way as far as I was concerned," Williams told newsmen. "He tried like a sonuvabitch to get himself going after last year's layoff. There wasn't a guy on this club who had a better attitude. He was perfectly marvelous.

"He never mentioned quitting to me or to anyone else. The only serious manager-to-player talk we had was when I took him out of the line-up and he took it in stride.

"I knew he was having problems, baseball and otherwise. When I saw him Monday night, I thought his eyes looked like he hadn't slept good. I'll take him back anytime because he's big league. I just found out he made sure he paid up with the clubhouse boy two days ago."

Flood notified Short, who lured him out of baseball retirement last fall with a $110,000 contract, that he was abandoning the club in a 22-word telegram sent from Kennedy International Airport in New York.

It read: "I tried. A year and a half is too much. Very serious problems mounting every day. Thanks for your confidence and understanding."

It was signed: Flood.

Short also cited Flood as having outside problems but did not specify them. The player pulled out of a baseball career for the entire 1970 season to challenge baseball's reserve clause in the federal courts. He has lost decisions in the federal, district and appeals courts but indicated he would carry the fight to the Supreme Court.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Stargell Clouts Home Run No.11

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Despite Willie Stargell's record 11th home run, the Los Angeles Dodgers have chalked up their seventh victory in eight road games.

"I just threw him (Stargell) a fastball down the middle," Dodger reliever Pete Mikelsen said sheepishly after a come-from-behind 7-5 win over the Pittsburgh Pirates Tuesday night.

Keeping pace with frontrunning San Francisco in the National League West, the Dodgers trailed 3-0 going into the seventh inning. They scored four runs and then tallied three more times in the eighth.

Stargell set a major league record for home runs in April when he hit his 11th into the centerfield seats with the bases empty in the ninth.

"He must have hit that ball 450 feet plus," Mikkelsen said.

Mikkelsen, the Dodgers' palmball specialist, recorded his second save, going the last three innings.

Sandy Vance came in for starter Claude Osteen in the third inning and was credited with his second win against no defeats.

The Dodgers, who have five games left on a 13-game road trip, knocked Dock Ellis off the mound in the seventh after he went into the inning with a three-hitter.

In other NL games, New York edged St. Louis 2-1, Cincinnati downed San Diego 61, Los Angeles defeated Pittsburgh 7-5, Houston blanked Philadelphia 1-0 and Montreal at Chicago was postponed because of rain.

The Mets scored two third inning runs on a pair of errors and a wild pitch and held on behind the pitching of Jerry Koosman and Danny Frisella to defeat St. Louis. An error by left fielder Lou Brock on a single by Bud Harrelson allowed Tommie Agee to score in the third. Harrelson moved to third on an error by second baseman Ted Sizemore and scored on a wild pitch by Steve Carlton. Joe Torre extended his hitting streak to 21 games for the Cardinals with three hits in four at bats.

Errors also played an important part in the Reds' victory. San Diego made three of them and the Reds also got timely hits from Lee May in the first and Tommy Helms in the sixth in defeating the Padres. Don Mason hit his second major league homer to account for the Padres' only run.

Larry Dierker pitched a six-hitter and Doug Rader drove in the game's only run with a sacrifice fly in the eighth inning as the Astros edged the Phillies. A steal of third by Denis Menke in the eighth set up Rader's sacrifice fly.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

McLain Victory For Senators

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Bob Short's "Halfway House" in Washington is half empty today but the Senators' owner can take heart in the performance of the remaining half.

Short shocked the baseball world last winter when he lured Curt Flood out of retirement with a $110,000 contract and handed Denny McLain a $100,000 deal after purchasing him from the Detroit Tigers.

It was Short who was shocked on Tuesday, however, as Flood, who retired last season after launching a suit against baseball's reserve clause, announced he was quitting because of "personal problems" and leaving immediately for Spain.

But McLain managed to offer some consolation as he pitched a six-hitter to lead Washington to a 2-0 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

Elsewhere in the American League, Baltimore ripped Oakland 6-2, Milwaukee downed Boston 4-2, New York edged Chicago 6-5 in 12 innings, Kansas City stunned Detroit 8-1 and California nipped Cleveland 2-1.

McLain, who said he was stunned by Flood's decision to quit, got RBI singles from Bernie Allen and Tim Cullen in the sixth and seventh innings to outduel the Twins' Bert Blyleven. He struck out eight and walked one in boosting his record to 3-2.

Marty Pattin pitched a sixhitter and Mike Hegan had a solo homer as Milwaukee beat Boston and snapped the Red Sox' five-game winning streak.

Danny Cater singled to set up Alou's hit. The Yankees had loaded the bases the previous inning without scoring.

Bill Melton crashed four hits, including a pair of doubles, and drove in two runs for the White Sox.

Amos Otis hit a 420-foot homer and threw out a runner at the plate as Kansas City swamped the Tigers. Otis' homer, against a 15 mile per hour breeze, triggered a four-run seventh inning for the Royals.

Ken McMullen's two-out single in the ninth inning scored Tony Conigliaro with the winning run as the Angels beat Cleveland and saddled the Indians with their seventh consecutive loss.

California scored both its runs in the ninth after being shut out for 8 1-3 innings by Ray Lamb, who was making his first major league start.

Redwood Merman Sets School Mark

Redwood High School's Brian Hennessy recorded a school record and a near school mark in collecting two wins in a Redwood swim victory over Drake yesterday.

In the 82-13 rout of the Pirates, Hennessy won the 200-yard individual medley in the speedy time of 2:07.3, and took the 400-yard freestyle in 4:08.1, one-tenth of a second off the existing school record.

In the other Marin County Athletic League meet yesterday, San Rafael defeated San Marin, 72-23.

Hennessy's I.M. time is under the existing MCAL record set in 1967 by Bob Girvin of Drake.

Also scoring double wins for Redwood were Spencer Eldred, John Goepp and Erick Humber.

Winning twice for San Rafael were Scott Dicker and Wolf Christenson.

This concludes the dual meet season for MCAL teams, but the league championship meet and qualifying for the North Coast Section meet will be held Saturday at Redwood High in Larkspur, beginning at 9 a.m.

Love Signs, But Not For Love

BALTIMORE (UPI) —Stan Love, high-scoring 6-9 center from the University of Oregon, has become the highest paid rookie in the history of the Baltimore Bullets.

Love signed a multi-year contract with the Bullets Tuesday for an estimated $500,000, the amount he said he was worth two months ago. Love, whom the Bullets plan to use as a forward, also was drafted by the Texas Chaparrals of the American Basketball Association.

"The figure from the bullets is what I term very fair but it was a little less than what Dallas offered," said Nick Grillo, Love's attorney.

Tam Track Team Keeps Rolling On

San Rafael High School knocked off Redwood High in a battle for second place in the Marin County Athletic League track race yesterday, while Tamalpais continued toward an undefeated season.

Tamalpais defeated San Marin 77-52 and San Rafael outscored Redwood 72-64.

In other MCAL meets yesterday, Terra Linda defeated Marin Catholic, 81-55 and Novato outscored Drake, 74-52.

A season mark was set by San Rafael's Doug Puskar in the discus with a heave of 152-4, and Redwood's Kip Kermoian equaled the best pole vault effort to date with a 12-6 leap.

Terra Linda moved into a tie for third with the win over Marin Catholic. Dave Johnson and Mark Lowey each grabbed two victories to pace the win, while Don Nelson was a double winner for the Wildcats.

Novato bested Drake in a battle of winless teams despite a triple win by the Pirates' Tom Thompson. He took the 100, 220 and long jump. The Hornets did not have a double winner.

MCAL, upped his average with a double and a single in three trips to the plate. And Jackson, also one of the league's top hitters, slapped a single to go with his homer.

With one out in the ninth, John Loane singled for Drake, and moved to second on a walk. Damian Casalnuovo expertly dropped a sacrifice bunt to move both runners along, and after an intentional walk, Kevin Marshall grounded to San Marin's shortstop, Marty Larson. Larson bobbled the chance, and Loane sped home with the winning run.

George Shawver went all nine innings for Drake and got the win, while Len Hoffman, victimized by the ninth inning unearned tally, got the loss.

Redwood Merman Sets School Mark

Redwood High School's Brian Hennessy recorded a school record and a near school mark in collecting two wins in a Redwood swim victory over Drake yesterday.

In the 82-13 rout of the Pirates, Hennessy won the 200-yard individual medley in the speedy time of 2:07.3, and took the 400-yard freestyle in 4:08.1, one-tenth of a second off the existing school record.

In the other Marin County Athletic League meet yesterday, San Rafael defeated San Marin, 72-23.

Hennessy's I.M. time is under the existing MCAL record set in 1967 by Bob Girvin of Drake.

Also scoring double wins for Redwood were Spencer Eldred, John Goepp and Erick Humber.

Winning twice for San Rafael were Scott Dicker and Wolf Christenson.

This concludes the dual meet season for MCAL teams, but the league championship meet and qualifying for the North Coast Section meet will be held Saturday at Redwood High in Larkspur, beginning at 9 a.m.

Love Signs, But Not For Love

BALTIMORE (UPI) —Stan Love, high-scoring 6-9 center from the University of Oregon, has become the highest paid rookie in the history of the Baltimore Bullets.

Love signed a multi-year contract with the Bullets Tuesday for an estimated $500,000, the amount he said he was worth two months ago. Love, whom the Bullets plan to use as a forward, also was drafted by the Texas Chaparrals of the American Basketball Association.

"The figure from the bullets is what I term very fair but it was a little less than what Dallas offered," said Nick Grillo, Love's attorney.

THIS DAY IN SPORTS

"He was big league all the way as far as I was concerned," Williams told newsmen. "He tried like a sonuvabitch to get himself going after last year's layoff. There wasn't a guy on this club who had a better attitude. He was perfectly marvelous.

"He never mentioned quitting to me or to anyone else. The only serious manager-to-player talk we had was when I took him out of the line-up and he took it in stride.

"I knew he was having problems, baseball and otherwise. When I saw him Monday night, I thought his eyes looked like he hadn't slept good. I'll take him back anytime because he's big league. I just found out he made sure he paid up with the clubhouse boy two days ago."

Flood notified Short, who lured him out of baseball retirement last fall with a $110,000 contract, that he was abandoning the club in a 22-word telegram sent from Kennedy International Airport in New York.

It read: "I tried. A year and a half is too much. Very serious problems mounting every day. Thanks for your confidence and understanding."

It was signed: Flood.

Short also cited Flood as having outside problems but did not specify them. The player pulled out of a baseball career for the entire 1970 season to challenge baseball's reserve clause in the federal courts. He has lost decisions in the federal, district and appeals courts but indicated he would carry the fight to the Supreme Court.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Stargell Clouts Home Run No.11

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Despite Willie Stargell's record 11th home run, the Los Angeles Dodgers have chalked up their seventh victory in eight road games.

"I just threw him (Stargell) a fastball down the middle," Dodger reliever Pete Mikelsen said sheepishly after a come-from-behind 7-5 win over the Pittsburgh Pirates Tuesday night.

Keeping pace with frontrunning San Francisco in the National League West, the Dodgers trailed 3-0 going into the seventh inning. They scored four runs and then tallied three more times in the eighth.

Stargell set a major league record for home runs in April when he hit his 11th into the centerfield seats with the bases empty in the ninth.

"He must have hit that ball 450 feet plus," Mikkelsen said.

Mikkelsen, the Dodgers' palmball specialist, recorded his second save, going the last three innings.

Sandy Vance came in for starter Claude Osteen in the third inning and was credited with his second win against no defeats.

The Dodgers, who have five games left on a 13-game road trip, knocked Dock Ellis off the mound in the seventh after he went into the inning with a three-hitter.

In other NL games, New York edged St. Louis 2-1, Cincinnati downed San Diego 61, Los Angeles defeated Pittsburgh 7-5, Houston blanked Philadelphia 1-0 and Montreal at Chicago was postponed because of rain.

The Mets scored two third inning runs on a pair of errors and a wild pitch and held on behind the pitching of Jerry Koosman and Danny Frisella to defeat St. Louis. An error by left fielder Lou Brock on a single by Bud Harrelson allowed Tommie Agee to score in the third. Harrelson moved to third on an error by second baseman Ted Sizemore and scored on a wild pitch by Steve Carlton. Joe Torre extended his hitting streak to 21 games for the Cardinals with three hits in four at bats.

Errors also played an important part in the Reds' victory. San Diego made three of them and the Reds also got timely hits from Lee May in the first and Tommy Helms in the sixth in defeating the Padres. Don Mason hit his second major league homer to account for the Padres' only run.

Larry Dierker pitched a six-hitter and Doug Rader drove in the game's only run with a sacrifice fly in the eighth inning as the Astros edged the Phillies. A steal of third by Denis Menke in the eighth set up Rader's sacrifice fly.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

McLain Victory For Senators

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Bob Short's "Halfway House" in Washington is half empty today but the Senators' owner can take heart in the performance of the remaining half.

Short shocked the baseball world last winter when he lured Curt Flood out of retirement with a $110,000 contract and handed Denny McLain a $100,000 deal after purchasing him from the Detroit Tigers.

It was Short who was shocked on Tuesday, however, as Flood, who retired last season after launching a suit against baseball's reserve clause, announced he was quitting because of "personal problems" and leaving immediately for Spain.

But McLain managed to offer some consolation as he pitched a six-hitter to lead Washington to a 2-0 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

Elsewhere in the American League, Baltimore ripped Oakland 6-2, Milwaukee downed Boston 4-2, New York edged Chicago 6-5 in 12 innings, Kansas City stunned Detroit 8-1 and California nipped Cleveland 2-1.

McLain, who said he was stunned by Flood's decision to quit, got RBI singles from Bernie Allen and Tim Cullen in the sixth and seventh innings to outduel the Twins' Bert Blyleven. He struck out eight and walked one in boosting his record to 3-2.

Marty Pattin pitched a sixhitter and Mike Hegan had a solo homer as Milwaukee beat Boston and snapped the Red Sox' five-game winning streak.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Painting Your Boat? Here Are Some Tips

I find quite a few boaters still have to paint every spring to get (or keep) their wooden boats in condition. Then, too, I find a lot more people painting fiber glass and aluminum boats lately, despite the fact they aren't supposed to need painting. This may be for several reasons. For example, the finish may be rough, coarse or pitted from age and use. The owners may want a new color (most of the older fiber glass boats came in any color as long as it was white), or the boat may have been repaired or patched and the new and the old must be matched.

Aluminum boats that are getting on in years also may need painting even if only to put some of the new non-skid paint on the inside. This non-slip finish saves a lot of skinned knees and shins, and it's a must for the angler who often gets a lot of water in his boat from lines and tackel.

But whatever the reason to paint a boat there are still many areas of uncertainty about it, as shown by some of the questions the readers ask:

Q. I want to paint my trailer boat the same color as the car. Can I use the same paint?

A. Yes, but it will probably come off in flakes after two or three weeks. Get the proper paint for whatever kind of boat you have. It's possible to match the color. Car enamels are intended for primed metal. On boats, generally, they are not so good.

Q. I've got epoxy paint for my fiber glass boat, but the directions don't say how to prepare the surface.

A. A fiber glass-plastic boat should be clean (wash with detergent), and roughened with fine sandpaper to give the new paint something to grip and bond to. Sand it enough to take off all the gloss, then wipe down with lacquer thinners.

Q. Why doesn't an aluminum boat need paint?

A. It doesn't need it for protection, because the surface of the metal oxidizes to form a very thin, tough film which protects the rest of the metal beneath. But the film is a dull gray. If you see the bright aluminum, it's either very new or lacquered.

Q. Should I use steel wool on metal fittings?

A. I see many people using steel wool, but I think it's poison around a boat. You can never pick up all the tiny particles of steel left after use . . . . even with a tack rag. They rust and stain the surface.

Q. Anything to know about painting a plywood boat?

A. This above all! Seal the wood thoroughly with the very best sealer, primer and paint. Plywood should not get wet, because it can't swell up or expand like other woods. This is because the grain of the plies lie in several directions. If they expand they tend to tear the material apart.

Q. What's "spar" varnish?

A. Spar varnish is "long on oil" as the painters say. It's got more oil, less resin in its make-up than varnishes designed for interior work. This means it dries with a more resilient surface or "skin" and withstands sun and weather better.

Q. I took old paint off with paint remover. The new paint didn't stick. Should I have used a blow torch?

A. Some paint removers have waxes in them to retard evaporation of the solvents. After the old paint has been taken off the surface should be wiped down with thinners or mineral solvent such as varsol or naphtha (be very careful, it's inflammable) or washed with detergent and water to remove the wax.

Q. What's a tack rag?

A. It's the handiest gadget a fine painter can have. It picks up dust and grit that might mar the finish. It's made by wetting a big hunk of cheesecloth then sprinkling with droplets of thinned varnish. Knead the cloth a little and you'll begin to feel the tackiness.

STANLEY CUP ACTION

Black Hawks, Canadiens Take 3-2 Series Leads

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

It was all a matter of time.

The New York Rangers had held Chicago's Bobby Hull scoreless for five full games but the second leading scorer in National Hockey League history ended his drought in fine fashion. Hull drilled home a goal at 6:35 of the first overtime period Tuesday night to give the Black Hawks a 3-2 victory over New York.

The goal also helped Chicago build a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven series.

Time also ran out for the Minnesota North Stars, who played on almost even terms with Montreal for 50 minutes before the Canadiens exploded for a flurry of goals in the last 10 to win 6-1. Montreal leads that series 3-2.

Hull, playing one of his best Cup series despite the fact he had not scored against New York, slapped a loose puck into the net after Pit Martin had won a faceoff. Ranger goalie Ed Giacomin had no chance on the play.

"I shot in almost the same motion," said Hull. "It was on the ice to Giacomin's right and he didn't have a chance to move on it."

Hull's goal came after he had spent an unusually long period of time on the ice. "I thought I overplayed him a bit in the first period," said Chicago Coach Billy Reay. "But he's a willing workhorse and in something like this, you don't like to get behind."

Chicago had taken a 2-0 lead in the first period but the Rangers tied in on a first period goal by Vic Hadfield and a second period score by Rod Seiling.

The series returns to New York Thursday night and a seventh game, if necessary, will be played Sunday in Chicago.

"They're far from being beaten," said Hull. "We're going to have to play the same type of game we did there last time when we won 7-1. If they were going to be demoralized, they would have shown it last night."

Montreal, which has had its hands full with the pesky North Stars, got a pair of goals from Pete Mahovlich and brother Frank's 10th of the playoff series to down Minnesota.

"It was hard checking all the way and quite a game for the first 50 minutes," said Montreal Coach Al MacNeil. "I guess it was no contest in the final 10 minutes.

"We've won hockey games in all buildings this season, including Boston," said MacNeil. "Thursday night we're going to come out skating and they'll have to keep up with us."

The Canadiens-North Stars series resumes Thursday night in Minnesota. The winner of that series will face the New York-Chicago winner for the Stanley Cup.

"We missed our chances early in the game and then they backfired against us when the Canadiens took advantage of their opportunities," said Jackie Gordon, the Minnesota coach. "But we'll be out to get them Thursday night. We're not out of it yet."

LOCKER ROOM KARATE

Orioles Coach Finds Way For Trouble On Day Off

NEW YORK (UPI)—Some people get into all kinds of trouble on their day off.

Have you noticed that?

Bill Hunter has. You have no idea how much.

Hunter is Baltimore's third base coach and any time he's on the coaching line he's all business. No fooling around. Off it he's something else. An entirely different individual.

There isn't a mean bone in Billy Hunter's whole body. He's exceptionally good-natured, he likes a joke and he enjoys a little fun. But even these otherwise innocent qualities can get a man into trouble.

They did last Thursday when Hunter had a day off with all the rest of the Orioles, who had arrived in Anaheim, Calif., a day early for a three-game set with the Angels.

Earl Weaver, the Orioles' manager, and Hunter, like two bus drivers on their day off, decided to go for a ride to the ball park.

They got there as the Angels were getting ready to take on Charlie Finley's Oakland A's and Weaver said he was heading for the press box. Hunter told him he'd join him after awhile but first he wanted to drop in and see some of the guys he knew among the Angels.

Well, you know how those things go. At first there was the customary kidding around and swapping of stories. Then somehow the conversation veered to karate and judo. Billy Hunter said he didn't hold a black belt but he certainly could demonstrate a few different blows if the Angels really were that interested.

With that Hunter delivered a neat karate chop to Clyde Wright's left arm. It hurt. What hurt Clyde Wright more is that he makes his living with his left arm ... While Wright was still tingling a little Hunter quickly pinched Jim Maloney's right elbow ... and then in almost the same quick motion playfully dispatched a loving karate chop to the valued right arm of Andy Messersmith, who was to be the Angels' starting pitcher that night.

Andy Messersmith, it turns out, also knows a couple of things about karate and judo. Quicker than you can say see-what-happens-on-a-guy's-day-off he got in a beautiful backhander that split Billy Hunter's lip.

The rest of the story becomes a bit garbled in the telling but a few clear facts emerge.

Messersmith was raked for seven runs and six hits by the A's, and yanked in the fifth inning. When the press, which had learned about the pre-game karate-judo session, asked Lefty Phillips if he thourhg that might have led to his pitcher's ineffectiveness he said he didn't think so at all.

Dick Walsh, the Angels' general manager, refused to let Billy Hunter off that easily. The fact the Angels dropped their third straight game that evening, 7-3, didn't do much for Walsh's composure.

He called Hunter "a disgrace to baseball" and said if he were his boss he'd fire him.

Dick Walsh was over-reacting, I think. I like the course of action taken by Harry Dalton, the Orioles' director of player personnel, who happened to join the club that evening. Harry Dalton apologized to the Angels on behalf of the Baltimore club.

Frank Lane also kept the brouhaha in correct perspective, I think. Lane, who used to be with the Orioles and now bosses the Brewers, fired off a telegram to Hunter which read:

"I'm surprised that you would attack 25 defenseless athletes the way you did. However, this is a cordial invitation to enjoy all the courtesies of our lavish Milwaukee Brewers' clubhouse on your next visit to our city. I understand you're bragging about the 'Hunter karate chop.' Have you ever heard of the 'Lane Bleeding Ear treatment?' Big deal. Best regards. Frank Lane"

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Painting Your Boat? Here Are Some Tips

I find quite a few boaters still have to paint every spring to get (or keep) their wooden boats in condition. Then, too, I find a lot more people painting fiber glass and aluminum boats lately, despite the fact they aren't supposed to need painting. This may be for several reasons. For example, the finish may be rough, coarse or pitted from age and use. The owners may want a new color (most of the older fiber glass boats came in any color as long as it was white), or the boat may have been repaired or patched and the new and the old must be matched.

Aluminum boats that are getting on in years also may need painting even if only to put some of the new non-skid paint on the inside. This non-slip finish saves a lot of skinned knees and shins, and it's a must for the angler who often gets a lot of water in his boat from lines and tackel.

But whatever the reason to paint a boat there are still many areas of uncertainty about it, as shown by some of the questions the readers ask:

Q. I want to paint my trailer boat the same color as the car. Can I use the same paint?

A. Yes, but it will probably come off in flakes after two or three weeks. Get the proper paint for whatever kind of boat you have. It's possible to match the color. Car enamels are intended for primed metal. On boats, generally, they are not so good.

Q. I've got epoxy paint for my fiber glass boat, but the directions don't say how to prepare the surface.

A. A fiber glass-plastic boat should be clean (wash with detergent), and roughened with fine sandpaper to give the new paint something to grip and bond to. Sand it enough to take off all the gloss, then wipe down with lacquer thinners.

Q. Why doesn't an aluminum boat need paint?

A. It doesn't need it for protection, because the surface of the metal oxidizes to form a very thin, tough film which protects the rest of the metal beneath. But the film is a dull gray. If you see the bright aluminum, it's either very new or lacquered.

Q. Should I use steel wool on metal fittings?

A. I see many people using steel wool, but I think it's poison around a boat. You can never pick up all the tiny particles of steel left after use . . . . even with a tack rag. They rust and stain the surface.

Q. Anything to know about painting a plywood boat?

A. This above all! Seal the wood thoroughly with the very best sealer, primer and paint. Plywood should not get wet, because it can't swell up or expand like other woods. This is because the grain of the plies lie in several directions. If they expand they tend to tear the material apart.

Q. What's "spar" varnish?

A. Spar varnish is "long on oil" as the painters say. It's got more oil, less resin in its makeup than varnishes designed for interior work. This means it dries with a more resilient surface or "skin" and withstands sun and weather better.

Q. I took old paint off with paint remover. The new paint didn't stick. Should I have used a blow torch?

A. Some paint removers have waxes in them to retard evaporation of the solvents. After the old paint has been taken off the surface should be wiped down with thinners or mineral solvent such as varsol or naphtha (be very careful, it's inflammable) or washed with detergent and water to remove the wax.

Q. What's a tack rag?

A. It's the handiest gad get a fine painter can have. It picks up dust and grit that might mar the finish. It's made by wetting a big hunk of cheesecloth, then sprinkling with droplets of thinned varnish. Knead the cloth a little and you'll begin to feel the tackiness.

LOCKER ROOM KARATE

Orioles Coach Finds Way For Trouble On Day Off

NEW YORK (UPI)—Some people get into all kinds of trouble on their day off.

Have you noticed that?

Bill Hunter has. You have no idea how much.

Hunter is Baltimore's third base coach and any time he's on the coaching line he's all business. No fooling around. Off it he's something else. An entirely different individual.

There isn't a mean bone in Billy Hunter's whole body. He's exceptionally good-natured, he likes a joke and he enjoys a little fun. But even these otherwise innocent qualities can get a man into trouble.

They did last Thursday when Hunter had a day off with all the rest of the Orioles, who had arrived in Anaheim, Calif., a day early for a three-game set with the Angels.

Earl Weaver, the Orioles' manager, and Hunter, like two bus drivers on their day off, decided to go for a ride to the ball park.

They got there as the Angels were getting ready to take on Charlie Finley's Oakland A's and Weaver said he was heading for the press box. Hunter told him he'd join him after awhile but first he wanted to drop in and see some of the guys he knew among the Angels.

Well, you know how those things go. At first there was the customary kidding around and swapping of stories. Then somehow the conversation veered to karate and judo. Billy Hunter said he didn't hold a black belt but he certainly could demonstrate a few different blows if the Angels really were that interested.

With that Hunter delivered a neat karate chop to Clyde Wright's left arm. It hurt. What hurt Clyde Wright more is that he makes his living with his left arm ... While Wright was still tingling a little Hunter quickly pinched Jim Maloney's right elbow ... and then in almost the same quick motion playfully dispatched a loving karate chop to the valued right arm of Andy Messersmith, who was to be the Angels' starting pitcher that night.

Andy Messersmith, it turns out, also knows a couple of things about karate and judo. Quicker than you can say see-what-happens-on-a-guy's-day-off he got in a beautiful backhander that split Billy Hunter's lip.

The rest of the story becomes a bit garbled in the telling but a few clear facts emerge.

Messersmith was raked for seven runs and six hits by the A's, and yanked in the fifth inning. When the press, which had learned about the pre-game karate-judo session, asked Lefty Phillips if he thourhg that might have led to his pitcher's ineffectiveness he said he didn't think so at all.

Dick Walsh, the Angels' general manager, refused to let Billy Hunter off that easily. The fact the Angels dropped their third straight game that evening, 7-3, didn't do much for Walsh's composure.

He called Hunter "a disgrace to baseball" and said if he were his boss he'd fire him.

Dick Walsh was over-reacting, I think. I like the course of action taken by Harry Dalton, the Orioles' director of player personnel, who happened to join the club that evening. Harry Dalton apologized to the Angels on behalf of the Baltimore club.

Frank Lane also kept the brouhaha in correct perspective, I think. Lane, who used to be with the Orioles and now bosses the Brewers, fired off a telegram to Hunter which read:

"I'm surprised that you would attack 25 defenseless athletes the way you did. However, this is a cordial invitation to enjoy all the courtesies of our lavish Milwaukee Brewers' clubhouse on your next visit to our city. I understand you're bragging about the 'Hunter karate chop.' Have you ever heard of the 'Lane Bleeding Ear treatment?' Big deal. Best regards. Frank Lane"

STANLEY CUP ACTION

Black Hawks, Canadiens Take 3-2 Series Leads

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

It was all a matter of time.

The New York Rangers had held Chicago's Bobby Hull scoreless for five full games but the second leading scorer in National Hockey League history ended his drought in fine fashion. Hull drilled home a goal at 6:35 of the first overtime period Tuesday night to give the Black Hawks a 3-2 victory over New York.

The goal also helped Chicago build a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven series.

Time also ran out for the Minnesota North Stars, who played on almost even terms with Montreal for 50 minutes before the Canadiens exploded for a flurry of goals in the last 10 to win 6-1. Montreal leads that series 3-2.

Hull, playing one of his best Cup series despite the fact he had not scored against New York, slapped a loose puck into the net after Pit Martin had won a faceoff. Ranger goalie Ed Giacomin had no chance on the play.

"I shot in almost the same motion," said Hull. "It was on the ice to Giacomin's right and he didn't have a chance to move on it."

Hull's goal came after he had spent an unusually long period of time on the ice. "I thought I overplayed him a bit in the first period," said Chicago Coach Billy Reay. "But he's a willing workhorse and in something like this, you don't like to get behind."

Chicago had taken a 2-0 lead in the first period but the Rangers tied in on a first period goal by Vic Hadfield and a second period score by Rod Seiling.

The series returns to New York Thursday night and a seventh game, if necessary, will be played Sunday in Chicago.

"They're far from being beaten," said Hull. "We're going to have to play the same type of game we did there last time when we won 7-1. If they were going to be demoralized, they would have shown it last night."

Montreal, which has had its hands full with the pesky North Stars, got a pair of goals from Pete Mahovlich and brother Frank's 10th of the playoff series to down Minnesota.

"It was hard checking all the way and quite a game for the first 50 minutes," said Montreal Coach Al MacNeil. "I guess it was no contest in the final 10 minutes.

"We've won hockey games in all buildings this season, including Boston," said MacNeil. "Thursday night we're going to come out skating and they'll have to keep up with us."

The Canadiens-North Stars series resumes Thursday night in Minnesota. The winner of that series will face the New York-Chicago winner for the Stanley Cup.

"We missed our chances early in the game and then they backfired against us when the Canadiens took advantage of their opportunities," said Jackie Gordon, the Minnesota coach. "But we'll be out to get them Thursday night. We're not out of it yet."

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Profits Seen In Trend To Leisure

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. My company has gone to a four-day week. How will this affect profits? Can you mention what stocks will benefit from a large scale change to the short week? A.T.

A. Yours is one of more than 100 companies to have changed to the shortened work week. The proportion of workers thus affected is still minute, but with the Steelworkers Union campaigning for a four-day week by 1974 the swing-over could gain momentum.

In some instances three-day schedules have been adopted, necessitating hiring a second shift of workers for the balance of the work week. This type of schedule might be a means of reducing the current high rate of unemployment. The consensus of those companies now on the abbreviated week is that production has risen, costs, employee turnover and absenteeism have been reduced and morale has been boosted.

While many workers have utilized the extra time by getting a second job, they are in the minority. Other methods chosen to fill the free hours have included: education, sports, travel and do-it-yourself activities.

Beneficiaries of an upsurge in do-it-yourself pastimes would be: Black & Decker, manufacturer of electric hand tools; Channel Companies, OTC retailer of hard goods and lumber and Diamond International, which derives 25 per cent of sales from retail lumber outlets.

Sporting equipment manufacturers should also benefit from increased leisure time. Acushnet Co. has largest share of the golf ball market, and, spending for this sport has increased 145 per cent since 1960. Snowmobiling enthusiasts have pushed Rupp Industries' sales from $1.6 million in 1965 to $29 million last year. AMF and Brunswick, originally bowling equipment makers, have diversified into numerous other sports.

Camping has enjoyed a strong upsurge in popularity; use of state and national parks has almost doubled in the last decade. Coleman Company, a leading maker of quality camping equipment has grown at an even more rapid pace. American Express is a broadly representative company in the field of travel and Prentice-Hall in the field of education.

Demand Hits 24 Million On New York Exchange

NEW YORK (UPI)—Investors drummed up a turnover of approximately 24,000,000 shares on the New York Stock Exchange Wednesday amid fresh signs the economy is recovering.

Market indicators generally pointed higher, although profit taking, which developed in the middle of last week, continued to restrain demand for certain stocks, notably the airlines which had been one of the most popular groups recently.

Standard & Poor's 500 Stock Index showed a gain of 0.39 at 104.78. Of the 1,671 issues crossing the tape, 747 pointed higher, while 662 retreated.

The index, which usually foreshadows future developments in the general economy, increased 0.6 per cent in March. A government spokesman said the report "suggests strongly that a balanced and broadly based economic expansion is developing."

Closing prices included AT&T 48 1-8 unchanged, Bethlehem Steel 23 7-8 unchanged, Du Pont 144 3-4 up 1 1-2, General Electric 124 up 1 1-2, General Motors 89 5-8 up 1 5-8, IBM 361 1-4 up 3 1-4, Southern Pacific 42 1-8 off 1-8, Texaco 39 unchanged, and U.S. Steel 35 1-4 up 1-8.

Banker Gauges Union Demands

LOS ANGELES (BW) — Union wage demands in 1971 will undoubtedly lead to some major strikes and costly settlements such as occurred in 1970, a banking economist predicts.

When 1971 is over, pay increases to labor will probably be in line with the high advances of last year, unless specific wage and price ceilings are imposed by the government.

This is the view of Dr. Ray Jallow, chief economist for United California Bank and a contributing editor to California Business, financial and business newsweekly of the West. In an article in this week's edition, he continues:

"While such expensive wage agreements can fuel inflation, economic planners hope that 1971 will have sizable gains in productivity, which could help to avert significant price rises.

"Productivity — or output per man-hour — can spurt dramatically after a recession as it has done in the past. However, an objective view of productivity in 1971 suggests only a modest gain and thus only a slight dampering of inflationary trends, and a continuing need for government restraint of inflationary wage-price movements.

"The influence of labor costs on inflation is obvious since such costs play a large role in determining the price of most items. This influence was stated quite specifically by the Council of Economic Advisers in its second "inflation alert."

"One of the best-established facts about the American economy is the long-run tendency for prices on the average to rise at about the same rate as unit labor costs on the average. Put another way, apart from temporary aberrations the general price level tends to rise by the excess of wage increase over productivity increases.

"It is this gap between increases in wages and productivity which fuels inflation, as well as being a source of labor-management strife.

"The wage increase-productivity gap was absent in the recovery year following each of the four prior recessions of 1948, 1954, 1958 and 1961, since unit labor costs actually declined in these periods. Productivity grew at the sizable annual rate of 6.2 per cent during the year following the 1960-61 recession, and 5.4 per cent during the year following the 1965 recession, both rates being in excess of compensation increase grants. Should we expect to do as well in 1971? Probably not.

"The dismal picture of productivity in recent years can be compared with the first half of the Sixties. Man-hours worked in the private economy increased about 5 per cent from 1960 to 1965, while output rose 28 per cent for a productivity gain of 20 per cent. During 1965-1970 the man-hours worked were similar, but out-put rose only 17 per cent, and the productivity gain barely reached 11 per cent. At the same time, pay per man-hour moved up 40 per cent between 1965 and 1970 as compared with a 23 per cent gain between 1960 and 1965.

"Since the economy has just begun to enter its recovery period we should expect productivity to rise significantly in the near future, and thus smaller, more favorable figures should show up for unit labor costs in 1971.

The 1970 recession has had a beneficial aspect in that much of the fat has been cut out of operations. Cost-cutting measures during the year have eliminated excess workers, as well as obsolete equipment and practices. Consequently, output can now go forward from a low cost base.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Profits Seen In Trend To Leisure

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. My company has gone to a four-day week. How will this affect profits? Can you mention what stocks will benefit from a large scale change to the short week? A.T.

A. Yours is one of more than 100 companies to have changed to the shortened work week. The proportion of workers thus affected is still minute, but with the Steelworkers Union campaigning for a four-day week by 1974 the swing-over could gain momentum.

In some instances three-day schedules have been adopted, necessitating hiring a second shift of workers for the balance of the work week. This type of schedule might be a means of reducing the current high rate of unemployment. The consensus of those companies now on the abbreviated week is that production has risen, costs, employee turnover and absenteeism have been reduced and morale has been boosted.

While many workers have utilized the extra time by getting a second job, they are in the minority. Other methods chosen to fill the free hours have included: education, sports, travel and do-it-yourself activities.

Beneficiaries of an upsurge in do-it-yourself pastimes would be: Black & Decker, manufacturer of electric hand tools; Channel Companies, OTC retailer of hard goods and lumber and Diamond International, which derives 25 per cent of sales from retail lumber outlets.

Sporting equipment manufacturers should also benefit from increased leisure time. Acushnet Co. has largest share of the golf ball market, and, spending for this sport has increased 145 per cent since 1960. Snowmobiling enthusiasts have pushed Rupp Industries' sales from $1.6 million in 1965 to $29 million last year. AMF and Brunswick, originally bowling equipment makers, have diversified into numerous other sports.

Camping has enjoyed a strong upsurge in popularity; use of state and national parks has almost doubled in the last decade. Coleman Company, a leading maker of quality camping equipment has grown at an even more rapid pace. American Express is a broadly representative company in the field of travel and Prentice-Hall in the field of education.

Demand Hits 24 Million On New York Exchange

NEW YORK (UPI)—Investors drummed up a turnover of approximately 24,000,000 shares on the New York Stock Exchange Wednesday amid fresh signs the economy is recovering.

Market indicators generally pointed higher, although profit taking, which developed in the middle of last week, continued to restrain demand for certain stocks, notably the airlines which had been one of the most popular groups recently.

Standard & Poor's 500 Stock Index showed a gain of 0.39 at 104.78. Of the 1,671 issues crossing the tape, 747 pointed higher, while 662 retreated.

The index, which usually foreshadows future developments in the general economy, increased 0.6 per cent in March. A government spokesman said the report "suggests strongly that a balanced and broadly based economic expansion is developing."

Closing prices included AT&T 48 1-8 unchanged, Bethlehem Steel 23 7-8 unchanged, Du Pont 144 3-4 up 1 1-2, General Electric 124 up 1 1-2, General Motors 89 5-8 up 1 5-8, IBM 361 1-4 up 3 1-4, Southern Pacific 42 1-8 off 1-8, Texaco 39 unchanged, and U.S. Steel 35 1-4 up 1-8.

Banker Gauges Union Demands

LOS ANGELES (BW) — Union wage demands in 1971 will undoubtedly lead to some major strikes and costly settlements such as occurred in 1970, a banking economist predicts.

When 1971 is over, pay increases to labor will probably be in line with the high advances of last year, unless specific wage and price ceilings are imposed by the government.

This is the view of Dr. Ray Jallow, chief economist for United California Bank and a contributing editor to California Business, financial and business newsweekly of the West. In an article in this week's edition, he continues:

"While such expensive wage agreements can fuel inflation, economic planners hope that 1971 will have sizable gains in productivity, which could help to avert significant price rises.

"Productivity — or output per man-hour — can spurt dramatically after a recession as it has done in the past. However, an objective view of productivity in 1971 suggests only a modest gain and thus only a slight dampering of inflationary trends, and a continuing need for government restraint of inflationary wage-price movements.

"The influence of labor costs on inflation is obvious since such costs play a large role in determining the price of most items. This influence was stated quite specifically by the Council of Economic Advisers in its second "inflation alert."

"One of the best-established facts about the American economy is the long-run tendency for prices on the average to rise at about the same rate as unit labor costs on the average. Put another way, apart from temporary aberrations the general price level tends to rise by the excess of wage increase over productivity increases.

"It is this gap between increases in wages and productivity which fuels inflation, as well as being a source of labor-management strife.

"The wage increase-productivity gap was absent in the recovery year following each of the four prior recessions of 1948, 1954, 1958 and 1961, since unit labor costs actually declined in these periods. Productivity grew at the sizable annual rate of 6.2 per cent during the year following the 1960-61 recession, and 5.4 per cent during the year following the 1965 recession, both rates being in excess of compensation increase grants. Should we expect to do as well in 1971? Probably not.

"The dismal picture of productivity in recent years can be compared with the first half of the Sixties. Man-hours worked in the private economy increased about 5 per cent from 1960 to 1965, while output rose 28 per cent for a productivity gain of 20 per cent. During 1965-1970 the man-hours worked were similar, but out-put rose only 17 per cent, and the productivity gain barely reached 11 per cent. At the same time, pay per man-hour moved up 40 per cent between 1965 and 1970 as compared with a 23 per cent gain between 1960 and 1965.

"Since the economy has just begun to enter its recovery period we should expect productivity to rise significantly in the near future, and thus smaller, more favorable figures should show up for unit labor costs in 1971.

The 1970 recession has had a beneficial aspect in that much of the fat has been cut out of operations. Cost-cutting measures during the year have eliminated excess workers, as well as obsolete equipment and practices. Consequently, output can now go forward from a low cost base.

Marin City Site Set For Study

The Tamalpais High School District board has authorized its staff to explore the possibility of selling its 32 acres of land in Marin City.

According to Edward J. Neumeier, administrative assistant, the board Monday night approved a carefully worded motion authorizing Supt. (Wilber D.) Hawkins to explore the possible disposition and/or use of the Marin City site.

The parcel was acquired in 1958 through a federal grant after the district agreed to construct a school on the site. It was purchased for about $60,000, Neumeier said, and the district has spent $240,000 more in improvements.

The lot is currently used as a dumping ground for old cars and trash.

Neumeier said Hawkins indicated he has been approached by an agent of parties interested in purchasing the land. He said Hawkins did not elaborate.

On other land matters, three members of the board voiced concern over a proposal the district buy 60 acres of the Green Gulch Ranch.

The land has been offered to the district for use as an ecology study center at a cost of $250,000 by rancher George W. Wheelright III.

According to Neumeier, Trustee Robert W. Corlett said he felt the district owns too much land already and should not buy more. Trustees Betty Wallace and Jerrold Jadar cautioned the district staff to study the proposal carefully and to assess its need.

The Tamalpais High School District board also:

GRADUATION — Approved request from Redwood High School that graduation ceremonies be held this year at the Mount Tamalpais outdoor theater. The graduation is set for 11 a.m. June 12.

NEW NAME — Approved naming the district's continuation school Mewah Mountain. Mewah is the Indian word for "people." The school is located near Redwood High School on Fifer Avenue in Corte Madera.

OPPORTUNITY SCHOOL — Heard an hour-long report on the operation and success of the district's San Andreas High School located in Mill Valley. The school, formerly called Opportunity School, was established in 1969 as an alternative to regular school for students with academic difficulties or conflicts with school officials.

ELECTRONIC EQUIPMENT — Approved the leasing of electronic equipment to detect thefts from the Tamalpais High School library. The contract was awarded to 3M Systems for $6,695 per year. The library has reported thefts during the year totaling tens of thousands of dollars.

COMPLAINTS — Heard general complaints from parents and relatives of mentally retarded students attending special classes at Tamalpais High School. The superintendent agreed to meet with the parents to discuss their complaints, one of which includes student abuse by other students.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION — Approved a resolution supporting the abolishment of state requirements for physical education classes for junior and senior students. The San Rafael High School District board has approved a similar resolution.

MEETING — Set another meeting for Monday at 8 p.m. to discuss teachers salaries and other district financial matters.

Reagan Says He Has No 'War Chest'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan said Tuesday all the money he receives from out-of-state speaking appearances will be placed in a special fund to finance his political activities. He denied it would be used to build his own campaign "war chest."

"I don't know what that war chest would be for," the governor told his weekly news conference. "The only war I'm engaged in is furthering the goals of the Republican party and promoting the re-election of the President."

The Republican National Committee also will benefit financially from Reagan's out-of-state appearances.

The governor commented after his press office released a statement emphasizing that Reagan's out-of-state speeches will be limited "to those that assist the re-election of the national administration in 1972."

90 Seconds Work: $34,000 Loot

VAN NUYS (UPI) —An unemployment office was robbed of cash estimated by police at $34,000 Tuesday by two men who made their move after the money was delivered to be distributed as benefits.

Ray McFarland, general manager of the branch of the Department of Human Resources, said an audit was being conducted to determine the exact sum stolen.

He said one of the men was waiting in the lobby while the delivery was made. He waited until the money arrived and then jumped on a counter and pointed a gun at the cashiers.

He was joined by a second man in grabbing the cash and then they fled out a back door, McFarland said.

"It all took place so fast," he said. "It would surprise me if it took longer than a minute and a half."

The robbery occurred about 11:50 a.m.

The Galapagos Islands consist of 12 large and several hundred small islands.

Mock 'Kidnap' Spurs Charity Drive In Marin

A mass "kidnapping" last week of about 60 Marin business and civic leaders has resulted in a ransom of about $550 to date, the Marin Chapter of the March of Dimes announced yesterday.

The community leaders were abducted from their offices Thursday by young ladies dressed to match their role — black boots and all.

The victims were sped to the Kent Woodlands home of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Dunbar where they were released — following lunch and cocktails — on the promise of forwarding a check to fight birth defects.

The "kidnapping" is an annual event of the Marin chapter.

When not in use, guns should always be kept unloaded with the actions open.

Marin City Site Set For Study

The Tamalpais High School District board has authorized its staff to explore the possibility of selling its 32 acres of land in Marin City.

According to Edward J. Neumeier, administrative assistant, the board Monday night approved a carefully worded motion authorizing Supt. (Wilber D.) Hawkins to explore the possible disposition and/or use of the Marin City site.

The parcel was acquired in 1958 through a federal grant after the district agreed to construct a school on the site. It was purchased for about $60,000, Neumeier said, and the district has spent $240,000 more in improvements.

The lot is currently used as a dumping ground for old cars and trash.

Neumeier said Hawkins indicated he has been approached by an agent of parties interested in purchasing the land. He said Hawkins did not elaborate.

On other land matters, three members of the board voiced concern over a proposal the district buy 60 acres of the Green Gulch Ranch.

The land has been offered to the district for use as an ecology study center at a cost of $250,000 by rancher George W. Wheelright III.

According to Neumeier, Trustee Robert W. Corlett said he felt the district owns too much land already and should not buy more. Trustees Betty Wallace and Jerrold Jadar cautioned the district staff to study the proposal carefully and to assess its need.

The Tamalpais High School District board also:

GRADUATION — Approved request from Redwood High School that graduation ceremonies be held this year at the Mount Tamalpais outdoor theater. The graduation is set for 11 a.m. June 12.

NEW NAME — Approved naming the district's continuation school Mewah Mountain. Mewah is the Indian word for "people." The school is located near Redwood High School on Fifer Avenue in Corte Madera.

OPPORTUNITY SCHOOL — Heard an hour-long report on the operation and success of the district's San Andreas High School located in Mill Valley. The school, formerly called Opportunity School, was established in 1969 as an alternative to regular school for students with academic difficulties or conflicts with school officials.

ELECTRONIC EQUIPMENT — Approved the leasing of electronic equipment to detect thefts from the Tamalpais High School library. The contract was awarded to 3M Systems for $6,695 per year. The library has reported thefts during the year totaling tens of thousands of dollars.

COMPLAINTS — Heard general complaints from parents and relatives of mentally retarded students attending special classes at Tamalpais High School. The superintendent agreed to meet with the parents to discuss their complaints, one of which includes student abuse by other students.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION — Approved a resolution supporting the abolishment of state requirements for physical education classes for junior and senior students. The San Rafael High School District board has approved a similar resolution.

MEETING — Set another meeting for Monday at 8 p.m. to discuss teachers salaries and other district financial matters.

Reagan Says He Has No 'War Chest'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan said Tuesday all the money he receives from out-of-state speaking appearances will be placed in a special fund to finance his political activities. He denied it would be used to build his own campaign "war chest."

"I don't know what that war chest would be for," the governor told his weekly news conference. "The only war I'm engaged in is furthering the goals of the Republican party and promoting the re-election of the President."

The Republican National Committee also will benefit financially from Reagan's out-of-state appearances.

The governor commented after his press office released a statement emphasizing that Reagan's out-of-state speeches will be limited "to those that assist the re-election of the national administration in 1972."

90 Seconds Work: $34,000 Loot

VAN NUYS (UPI) —An unemployment office was robbed of cash estimated by police at $34,000 Tuesday by two men who made their move after the money was delivered to be distributed as benefits.

Ray McFarland, general manager of the branch of the Department of Human Resources, said an audit was being conducted to determine the exact sum stolen.

He said one of the men was waiting in the lobby while the delivery was made. He waited until the money arrived and then jumped on a counter and pointed a gun at the cashiers.

He was joined by a second man in grabbing the cash and then they fled out a back door, McFarland said.

"It all took place so fast," he said. "It would surprise me if it took longer than a minute and a half."

The robbery occurred about 11:50 a.m.

Mock 'Kidnap' Spurs Charity Drive In Marin

A mass "kidnapping" last week of about 60 Marin business and civic leaders has resulted in a ransom of about $550 to date, the Marin Chapter of the March of Dimes announced yesterday.

The community leaders were abducted from their offices Thursday by young ladies dressed to match their role — black boots and all.

The victims were sped to the Kent Woodlands home of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Dunbar where they were released — following lunch and cocktails — on the promise of forwarding a check to fight birth defects.

The "kidnapping" is an annual event of the Marin chapter.

When not in use, guns should always be kept unloaded with the actions open.

Reed District Eyes An Old Revenue Plan

Reed School District is considering a departure in school financing: the use of surplus school property to generate continuing revenue to supplement tax funds.

The Reed district finds itself with two sites bought for schools which have never been built, and for which there now appears no need. Rather than sell the properties, Mark Noble of Tiburon, a district resident who ran unsuccessfully for the school board in April 20 election, suggested that they be used for cluster housing which could bring in money to support the schools.

Although there were some objections to his idea, the district is looking into it.

WHEN NOBLE MADE his suggestion at an April 6 board meeting, he said, "No one has yet been able to find a reason, other than tradition, why such a program could not be established."

Had he gone far enough back in history, he would have found that tradition itself is behind such a method of school financing.

In 1641, the town of Boston set aside Deer Island, one of several islands in Boston Harbor belonging to the municipality, to help support the Boston Latin School, which was the first publicly established school in the British colonies in America. In 1649, it added Long and Spectacle Islands to the properties supporting the school, and let out under perpetual lease 500 municipally owned acres near Braintree for the same purpose.

Rentals from these properties went far toward supporting America's first public school. For instance, an entry in the town records for 1644 shows Deer Island was rented for three years at seven pounds sterling per year, the money to go to the school.

THERE ARE MANY other cases in colonial and early United States history where land was set aside for school support. The federal government itself undertook this method of school financing with the Morrill Act of 1862, which gave each state 30,000 acres of public land for each senator and representative, the money to finance establishment of agricultural and mechanical colleges. The University of California itself is such a "land-grant college."

Noble's idea for Reed School District is to set up a foundation which would arrange construction of cluster-type condominium housing on the surplus school sites, with all proceeds above expenses going to the school district. He believes it could result in expanding the school programs while lowering taxes.

One of the Reed district's two surplus sites, the 10-acre Ring Point site on Paradise Drive east of the Uplands, was bought in 1957 out of general tax revenues. The district could use it for housing if it so desired.

The other, the 13-acre North Central site on Hacienda Drive, was bought with state aid funds, so state permission would have to be obtained to put it to non-school use.

THE LEGAL PROBLEMS would take some solving, no doubt. But the idea of putting surplus school lands to use to provide continuing revenue, instead of selling them for a one-time-only gain, should be attractive to a district that already finds itself with more school plants than its enrollment justifies.

There is much talk about taking some of school support cost off the property tax. Here is a way to do it.

Visit Those Public Schools

It's a busy week for school janitors.

Rooms and hallways must be spotless this week, and even the blackboards must be clean; because it's Public Schools Week, when mom and dad are invited in to see the rooms and meet the teachers that make up their children's world during much of the year.

The teachers, too, must put their best foot forward (and some of them probably would admit that talking to the youngsters is preferable to talking to their parents). Examples of students' work is posted on the walls — and if junior's isn't there, he's likely to be questioned after mom and dad get home from their visit.

Public Schools Week is a great institution. It gives the parents a chance to find out, among other things, whether Miss Shark is really as "mean" as junior claims, and whether Mr. Yardstick is as handsome as daughter Jennifer describes him. And it gives parents also the opportunity to get at least a glimmering of what goes on in those classrooms.

If you haven't visited a school this week, do so before the week is out. The list of open house events appears elsewhere in today's I-J. And here's a suggestion: If your child is in elementary school and you've visited it, also visit the high school he or she will be attending a few years from now. You'll be glad you did, later on.

Dispelling An 'Old Myth' Or Adding To Efficiency

(Reprinted from Wall Street Journal)

The Civil Service Commission says it would like to dispel the "old myth" that federal employes can't be fired. They can be, of course, though the red tape involved is so great that some agencies seldom try to cut their way through it.

Actually, about 15,000 federal workers are fired in an average year, out of a total work force of about three million. The figure does not include employes whose jobs disappear, for example in the closing of a military base.

Those employes who actually are discharged, the commission worries, incur a public stigma. Since the public thinks that firings are all but impossible, it's likely to believe that a federal worker who gets the ax is really a hopeless incompetent.

To counter this problem the commission is considering a two-part approach. First, it would provide counseling and other help for employes who are doing an inadequate job, in the hope of improving their performance. If they don't shape up, the commission plan would make it simpler to fire them.

Perhaps this would help dispel that "old myth." More important, it seems to us, it just might help to promote a more efficient federal work force.

Academic Freedom: Pair Of Definitions

Julien Dedman, the author of "Boola Boola" and an alumnus of Yale, recently wrote an essay entitled "The Rape of Yale." In it he included several definitions of academic freedom that I thought you might like to share with your readers. One of these Mr. Dedman attributes to another un-named alumnus and is as follows: "A self-paralyzing anodyne which dictates that one must smile as one's throat is being cut, provided that the cutting is being done by a Ph.D."

The other definition is, "Academic freedom at Yale is a one-way street for left-bound traffic only." Any positive correlation existing between academic freedom at Yale and any of our local institutions of higher learning is purely coincidental, or is it?

Upholds Reporter On Fairfax Meeting

I would like to comment on Councilman Robert R. Souza's letter to the editor of April 20 re the April 12 council meeting. As an eyewitness, I, too, thought the reporter was accurate as far as the story went. However, per Mr. Souza's suggestion, I listened to the tapes again; my opinion has not changed. All during that evening, Mr. Souza continually interrupted the mayor, who often avoided disruption of the meeting only by virtue of his great tact. If Mr. Souza dislikes being classed with "intolerant people" he should show less of that quality himself in his dealings with the citizens of Fairfax.

Also, I believe the audience supported Councilman Francis J. O'Connell merely for his honesty and straightforwardness in recognizing a valid point. He, too, has been a long and consistent critic of the "goings-on of the 1969 festival," and if Mr. Souza could think carefully, he may recall that Mr. O'Connell also voted against the festival. I, too, am a "pro-festival" person, but I still respect Mr. O'Connell for his consistent fairness, his straightforwardness, and, most important of all, his honesty.

Decorum Slips — Even In U. S. Senate

By ROY McGHEE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the British House of Commons, members jeer and cheer and trade insults.

Fistfights are not uncommon in the French Chamber of Deputies.

The Japanese Diet erupts in a free-for-all brawl now and then.

IN MODERN TIMES, only the United States Senate among democratic parliamentary bodies has insisted that decorum is as important as substance in debate. In fact, it's written into the rules and established by precedent.

But times change, and many fear the current penchant for militant and inflammatory rhetoric in the streets will soon be commonplace in the Senate.

An incident in the Senate recently, surprising as it was, reinforced those fears.

Sen. Norris Cotton, R-N.H., is a man with a short fuse. He was hopping mad that Gov. Walter Person and the University of New Hampshire Board of Trustees had named a former associate of Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., as university president. He took it out on McGovern.

THERE IS NOTHING unusual about one senator attacking another. It's done all the time in the Senate. But it's done decorously. And, as a matter of senatorial courtesy, the attacking senator always notifies the senator being attacked in advance, so the victim may be on the floor to defend himself.

Cotton ignored this fundamental courtesy. He also ignored an unwritten rule of the Senate that one senator never, never refers to another directly or by his last name. It's always, "the distinguished senator from . . .," or "the able and distinguished senior senator from . . .," or "my esteemed colleague from . . ."

But listen to Cotton: "Senator McGovern is one of a group of senators who have constantly addressed, encouraged or incited Washington demonstrators, whether they were invading the Pentagon, marching on the Capitol, or burning draft cards at the Washington Monument.

"It is not for me to question the patriotism or sincerity of Mr. McGovern and his associates, but whatever may be their motives, they are, in my opinion, and in the opinion of many of my associates, promoting disrepsect for the Congress, impeding the President in his efforts to end the war, and encouraging our enemies to refuse to negotiate for peace."

McGOVERN RESPONDED in kind. Cotton, McGovern said, "is one of those obsolete, self-styled experts whose patriotism consists largely of cheering from the sidelines while young men die in a foolish war he helped to foster."

This may seem a small matter in a world troubled by apocalyptic problems. But if the apocalypse will not be stayed by adherence to the traditional courtesies in these abrasive times, it might well be hastened by their abandonment.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Busing Decision Shows Court Unchanged By Political Winds

WASHINGTON — There are three aspects of the Supreme Court decision overruling President Nixon on school busing which deserve special attention:

1 — Every decision of the court bearing on school desegregation, from the historic verdict of 1954 to the four rulings last week, has been unanimous. This continuing unanimity is good evidence that the justices are acting as jurists, not as politicians.

2 — The make-up of the court has radically changed since 1954, but the pattern of its decisions on school integration remains the same. The court which handed down the rulings on busing and related matters is a creature of no single president. Only two of the justices who joined in the 1954 decision are on the court today. Five were appointed by two Republican presidents — Eisenhower and Nixon — and four by three different Democratic presidents — Roosevelt, Kennedy and Johnson.

3 — The major role which Warren Burger played in the latest decisions affirming the constitutionality of busing and the right of the district courts to lay down desegregation guidelines shows that any chief justice who is qualified for the job will be his own man, independent of the president who chose him.

PRESIDENT NIXON named Chief Justice Burger and Justice Harry Blackmun in part because he believed they would be his kind of "strict constructionists." They are proving to be their own kind of "strict constructionists" by ruling that reasonable busing to overcome racial discrimination is strictly constitutional.

In this very important decision, written by Mr. Burger himself, it is evident that there is a considerable gulf between the thinking of Nixon and that of the chief justice.

The latest ruling does put some limitations on the use of busing to achieve racial balance: It mustn't risk health or significantly impair education.

But the court ruled very broadly. It asserted that the lower courts must have power to order the busing of children far from home, when necessary, and to authorize even "bizarre" school boundaries and other inconveniences whenever needed to end state-imposed public school segregation.

THIS IS A FAR CRY from the concept laid down by President Nixon in a policy document issued about a year ago. He advocated the "neighborhood school" as something which he wanted preserved, saw busing as disruptive and overly expensive, and argued against "automatic assignment" of children "by some mathematical formula" for balance.

The Burger decision overrules this thinking at nearly every point. It doesn't call for any precise mathematical percentage of white and black students but it affirms the duty of the lower courts to assign students in a manner to bring about integrated school systems.

It is only fair to make it clear that the difference between Burger and Nixon concerns methods, not objectives. The chief justice believes that busing is a needed tool to end past wrongs. The president wants to use other devices, including special federal aid, to improve the quality of education during the process of desegregation.

NIXON'S REMARKABLE record of achievement in the whole area of civil rights and school integration has been skimpily reported in much of the media and is little understood.

The facts show that 15 years after the historic 1954 court decision only 5.2 per cent of Negro public schoolchildren in 11 southern states were in desegregated schools and that now, after two and a half years of the Nixon administration, the figure has risen to more than 90 per cent.

The real school desegregation problem today is in the North, not in the South.

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

There's No Easy Answer To Segregation Of Schools

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — Not long ago I startled a circle of Mississippi Republicans by saying I was sorry my children went to schools with such a tiny proportion of black classmates. They may have been startled because I have a natural southern accent, which thickens when I am talking to anybody from Mississippi. But of course the idea of any white's wanting his children to go to school with more blacks is startling in itself — and not just to Mississippians.

As I explained it, it is unnatural to grow up living one mile from the District of Columbia, where about three-fourths of the population and more than 90 per cent of the public school enrollment is black, without becoming acquainted with more than a casual handful of black children. Yet that is what my children have done.

One is in high school, and the extent of his involvement with blacks is playing on the same football team and hanging around the same hot shoppes. The other is in junior high, and her contacts are even fewer.

At this time in this world, especially this part of the world, that is unrealistic. You need not be a crusader for integration to see that that is not preparing teenagers to live in the world as it is.

THE EASY ANSWER, the one immediately volunteered by my Mississippi friends, was, "Why don't you just move into the district then, and they can go to a school that's 94 per cent black or whatever the figure is?"

But of course that is not realistic either — no more realistic for the tiny minority of white children than for the majority of blacks, who are not in such schools by choice.

The fact is that there is no easy answer. But because the solution is not easy or immediate, and may never be complete, is no reason to simply not try to make the world our children grow up in as much like the real world as possible. And that brings us to the Supreme Court's unanimous decision endorsing busing as a means of reaching racial balance in schools.

THERE ARE MANY steps available to school authorities before the last resort of busing. Gerrymandering of school districts, for example (or ungerrymandering, in frequent cases), can create a realistic racial mix. Such alternatives to busing have been there all along and are specifically cited in the opinion just handed down by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger on behalf of a unanimous court.

Burger's opinion is directly contrary to those stated by Mr. Nixon in his school desegregation message of 13 months ago, in which the President set up and repeatedly struck down the straw man of "compulsory busing." The difference between the President and the chief justice is that Mr. Nixon consults the public pulse before delivering his opinions, and his oppointee Burger consults the law instead. As a result, busing is no longer a straw-man threat but a clear and present, court-supported weapon against the status quo.

Certainly Mr. Nixon was right in his reading of public sentiment when he expressed himself against busing. Popular opposition to busing has not vanished in those 13 months. Even people who endorse civil rights advances in general often regard compulsory busing as arbitrary; they complain that is is unfair to the children who have to be bused while others remain in their previous schools, and they redouble those complaints if it is their own children who have to rise earlier and return home later each day.

Yet the busing decision still does not make that means of desegregation mandatory. It approves busing merely as one route that can be used by the lower courts. Where good-faith efforts to break down artificial school barriers replace the rhetoric and foot-dragging that have been so widespread up to now, busing may never be demanded, or where necessary may come on a limited scale.

THE KEY PHRASE there is good faith.

It has been a rare commodity in the years since that earlier court ruling of 1954. Where used by lawyers, the phrase often has been as hypocritical as "freedom of choice" came to be in school cases — meaning approximately the opposite of what was stated.

Still good faith is there, in its literal meaning, among most of the American people. Reluctant to come forth, perhaps, in the suburbs of the capital or the hamlets of Mississippi, both places where realistic averaging of the racial mixture will make drastic changes. But there nevertheless: and now that the threat of busing is formalized by the court, it is all the more logical for that good faith to be exercised toward racial realism. Where it remains socially unacceptable, it can always be camouflaged by restating that increasingly old truth, "It's the law of the land."

Reed District Eyes An Old Revenue Plan

Reed School District is considering a departure in school financing: the use of surplus school property to generate continuing revenue to supplement tax funds.

The Reed district finds itself with two sites bought for schools which have never been built, and for which there now appears no need. Rather than sell the properties, Mark Noble of Tiburon, a district resident who ran unsuccessfully for the school board in April 20 election, suggested that they be used for cluster housing which could bring in money to support the schools.

Although there were some objections to his idea, the district is looking into it.

WHEN NOBLE MADE his suggestion at an April 6 board meeting, he said, "No one has yet been able to find a reason, other than tradition, why such a program could not be established."

Had he gone far enough back in history, he would have found that tradition itself is behind such a method of school financing.

In 1641, the town of Boston set aside Deer Island, one of several islands in Boston Harbor belonging to the municipality, to help support the Boston Latin School, which was the first publicly established school in the British colonies in America. In 1649, it added Long and Spectacle Islands to the properties supporting the school, and let out under perpetual lease 500 municipally owned acres near Braintree for the same purpose.

Rentals from these properties went far toward supporting America's first public school. For instance, an entry in the town records for 1644 shows Deer Island was rented for three years at seven pounds sterling per year, the money to go to the school.

THERE ARE MANY other cases in colonial and early United States history where land was set aside for school support. The federal government itself undertook this method of school financing with the Morrill Act of 1862, which gave each state 30,000 acres of public land for each senator and representative, the money to finance establishment of agricultural and mechanical colleges. The University of California itself is such a "land-grant college."

Noble's idea for Reed School District is to set up a foundation which would arrange construction of cluster-type condominium housing on the surplus school sites, with all proceeds above expenses going to the school district. He believes it could result in expanding the school programs while lowering taxes.

One of the Reed district's two surplus sites, the 10-acre Ring Point site on Paradise Drive east of the Uplands, was bought in 1957 out of general tax revenues. The district could use it for housing if it so desired.

The other, the 13-acre North Central site on Hacienda Drive, was bought with state aid funds, so state permission would have to be obtained to put it to non-school use.

THE LEGAL PROBLEMS would take some solving, no doubt. But the idea of putting surplus school lands to use to provide continuing revenue, instead of selling them for a one-time-only gain, should be attractive to a district that already finds itself with more school plants than its enrollment justifies.

There is much talk about taking some of school support cost off the property tax. Here is a way to do it.

Visit Those Public Schools

It's a busy week for school janitors.

Rooms and hallways must be spotless this week, and even the blackboards must be clean; because it's Public Schools Week, when mom and dad are invited in to see the rooms and meet the teachers that make up their children's world during much of the year.

The teachers, too, must put their best foot forward (and some of them probably would admit that talking to the youngsters is preferable to talking to their parents). Examples of students' work is posted on the walls — and if junior's isn't there, he's likely to be questioned after mom and dad get home from their visit.

Public Schools Week is a great institution. It gives the parents a chance to find out, among other things, whether Miss Shark is really as "mean" as junior claims, and whether Mr. Yardstick is as handsome as daughter Jennifer describes him. And it gives parents also the opportunity to get at least a glimmering of what goes on in those classrooms.

If you haven't visited a school this week, do so before the week is out. The list of open house events appears elsewhere in today's I-J. And here's a suggestion: If your child is in elementary school and you've visited it, also visit the high school he or she will be attending a few years from now. You'll be glad you did, later on.

Dispelling An 'Old Myth' Or Adding To Efficiency

(Reprinted from Wall Street Journal)

The Civil Service Commission says it would like to dispel the "old myth" that federal employes can't be fired. They can be, of course, though the red tape involved is so great that some agencies seldom try to cut their way through it.

Actually, about 15,000 federal workers are fired in an average year, out of a total work force of about three million. The figure does not include employes whose jobs disappear, for example in the closing of a military base.

Those employes who actually are discharged, the commission worries, incur a public stigma. Since the public thinks that firings are all but impossible, it's likely to believe that a federal worker who gets the ax is really a hopeless incompetent.

To counter this problem the commission is considering a two-part approach. First, it would provide counseling and other help for employes who are doing an inadequate job, in the hope of improving their performance. If they don't shape up, the commission plan would make it simpler to fire them.

Perhaps this would help dispel that "old myth." More important, it seems to us, it just might help to promote a more efficient federal work force.

Academic Freedom: Pair Of Definitions

Julien Dedman, the author of "Boola Boola" and an alumnus of Yale, recently wrote an essay entitled "The Rape of Yale." In it he included several definitions of academic freedom that I thought you might like to share with your readers. One of these Mr. Dedman attributes to another un-named alumnus and is as follows: "A self-paralyzing anodyne which dictates that one must smile as one's throat is being cut, provided that the cutting is being done by a Ph.D."

The other definition is, "Academic freedom at Yale is a one-way street for left-bound traffic only." Any positive correlation existing between academic freedom at Yale and any of our local institutions of higher learning is purely coincidental, or is it?

Upholds Reporter On Fairfax Meeting

I would like to comment on Councilman Robert R. Souza's letter to the editor of April 20 re the April 12 council meeting. As an eyewitness, I, too, thought the reporter was accurate as far as the story went. However, per Mr. Souza's suggestion, I listened to the tapes again; my opinion has not changed. All during that evening, Mr. Souza continually interrupted the mayor, who often avoided disruption of the meeting only by virtue of his great tact. If Mr. Souza dislikes being classed with "intolerant people" he should show less of that quality himself in his dealings with the citizens of Fairfax.

Also, I believe the audience supported Councilman Francis J. O'Connell merely for his honesty and straightforwardness in recognizing a valid point. He, too, has been a long and consistent critic of the "goings-on of the 1969 festival," and if Mr. Souza could think carefully, he may recall that Mr. O'Connell also voted against the festival. I, too, am a "pro-festival" person, but I still respect Mr. O'Connell for his consistent fairness, his straightforwardness, and, most important of all, his honesty.

Decorum Slips — Even In U. S. Senate

By ROY McGHEE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the British House of Commons, members jeer and cheer and trade insults.

Fistfights are not uncommon in the French Chamber of Deputies.

The Japanese Diet erupts in a free-for-all brawl now and then.

IN MODERN TIMES, only the United States Senate among democratic parliamentary bodies has insisted that decorum is as important as substance in debate. In fact, it's written into the rules and established by precedent.

But times change, and many fear the current penchant for militant and inflammatory rhetoric in the streets will soon be commonplace in the Senate.

An incident in the Senate recently, surprising as it was, reinforced those fears.

Sen. Norris Cotton, R-N.H., is a man with a short fuse. He was hopping mad that Gov. Walter Person and the University of New Hampshire Board of Trustees had named a former associate of Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., as university president. He took it out on McGovern.

THERE IS NOTHING unusual about one senator attacking another. It's done all the time in the Senate. But it's done decorously. And, as a matter of senatorial courtesy, the attacking senator always notifies the senator being attacked in advance, so the victim may be on the floor to defend himself.

Cotton ignored this fundamental courtesy. He also ignored an unwritten rule of the Senate that one senator never, never refers to another directly or by his last name. It's always, "the distinguished senator from . . .," or "the able and distinguished senior senator from . . .," or "my esteemed colleague from . . ."

But listen to Cotton: "Senator McGovern is one of a group of senators who have constantly addressed, encouraged or incited Washington demonstrators, whether they were invading the Pentagon, marching on the Capitol, or burning draft cards at the Washington Monument.

"It is not for me to question the patriotism or sincerity of Mr. McGovern and his associates, but whatever may be their motives, they are, in my opinion, and in the opinion of many of my associates, promoting disrepsect for the Congress, impeding the President in his efforts to end the war, and encouraging our enemies to refuse to negotiate for peace."

McGOVERN RESPONDED in kind. Cotton, McGovern said, "is one of those obsolete, self-styled experts whose patriotism consists largely of cheering from the sidelines while young men die in a foolish war he helped to foster."

This may seem a small matter in a world troubled by apocalyptic problems. But if the apocalypse will not be stayed by adherence to the traditional courtesies in these abrasive times, it might well be hastened by their abandonment.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Busing Decision Shows Court Unchanged By Political Winds

WASHINGTON — There are three aspects of the Supreme Court decision overruling President Nixon on school busing which deserve special attention:

1 — Every decision of the court bearing on school desegregation, from the historic verdict of 1954 to the four rulings last week, has been unanimous. This continuing unanimity is good evidence that the justices are acting as jurists, not as politicians.

2 — The make-up of the court has radically changed since 1954, but the pattern of its decisions on school integration remains the same. The court which handed down the rulings on busing and related matters is a creature of no single president. Only two of the justices who joined in the 1954 decision are on the court today. Five were appointed by two Republican presidents — Eisenhower and Nixon — and four by three different Democratic presidents — Roosevelt, Kennedy and Johnson.

3 — The major role which Warren Burger played in the latest decisions affirming the constitutionality of busing and the right of the district courts to lay down desegregation guidelines shows that any chief justice who is qualified for the job will be his own man, independent of the president who chose him.

PRESIDENT NIXON named Chief Justice Burger and Justice Harry Blackmun in part because he believed they would be his kind of "strict constructionists." They are proving to be their own kind of "strict constructionists" by ruling that reasonable busing to overcome racial discrimination is strictly constitutional.

In this very important decision, written by Mr. Burger himself, it is evident that there is a considerable gulf between the thinking of Nixon and that of the chief justice.

The latest ruling does put some limitations on the use of busing to achieve racial balance: It mustn't risk health or significantly impair education.

But the court ruled very broadly. It asserted that the lower courts must have power to order the busing of children far from home, when necessary, and to authorize even "bizarre" school boundaries and other inconveniences whenever needed to end state-imposed public school segregation.

THIS IS A FAR CRY from the concept laid down by President Nixon in a policy document issued about a year ago. He advocated the "neighborhood school" as something which he wanted preserved, saw busing as disruptive and overly expensive, and argued against "automatic assignment" of children "by some mathematical formula" for balance.

The Burger decision overrules this thinking at nearly every point. It doesn't call for any precise mathematical percentage of white and black students but it affirms the duty of the lower courts to assign students in a manner to bring about integrated school systems.

It is only fair to make it clear that the difference between Burger and Nixon concerns methods, not objectives. The chief justice believes that busing is a needed tool to end past wrongs. The president wants to use other devices, including special federal aid, to improve the quality of education during the process of desegregation.

NIXON'S REMARKABLE record of achievement in the whole area of civil rights and school integration has been skimpily reported in much of the media and is little understood.

The facts show that 15 years after the historic 1954 court decision only 5.2 per cent of Negro public schoolchildren in 11 southern states were in desegregated schools and that now, after two and a half years of the Nixon administration, the figure has risen to more than 90 per cent.

The real school desegregation problem today is in the North, not in the South.

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

There's No Easy Answer To Segregation Of Schools

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — Not long ago I startled a circle of Mississippi Republicans by saying I was sorry my children went to schools with such a tiny proportion of black classmates. They may have been startled because I have a natural southern accent, which thickens when I am talking to anybody from Mississippi. But of course the idea of any white's wanting his children to go to school with more blacks is startling in itself — and not just to Mississippians.

As I explained it, it is unnatural to grow up living one mile from the District of Columbia, where about three-fourths of the population and more than 90 per cent of the public school enrollment is black, without becoming acquainted with more than a casual handful of black children. CTA Sees Non-Existent Threat In Tenure Bill

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

"Tenure is vital to education! Write your legislator!" urged the California Teachers Association at the top of the first page of its April 13 Legislative Letter.

The CTA wants its members to write their legislators to oppose Assembly Bill 293, by Assemblyman John Stull, R-Encinitas. Many of them have done it, according to the same issue of the Legislative Letter, which reported:

"Never, in the last decade, to the knowledge of the CTA Legislative Letter's editor, have so many teachers responded so faithfully and well to calls for help from the governmental relations staff on legislative issues as they have this year.

"CTA advocates Bill Logan and Wayne Carothers report that letters to legislators from teachers on the tenure and voucher issues have reached deluge proportions . . . "

FROM ALL THIS, one might think that AB 293 was a bill to abolish teacher tenure. However, it is nothing of the kind.

It would keep teacher tenure, with many safeguards. But it would eliminate the provision in the present law for superior court review of every contested teacher firing. The courts would be taken out of the picture entirely.

Instead, Stull's bill provides for a hearing by a state hearing officer, attended by a panel of three professional educators, one to be chosen by the school board, the second by the teacher the board wants to dismiss, and the third by the first two.

If the hearing officer and panel agree, their decision is binding on the school board. If they do not agree, the board has the final decision.

ALSO, AB 293 provides that the hearing officer and panel may recommend a lesser penalty than firing, in the case of a "border-line" teacher. Such a teacher could be put back on probation for one or two years to give him a chance to shape up.

It also provides that a probationary teacher, on completing three years in a district, may as result of a similar hearing be kept on probation one or two years longer. And it makes "probationary" mean what it says, by giving the school board final decision on dismissing a probationary teacher.

It retains the same reasons for dismissal that are now in the law. And to further guard against arbitrary school board actions, it requires that each school district adopt guidelines for evaluating teacher performance, make an annual evaluation of each teacher, and provide counseling when a teacher's performance is unsatisfactory — all this before attempting dismissal.

THE ALMOST-HYSTERICAL opposition to this bill by CTA — in which it is joined by the California Federation of Teachers — is based primarily on the elimination of the superior court hearing. Says the CTA Legislative Letter:

"To CTA and some legislators who have spoken out, the superior court hearing is the only guarantee of fair play that an accused teacher has."

Why the teachers' organization is so anxious to keep the superior court hearing in the dismissal process may puzzle a lot of people. But school boards know. They are reluctant to move to dismiss even the most incompetent teachers, because every such case is likely to require at least a year to move through court. The school board thus must hire another teacher and face the possibility that, a year or more later, because of the decision of a judge in an area in which he is no expert, it will have to restore the fired teacher to his job and pay him for the time he didn't work — as well as keeping his replacement.

The CTA, however, must now battle against another tenure bill as well as Stull's: SB 697 by state Sen. Albert S. Rodda, D-Sacramento. This is the bill resulting from recommendations of the California State Board of Education. It does not contain all the features of Stull's AB 293 — but it, too, eliminates the superior court hearing.

New Use Seen For L-Dopa Drug

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A group of doctors reported here today that L-Dopa, a drug which has been effective in the treatment of Parkinson's Disease, may also prove useful in treatment of shock caused by heart failure.

Dr. Eliot Corday, clinical professor of medicine, UCLA Medical School, and Drs. Jose R. Lozano, Hugo Carasco and Tzu-Wang of Cedars-Sinai Medical Research Institute, said that treatment had been successful when the drug was tested on animals.

The doctors said that the tests were so encouraging that they are extending the work to humans.

Bolinas Director To Be Appointed

The Bolinas Community Public Utility District Board will hold a special meeting at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the district office to appoint a director to the board, said Helen McKay, assistant secretary of the district.

The board will hold a closed session and then open the meeting to appoint someone to fill the unexpired term of Albert W. Meyer which runs until November 1973.

Sewer Line Smoke Tests Are Slated

The Almonte Sanitary District board has notified homeowners that the district will conduct smoke testing of sewer lines to detect leaks responsible for storm water infiltration of sewer mains.

Secretary John J. Crncich said the testing will begin next Monday and will be conducted by Roto-Rooter Co.

Photos of leaks will be taken and stakes driven where they are found, Crncich said. Homeowners will be notified and given 60 days to correct leaks on their property, he said.

Storm water infiltration causes raw sewage to be dumped into Richardson Bay during winter rains and "is a potential health hazard and in direct violation of the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board," said Crncich.

The need for dredging Gallinas Creek channel this year and how it is to be funded will be discussed by the Advisory Board of Marin County Service Area 6 at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the supervisors' chambers at the Civic Center.

Supervisors Back Youth Panel On Omitting Juvenile Names

Marin County supervisors yesterday backed Marin Youth Commission in urging newspapers not to publish the names of juveniles who run afoul of the law.

On a motion by Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., supervisors voted unanimously to ask the newspapers to reconsider the policy of printing juvenile names.

Youth commissioners Laurie Packard of Corte Madera and Peter Sorensen of Novato said they had written the Independent-Journal and other papers in an effort to halt the publication of minors' names but got no response. They said publication of juvenile names jeopardizes the rehabilitation of youth.

In fact, publication often has the reverse effect of making heroes of the offenders, Miss Packard said "They may cut out news items and use them for prestige, and some may try to live up to their reputation."

L. Charles Smith, youth coordinator, said his main objection is that only the arrest is published and not the outcome of the case because juvenile proceedings are closed.

On a motion by John F. McInnis, supervisors also passed another motion asking the youth commission to invite all newspapers in Marin to sit down with the commission and with the Juvenile Delinquency Prevention Commission to discuss the policy on publishing of juvenile names.

Such a discussion would disclose the pros and cons and would provide some basis on which to judge, said McInnis. "At this point, I don't know the answer."

Paul M. Cohen, chairman of the youth commission, said youth wants more representation on the 11-man commission, which is now divided seven youths and four adults. He said one suggestion is that the commission be composed of 10 youths and two adults.

Supervisor chairman Louis H. Baar asked the youth commission to make its proposal in writing and submit it to supervisors.

The supervisors also went on record supporting the right to vote for 18-year-olds.

Redwood Sophomores Plan Benefit Wash

Proceeds will be used for class activities, she said.

Preliminary Nod To Rec Budget

The San Rafael Parks and Recreation Commission has approved a preliminary $352,132 budget for fiscal 1971-72.

This budget, approved Monday night, is $28,543 more than the current $323,589 budget, Andrew J. Snyder Jr., parks and recreation director, said.

The budget will now go to the city manager and then to the city council for further revisions and final passage, Snyder said.

The commission Monday made a few small cuts in the budget proposed by Snyder and his staff, to affect a $700 decrease.

CTA Sees Non-Existent Threat In Tenure Bill

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

"Tenure is vital to education! Write your legislator!" urged the California Teachers Association at the top of the first page of its April 13 Legislative Letter.

The CTA wants its members to write their legislators to oppose Assembly Bill 293, by Assemblyman John Stull, R-Encinitas. Many of them have done it, according to the same issue of the Legislative Letter, which reported:

"Never, in the last decade, to the knowledge of the CTA Legislative Letter's editor, have so many teachers responded so faithfully and well to calls for help from the governmental relations staff on legislative issues as they have this year.

"CTA advocates Bill Logan and Wayne Carothers report that letters to legislators from teachers on the tenure and voucher issues have reached deluge proportions . . . "

FROM ALL THIS, one might think that AB 293 was a bill to abolish teacher tenure. However, it is nothing of the kind.

It would keep teacher tenure, with many safeguards. But it would eliminate the provision in the present law for superior court review of every contested teacher firing. The courts would be taken out of the picture entirely.

Instead, Stull's bill provides for a hearing by a state hearing officer, attended by a panel of three professional educators, one to be chosen by the school board, the second by the teacher the board wants to dismiss, and the third by the first two.

If the hearing officer and panel agree, their decision is binding on the school board. If they do not agree, the board has the final decision.

ALSO, AB 293 provides that the hearing officer and panel may recommend a lesser penalty than firing, in the case of a "border-line" teacher. Such a teacher could be put back on probation for one or two years to give him a chance to shape up.

It also provides that a probationary teacher, on completing three years in a district, may as result of a similar hearing be kept on probation one or two years longer. And it makes "probationary" mean what it says, by giving the school board final decision on dismissing a probationary teacher.

It retains the same reasons for dismissal that are now in the law. And to further guard against arbitrary school board actions, it requires that each school district adopt guidelines for evaluating teacher performance, make an annual evaluation of each teacher, and provide counseling when a teacher's performance is unsatisfactory — all this before attempting dismissal.

THE ALMOST-HYSTERICAL opposition to this bill by CTA — in which it is joined by the California Federation of Teachers — is based primarily on the elimination of the superior court hearing. Says the CTA Legislative Letter:

"To CTA and some legislators who have spoken out, the superior court hearing is the only guarantee of fair play that an accused teacher has."

Why the teachers' organization is so anxious to keep the superior court hearing in the dismissal process may puzzle a lot of people. But school boards know. They are reluctant to move to dismiss even the most incompetent teachers, because every such case is likely to require at least a year to move through court. The school board thus must hire another teacher and face the possibility that, a year or more later, because of the decision of a judge in an area in which he is no expert, it will have to restore the fired teacher to his job and pay him for the time he didn't work — as well as keeping his replacement.

The CTA, however, must now battle against another tenure bill as well as Stull's: SB 697 by state Sen. Albert S. Rodda, D-Sacramento. This is the bill resulting from recommendations of the California State Board of Education. It does not contain all the features of Stull's AB 293 — but it, too, eliminates the superior court hearing.

New Use Seen For L-Dopa Drug

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A group of doctors reported here today that L-Dopa, a drug which has been effective in the treatment of Parkinson's Disease, may also prove useful in treatment of shock caused by heart failure.

Dr. Eliot Corday, clinical professor of medicine, UCLA Medical School, and Drs. Jose R. Lozano, Hugo Carasco and Tzu-Wang of Cedars-Sinai Medical Research Institute, said that treatment had been successful when the drug was tested on animals.

The doctors said that the tests were so encouraging that they are extending the work to humans.

Bolinas Director To Be Appointed

The Bolinas Community Public Utility District Board will hold a special meeting at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the district office to appoint a director to the board, said Helen McKay, assistant secretary of the district.

The board will hold a closed session and then open the meeting to appoint someone to fill the unexpired term of Albert W. Meyer which runs until November 1973.

Sewer Line Smoke Tests Are Slated

The Almonte Sanitary District board has notified homeowners that the district will conduct smoke testing of sewer lines to detect leaks responsible for storm water infiltration of sewer mains.

Secretary John J. Crncich said the testing will begin next Monday and will be conducted by Roto-Rooter Co.

Photos of leaks will be taken and stakes driven where they are found, Crncich said. Homeowners will be notified and given 60 days to correct leaks on their property, he said.

Storm water infiltration causes raw sewage to be dumped into Richardson Bay during winter rains and "is a potential health hazard and in direct violation of the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board," said Crncich.

Creek Discussion

The need for dredging Gallinas Creek channel this year and how it is to be funded will be discussed by the Advisory Board of Marin County Service Area 6 at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the supervisors' chambers at the Civic Center.

Supervisors Back Youth Panel On Omitting Juvenile Names

Marin County supervisors yesterday backed Marin Youth Commission in urging newspapers not to publish the names of juveniles who run afoul of the law.

On a motion by Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., supervisors voted unanimously to ask the newspapers to reconsider the policy of printing juvenile names.

Youth commissioners Laurie Packard of Corte Madera and Peter Sorensen of Novato said they had written the Independent-Journal and other papers in an effort to halt the publication of minors' names but got no response. They said publication of juvenile names jeopardizes the rehabilitation of youth.

In fact, publication often has the reverse effect of making heroes of the offenders, Miss Packard said "They may cut out news items and use them for prestige, and some may try to live up to their reputation."

L. Charles Smith, youth coordinator, said his main objection is that only the arrest is published and not the outcome of the case because juvenile proceedings are closed.

On a motion by John F. McInnis, supervisors also passed another motion asking the youth commission to invite all newspapers in Marin to sit down with the commission and with the Juvenile Delinquency Prevention Commission to discuss the policy on publishing of juvenile names.

Such a discussion would disclose the pros and cons and would provide some basis on which to judge, said McInnis. "At this point, I don't know the answer."

Paul M. Cohen, chairman of the youth commission, said youth wants more representation on the 11-man commission, which is now divided seven youths and four adults. He said one suggestion is that the commission be composed of 10 youths and two adults.

Supervisor chairman Louis H. Baar asked the youth commission to make its proposal in writing and submit it to supervisors.

The supervisors also went on record supporting the right to vote for 18-year-olds.

Redwood Sophomores Plan Benefit Wash

The sophomore class at Redwood High School will conduct a car wash from 11:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Saturday at the Chevron service station at 706 Tamalpais Drive, Corte Madera, according to Minday Lawson, class representative.

Proceeds will be used for class activities, she said.

Preliminary Nod To Rec Budget

The San Rafael Parks and Recreation Commission has approved a preliminary $352,132 budget for fiscal 1971-72.

This budget, approved Monday night, is $28,543 more than the current $323,589 budget, Andrew J. Snyder Jr., parks and recreation director, said.

The budget will now go to the city manager and then to the city council for further revisions and final passage, Snyder said.

The commission Monday made a few small cuts in the budget proposed by Snyder and his staff, to affect a $700 decrease.

Public Drinking Sparks Lively Sausalito Debate

A proposal by Sausalito's city attorney to make public consumption of alcoholic beverages in the city an infraction rather than a misdemeanor, inspired one councilman last night to suggest the city drop the prohibition entirely.

City Atty. Leland H. Jordan had suggested the change because he felt it would save the city time and money in prosecuting such cases. Many persons plead not guilty because violation of the current city ordinance gives the violator a criminal record and subjects him to a possible penalty of six months in the county jail and a $500 fine.

If public drinking were an infraction, Jordan said, violators could not demand jury trials as they often do now and, in addition, a violation would not result in a criminal record because an infraction is not a crime.

"If drinking in public isn't a crime, maybe we shouldn't prosecute it at all," Councilman Wyman Hicks said and added: "Perhaps we ought to take a second look at some of the ordinances we have (regulating behavior); maybe we don't need all of them.

"No one is offended unless a person who drinks misbehaves," Hicks said. "The law we have now says that if a person wants to drink, he has to do it in a bar and I question that."

Councilman Robin Sweeny said the city has a responsibility for what happens on its public streets and parks. "We have laws governing what goes on in bars, laws requiring barkeeps to stop serving people who are intoxicated," she said. "Before we give up any controls on our property, the public streets and parks, I'd want to have some good substitutes."

"Do you object to people consuming a beverage in a public place? That's really what this law is all about," Hicks asked. Drinking a coke is one thing, Mrs. Sweeny countered, but drinking alcohol "creates behavioral problems."

The city can take action against the person who misbehaves, Hicks pointed out, but why not leave the quiet drinker who disturbs no one alone, he suggested.

Police Chief James D. Wright pointed out that children are prohibited from entering bars and people who are offended by drinking don't go into them. "People who go to Princess Park with their children may be offended by someone slopping wine around," the chief said.

"What if they drink it without slopping? Hicks asked Wright. "Well, you can split hairs, I guess," the chief replied.

Mayor Alexander R. Imlay said he would like to know what members of the public feel about the matter, "what kinds of conduct the public wants us to regulate here." "Yes, I think organized park drunks should be heard from too," Hicks retorted.

The council agreed to consider the matter at a future meeting.

The council also asked Wight to be prepared to explain police policies at the council meeting May 4. The request followed a comment by Hicks that he had heard the department "uses unnecessary force in carrying out its duties." Councilmen Sweeney and Earl F. Dunphy said they were satisfied with police action in Sausalito.

The Sausalito City Council also:

PARKING FEES — Voted to introduce an ordinance to increase fees in Municipal Parking Lot No. 1 from 50 to 75 cents an hour and to keep the lot open from 6 to 10 p.m., charging cars which parked there during evening hours at a $2 rate. Resident parking during the evening would be free.

DOG LEASH LAW — Heard first reading of an ordinance requiring that all dogs be leashed in the city's commercial district. The leash law would apply on Bridgeway from Richardson to Napa streets, on all of Caledonia Streets and in city parks.

FINANCE COMMITTEE — Set a meeting of the council's finance committee to consider proposed police and fire budgets for May 6 at 8 p.m. in city hall.

ADVERTISING — Introduced an ordinance which would prevent advertising displays in public streets, including vehicles with advertising signs parked in the street for advertising purposes.

USE PERMIT — Asked staff to prepare an ordinance which would require that businesses seeking to obtain liquor licenses would have to have a use permit issued by the city.

New York Will Purchase Theater

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Public Theater, producers of free Shakespeare performances in Central Park during the summer, will be purchased by the city for $2.6 million.

The city council approved the purchase Tuesday despite the objections of some councilmen who described it as a "private give-away."

Joseph Papp, who directs the theater located in Greenwich Village, said the theater was more important to the city than Yankee Stadium. The city has already announced plans to buy the stadium, home of the baseball Yankees and football Giants, for $24 million.

Review Board For Businesses Aired

A proposal to establish a business license review board to extend the city's control over businesses in the community was debated by the Sausalito City Council last night.

In the end, the council reached no agreement over the plan presented by City Mgr. Albert St. Cyr, but asked the city staff to study the matter further and make a recommendation at a future meeting.

St. Cyr's proposed board — similar to one established recently in Carmel — would review all applications for business licenses (or renewal of such licenses). He said the board would determine the effect each business would have on the community, including its "compatibility with existing plans and laws and its potential for creating police, fire health or nuisance-generating problems.

The board, which would have the power to deny a license, would also consider the appearence and upkeep of a business, its proposed methods of operation, management and types of customers before making a decision, the city manager said.

St. Cyr suggested the board include the city manager, the police and fire chiefs, building inspector, planning director and a member of the Sausalito Chamber of Commerce whose board of directors has endorsed the plan.

The proposal drew sharp criticism from Councilman Wyman Hicks who asked if the board proposed to act as a "shopping center board," deciding what kind of businesses should be allowed in Sausalito and how many of each type of operation. "Is the city council going to say we are not going to have a free enterprise system in Sausalito,?" businessman Fred Perry asked.

Councilmen Robin Sweeny and Stephen A. Fraser endorsed the idea of more city control over business. "This is an effort to maintain and improve the quality of businesses in our city so they don't deteriorate into just junk, "Mrs. Sweeny said. "I'm in favor of any additional controls the city can exercise over the upgrading of business," she added.

Hicks replied that the persons suggested for the board already review applications within their own spheres of expertise; for example, the fire chief inspects business establishments to see they conform to fire regulations. "But I'm completely opposed to having the fire chief able to vote against issuing a business license because he doesn't want another ski shop in town," Hicks said.

Innocent Plea To Dope Charges

Stephen John Ruskewicz, 26, of Mill Valley, pleaded innocent Monday in Marin Superior Court to charges of possessing marijuana and LSD at his home Sept. 17.

Jury trial was set for the week of June 28.

Ruskewicz was arrested after a man picked up in San Francisco for selling LSD was trailed to Ruskewicz's home. Officers later returned to the house with a warrant and said they found 89 tabs of LSD and several pieces of hashish.

Mill Valley Police Eye School Bomb, Bank Blast Link

Also Checking Weathermen Sign At Tam High Explosion Scene

Classes resumed today at Tamalpais High School as Mill Valley police investigated a link between yesterday's bombing and a blast that damaged the Bank of America in Mill Valley last week.

Police also were checking the possibility that the device, which cracked plaster, wrecked a procelain water tank, broke five windows and slightly injured a girl student, was set by members of the radical Weathermen.

Juvenile officer Jeffrey R. Sousa said today the explosion, which rocked an empty boy's restroom in Keyser Hall at 11:36 a.m., was caused by a galvanized pipe bomb about six inches long and three-fourths of an inch in diameter.

All fragments of the pipe were recovered, but no timing device was found among the 50 pounds of rubble collected, he said, suggesting that the bomb was detonated by a fuse.

A similar pipe bomb, also set off by a fuse, exploded at the Bank of America in downtown Mill Valley shortly after 8 a.m. Friday, shattering a plate glass window and scattering glass,

Twister Kills 12 In South

COLUMBIA, Ky. (UPI) — Tornadoes cut a deadly path of destruction through five south central Kentucky counties Tuesday night and early today and made "match twigs" of buildings in several rural areas.

At least 12 persons were known dead and 100 were injured by the tornadoes which concentrated their fury in rural areas. Six persons were killed in the Mount Pleasant settlement of Cane Valley, Ky., state police said. At least 40 other persons were reported injured in the area.

Cary Eaton, a Greensburg, Ky., civil defense worker, was one of the first to arrive at Mount Pleasant to aid in rescue operations.

"It made match twigs out of everything," Eaton said. "When we started looking for people, we found them in all kinds of places away from their homes.

"They were just thrown clear from the debris."

Twisted and broken lumber from the homes was 300 to 400 yards away from foundations. Much of the lumber was wrapped around trees.

Kentucky Gov. Louie B. Nunn surveyed the damage from a National Guard helicopter then landed near Mount Pleasant.

"It's much worse than we thought," Nunn said. "We've just got to get all the help we can for these people."

Mrs. Robbie McCarrol, 22, and her daughter, were killed in Mount Pleasant. The husband, Fred, and a six-year-old son were injured.

Also killed in Mount Pleasant were Douglas Frodge, 7; Mr. and Mrs. Huey Smith, who were in their 60's, and Mrs. Anna Kundiff, 70, who was visiting with the Smith's when the tornado struck. Her home, located about 200 yards away, was not damaged.

Three persons were reported killed at South Hill, Ky., in Butler County, and 25 were injured. Two other persons were killed and at least 40 were injured in Salem, KY.

One person was killed and at least 20 were injured when a tornado skipped down the main street of Thompsonville, a community of about 450 persons. Ten persons were hospitalized.

Rewards Offered In School, Banks Bombs

The Independent-Journal today offers $1,500 reward in the bombing of Tamalpais High School yesterday, and $500 reward in each of two bombings of Marin branches of the Bank of America.

The rewards will be paid for information sent anonymously to Secret Witness, leading to arrest and conviction of those guilty.

Publisher Wishard A. Brown authorized the rewards from the $10,000 Secret Witness fund immediately after learning of the Tamalpais High School bombing yesterday.

Bombs wrecked doors and windows at the Bank of America branch in Mill Valley on April 23 and in Sausalito exactly one month earlier. There has been no arrest in either case.

The Secret Witness is a program initiated by the Detroit News, and subsequently adopted under newspaper sponsorship in several other cities, designed to aid law enforcement officers in the solution of heinous crimes. It has the endorsement of all Marin County law enforcement agencies and the cooperation of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Anyone having information that may lead to solution of the Tamalpais High School bombing or either or both of the Bank of America bombings may write that information on a plain sheet of paper, without disclosing his identity.

On each bottom corner of the sheet, he should write the same series of five numbers, arranged as he wishes (as "98765" for instance). He should tear off and keep one corner, then mail the letter in a plain envelope to Secret Witness, P. O. Box 330, San Rafael 94902.

If the information results in arrest and conviction, he has only to present the torn-off number to a Secret Witness award trustee who will be appointed by publisher Brown following the arrest, and he will be paid the reward.

In addition to the rewards offered today, the I-J's Secret Witness program has the following rewards standing for solution of the crimes listed:

In the Marin Hall of Justice bombing of last October, $1,000.

In the February burglary of the San Anselmo home of Gordon L. Chan, $200.

Hub Council Veto On Housing Issue

By M. STREET BROOKS

The San Anselmo City Council decided last night against requiring a developer to set aside a portion of his project for low-cost housing. (Another San Anselmo City Council story, page 12.)

The council in approving rezoning for a 70-unit apartment project eliminated a planning commission stipulation that 5 per cent, or four of the units be for low-income rental.

The project was approved following lengthly public discussion both for and against the low-income clause and was highlighted by a brief temper flare-up by city Attorney John G. Buresh directed at Councilman Lewis W. Stewart.

With the stipulation that 5 per cent of the units be low-income housing, the planning commission earlier this month approved plans submitted by David Lewis for rezoning property on Sunny Hills Drive behind Red Hill Shopping Center from single residential to multiple dwelling units.

But when the matter came up for approval last night, Buresh advised councilmen that such a stipulation "shouldn't even be considered." He said, "I think it's a form of legal blackmail to do it."

Later in the meeting Steward attempted to explain why the stipulation had been made. "We aren't trying blackmail," he said before being cut off by Buresh.

"I don't care what you think," the attorney snapped. He said he had made his statement to the council. "If you want to take me on, go ahead."

Philip Merriman, financial consultant to Lewis, said the developer would lose $60,000 if four units were leased to the

Angela's Description Of Jail Life

Angela Y. Davis yesterday described her life in Marin County Jail as "a world where silence is broken only by the clanging of prison doors."

The description was included in one of five affidavits filed in Marin Superior Cout in support of a previously filed motion that she be released on bail.

In addition to one by Miss Davis, affidavits were filed by her former professor, Herbert Marcuse; San Francisco minister A. Cecil Williams; Tolbert J. Small, an Oakland physician, and Robert Hoover, director of a small liberal arts college in East Palo Alto.

Miss Davis has been jailed since her arrest in New York City last Oct. 13. She was held at the Women's House of Detention in New York until she was extradited to Marin Dec. 22, and she has been housed at the Marin County Jail since.

She is charged, along with San Quentin inmate Ruchell Magee, with murder, kidnapping and conspiracy in connection with the Aug. 7 shoot-out at the Marin Hall of Justice in which four persons, including a superior court judge, were killed.

The two defendants are to return to Marin Superior Court tomorrow for further proceedings on several pre-trial motions, but her bid for bail is not among those selected for early hearing by Judge Alan A. Lindsay of Alameda County, who has been appointed to the case.

In her affidavit filed yesterday, but dated March 16, Miss Davis says that the Marin County Jail is "not structurally designed to house long-term inmates and it lacks facilities and equipment necessary for the health and welfare of its long-term inmates, like myself."

She said there is no sports or exercise equipment and little sunlight in an exercise yard in which, she said, she had been allowed to exercise only to-and-one-half hours in the period between Dec. 22 and March 16.

She has never had a cellmate and is not allowed to fraternize with other female inmates, Miss Davis said, adding "were it not for my visitors from the 'outside world,' I would be left in utter isolation here, with no one to talk to but myself.

She said jail conditions are "demoralizing and unhealthy" and hinder her from working on her defense or continuing her work for a doctoral degree in philosophy from the University of California at San Diego.

In his affidavit, Dr. Small said he has been her physician since Jan. 30 and agreed that jail conditions are unhealthy, saying her release on bail is "imperative to her development as a physically healthy

'Polite' Arrests of Antiwar Protesters

WASHINGTON (UPI) —More than 200 antiwar protesters were arrested without violence today after they barricaded the entry to national Selective Service headquarters with their bodies.

The arrests, carried out with almost punctilious politeness, climaxed an all-night vigil conducted by the demonstrators in drizzling, chilly April weather.

Police said 205 were taken in custody.

About 50 Washington police moved in just before Selective Service employees began arriving for work. By 9 a.m., only two mothers with infant children were left, huddling from the rain under blankets and a bright green umbrella.

Washington Police Chief Jerry Wilson refused to arrest the women because he said they were not interfering with entry to the headquarters. Most of those arrested were charged with disorderly conduct and blocking an entrance.

Seventeen were booked on charges of unlawful entry. These apparently resulted from a brief skirmish outside the back door of the building between demonstrators and building guards and police.

The protesters took a different tact this morning at the Internal Revenue Service Building, which occupies a block along Constitution Avenue at 11th St. Instead of blocking entrances, they opened the doors for arriving employes and handed them peace literature.

A handful of protesters was at each entrance to the IRS building where more than 5,000 persons work.

There were no incidents, but for the first time during the

Kaiser Center Branch Of Bank Of America Bombed

OAKLAND (UPI) —A Bank of Americ branch was bombed today at the Kaiser Center skyscraper in the heart of downtown Oakland. It was the 26th attack on branches of the world's largest bank.

The blast occurred shortly after 6 a. m. before the arrival of the thousands of office employees who work in the huge 28-story building on Lake Merritt in the center of the city. city.

There were no injuries, but the blast caused extsnsive damage to glass, hardware and marble.

The Oakland police bomb squad sought to determine what kind of explosive was used.

Sabotage attacks on Bank of America branches throughout California have increased in frequency during recent weeks. Eight days ago a branch in Berkeley was bombed for the second time this year.

Besides the 26 bombings there have been dozens of other acts of violence against facilities of the bank since February 1970 when the Isla Vista branch was destroyed by fire during rioting at the University of California campus at Santa Barbara.

The blast today was the fifth explosion this month at a Bank of America facility in California.

None of the assaults, which have occurred in cities throughout the state, has resulted in any arrests.

State, federal and local agencies, as well as the bank's own security officials, investigate each incident.

Following the Isla Vista violence, the bank's top executives undertook a vigorious reasessment of the institution's stance on the Vietnam war and other issues.

David Jones Picked To Fill Seat On Novato City Council

David Price Jones, a 36-year-old attorney, was appointed to the Novato City Council last night to succeed Douglas M. Merrill who resigned two weeks ago. (Another Novato City Council story, page 5.)

Councilmen, who had refused to divulge the names of applicants, selected Jones from a field of nine, ending several weeks of speculation and rumor.

Jones, sworn in by City Mgr. Charles A. Brown, was greeted with applause from an audience of about 20 persons and joined the council seated behind an impromptu penciled nameplate.

Jones will serve Merrill's unexpired term, which ends in April 1972.

After Jones was named, Mayor Joseph D. Gargiulo apparently surprised councilmen when he commended those who applied and read the heretofore undisclosed list.

The applicants besides Jones were Planning Commissioner John C. Schoonover, Betty Machado, a former candidate; Edward T. Ryken, executive director of Marin Senior Coordinating Council; Lee C. Wise,

Draft Ceiling By Senate Panel

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A Senate committee has voted to keep the draft alive for two more years —but also to give Congress control for the first time over the size of the armed services and the number of draftees.

The draft measure passed by the Armed Services Committee Tuesday headed for lengthy debate on the Senate floor, where war critics were expected to try to trim the draft authority back to only one more year and to make larger cuts in the manpower level.

The committee acted a few hours after Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird revealed that draft calls for the rest of 1971 would not exceed 10,000 in any month —the lowest continuing military callup rate in six years. Laird also said the United States will spend about $8 billion in Vietnam during the business year starting July 1, about one-third of the peak Vietnam expenditure in 1968.

The draft bill passed by the committee would authorize the government to spend more than $1 billion for pay and benefits to meet the Nixon administration goal of an all-volunteer Army and a zero draft call.

The committee voted that the "end strength" of the armed forces should be cut from a requested 2.6 million on June 30, 1972, to 2.5 million. While the cut is not big, it would establish the principle of congressional control over the size of the standing Army — something that has been under the traditional control of the executive branch.

In addition, the committee imposed an outside limit of 150,000 on the number of men the President could draft in any one year—a provision that could be suspended under a national emergency.

The committee knocked out of the draft measure, which was previously approved by the House, a provision that would have made conscientious objectors serve three, instead of two, years of alternative public service. The panel voted instead to give the President authority to make such objectors eligible for recall duty up to six years after they have finished their two-year service stint.

The panel also voted to give divinity students draft deferments . Such students now have outright exemptions. A deferment would mean they could be drafted if their grades are not good enough or if they drop out of school.

The legislation also would abolish student deferments. Unless Congress acts to extend the President's draft authority, the draft power will expire June 30.

Nearly All Blacks Return To Hospital

STANFORD (UPI)—Nearly all black employees of the Stanford Medical Center returned to their jobs Tuesday after a one-day work stoppage to protest the hospital's failure to meet minority demands including the rehiring of a dismissed black janitor.

A Stanford spokesman said 71 of 107 blacks reported for duty on the morning shift. Nearly all returned for the afternoon shift.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Navy Picks First Black Admiral

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Navy has picked Capt. Samuel L. Gravely, a former postal clerk who now commands the guided missile frigate USS Jouett, to become its first black admiral.

Gravely

Gravely, 48, of Richmond, Va., was chosen from three candidates for promotion, Pentagon sources said Tuesday. Gravely currently is bringing his ship home from Vietnam, where it completed a tour off the Vietnam coast.

An official announcement of Gravely's appointment is expected to be made in a few days. The Pentagon sources said the other black candidates for admiral were Capts. Paul Green, a physician, and Thomas D. Parham, a chaplain.

Gravely joined the Naval Reserve in 1944 after becoming the first Negro to graduate from midshipman school at Columbia University. He served as executive officer aboard a submarine chaser during World War II, and when he left the navy became a postal clerk in his hometown of Richmond.

Cambodian Deal

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—Lon Nol, who resigned as Cambodian prime minister nine days ago, has agreed to lead a new government under an arrangement in which three deputy premiers would take over much of his workload, one of Lon Nol's advisers said today.

Former Premier Son Ngoc Than, one of four advisers, said Lon Nol met Tuesday night with Pho Proeung, senior member of the four-man advisory council. Than said although Lon Nol has not submitted a formal letter officially accepting the invitation to become prime minister again he told Pho Proeung he would do so.

Lon Nol resigned citing the after effects of a stroke suffered Feb. 8 as the reason.

Mayoral Battle

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) —Mayor Charles Stenvig, a former policeman and an independent, and W. Harry Davis, a Negro endorsed by the Democratic-Farmer-Labor party, survived the Minneapolis mayoral primary election Tuesday night.

Stenvig piled up a 49,001 to 19,621 lead over Davis in the seven-candidate nonpartisan primary. The two will compete for the mayor's office in the June 8 general election.

Bruce A. Rasmusen, endorsed by the Republican Party, ran third with less than half the votes collected by Davis. Four other candidates trailed the three leaders.

Korean Election

SEOUL (UPI)—Park Chung-hee was re-elected to a third four-year term as president of South Korea today, insuring a hard-line policy towards Communist North Korea for his term of office.

Park, 53, a soldier-turned-politician, was leading by more than one million votes over assemblyman Kim Dae-jung with about three-quarters of the 12 million ballots counted.

The chief issue of the campaign was whether South Korea should cling to a policy of no compromise with the Communist north. Park insisted that any effort to open peaceful contacts with North Korea was premature and that his nation was threatened by another invasion from the North.

Rebels Pursued

NEW DELHI (UPI)—Pakistani federal troops crossed the border into India Tuesday in pursuit of East Pakistani rebels and shot to death five persons and wounded three others, Indian military sources said.

The sources said it was the first time Pakistani troops actually had crossed into India since the start of the Pakistan civil war March 25, although India has accused Pakistani forces of shooting into India several times.

Suez 'Rejection'

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir called in U.S. Ambassador H. Walworth Barbour today, reportedly to reject American suggestions that Israel temper its conditions for allowing Egypt to reopen the Suez Canal.

According to the newspaper Ha'aretz, unidentified cabinet ministers said Mrs. Meir and Foreign Minister Abba Eban were describing the American stance as "insufficient" and were informing Barbour Israel cannot accept it.

GI Drug Report

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A House subcommittee, saying up to 60 per cent of all U.S. servicemen have tried drugs, has recommended a "massive attack" upon the problem.

The attack should include strong new counseling, educational and rehabilitation programs, tightened U.S. military customs procedures, and appeals to Vietnam, Korea and Thailand for a prompt drug crackdown, the special House Armed Services Subcommittee said Tuesday.

It issued a 169-page report compiled during an eight-month study. The report said that in Vietnam drugs are "more plentiful than cigarettes or chewing gum." It said a heroin addict can support his habit for only $10 a day in Vietnam.

GLARING ISSUE COVERED UP

In a bald attempt to cover up a glaring issue, assemblymen in Sacramento yesterday presented a wig to Robert Wood, R-Greenfield, which he promptly modeled (L) for television cameramen who, Greenfield was kiddingly informed, had complained about the glare reflecting from his bald pate (R). The legislator's sense of humor was as unruffled as his new wig. (UPI Telephoto)

Mendel Rivers' Godson Learns Lesson Well On Personal Touch

CHARLESTON, S. C. (UPI)— Youthful Mendel Davis learned one lesson well from his godfather, the late Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, —appeal to the voters in person, not on television.

The lesson earned Davis, 28, a place in Congress Tuesday, in the seat formerly held by Rivers, D-S.C., who died of open heart surgery in December.

Davis, a 10-year Rivers' aide who never has held elective office, defeated three other candidates in the First Congressional District race.

With all precincts reporting, Davis had 37,857 votes to 32,632 for Dr. James Edwards, the Republican candidate, and 7,972 for Mrs. Victoria DeLee of the black-oriented United Citizens Party. Mrs. Elsie Von Kautz Carroll, a write-in candidate, drew only a few votes.

Davis said he often had discussed campaign strategy with Rivers, who was in Congress for 30 years, many as head of the powerful House Armed Services Committee.

The strategy was to make personal appearances throughout the nine-county district, a largely rural and coastal area with Charleston as its heart.

"The people want to see the candidate in person, not on television," Davis said. "We went to the people from the very start. I think the issue was the people."

Davis based his campaign on his ability to retain the numerous military bases established in the district under Rivers' chairmanship of the Armed Services Committee. There have been fears in the district that the bases will be pulled out one by one.

department of Housing and Urban Development under the low-income rental program. "We simply can't afford it," he said.

Merriman and others who criticized the planning commission's stipulation said they thought it would be unfair for residents of one development to pay in increased rents for "a city policy."

Stewart asked if the developer would consider just one or two low cost units, but Merriman again said it would make the project unprofitable.

"I don't think the overall program was designed for this," said Councilman Warren R. Perry." Other councilmen also attacked the 5 per cent stipulation. Woodrow V. Capurro said he was "more concerned about the project's effect on traffic on Sonoma Avenue than low cost housing," and claimed the requirement would lower project standards. James F. Reed said it would "be an arbitrary use of our powers."

But others disagreed.

A letter from Dona Good, president of the League of Women Voters of Central Marin, was read to the board by Judy Ainswort, a league member.

"We are aware of the economic burden involved in developing the proposed site," she wrote. "However, we cannot believe that providing four units at $120 or $135 a month would render the 70-unit project economically impractical."

(Jerry Hood, Marin HUD official, said his office would pay from $115 a month for a one-bedroom apartment up to $195 a month for four bedrooms for qualified low-income families)

"At the present time, Mrs. Hood's letter continued, "there are 42 applicants for leased housing in San Anselmo who are unable to find suitable living quarters. The proposed project could take care of four of those applicants . . .

"We believe it is the responsibility of government to work with private enterprise in providing solutions to the critical housing needs today."

"It's been done in other towns," said Phillip Heinecke, chairman of the planning commission. "Any new law is apt to have some unfairness. It's part of the facts of life."

Dr. Robert Lee, chairman of the citizens committee on zoning and housing, a committee appointed by the council, defended the planning commission's action.

"This price is relatively small in view of the scarcity of land," Lee said. "To build is a privilege and it comes at some cost."

But an unidentified person said the 5 per cent requirement would create a "hidden tax." He said, "I want to see it on my tax bill so I can come down here and complain."

In the end, the councilmen voted 4-0 for rezoning without requiring provision of low-cost housing, Perry abstained without comment.

West Marin Ranch Sold For $195,000

Sale of the Antone Brazil Ranch of 259 acres south of Dillon Beach for $195,000 was completed yesterday.

The property, up for sale since the death of the late Antone J. Brazil about two years ago, was sold by the Bank of America for the Brazil heirs to Richard Hicks of Tiburon. The sale price was the exact amount of the last inheritance tax appraisal.

Hicks, vice president and assistant to the chairman of the board of Dean Witter and Co., San Francisco, moved with his family to Tiburon from Lake Forest, Ill., last September. He said he has been leasing a house in Tiburon but recently purchased a home on Tanfield Road.

He and his wife have five children and plan to build on the Brazil Ranch and live there, Hicks said. He hopes to have construction completed by the fall school semester of 1972.

The ranch is located south of Dillon Beach near Tom's Point and has about one - half mile of water frontage on Tomales Bay, according to P.W. Profter of the Santa Rosa, trust office of Bank of America, who arranged the sale. He said there are a five-room ranch house and several outbuildings on the property.

The original Brazil ranch was approximately 550 acres.

Jones, who had never run for nor held public office, is a partner in a Novato law firm with Robert D. Carrow, former mayor of Novato.

Jones, a past president of the Novato Civic Foundation, was awarded the Novato Jaycees distinguished service award in January.

He is a director and former vice president of the Novato Lions Club, served a term as director of the Marin County Bar Association and was on the Marin County March of Dimes board for five years.

He and his wife, Kay, and son, Gared, live at 2 Jackson Court.

Councilman George C. Quesada suggested that the council hold a public hearing on its practice of not revealing the names of those who apply for city appointments.

He said he was disappointed that Gargiulo revealed the names of the applicants and felt that secrecy was conducive to receiving applications since it would be an assurance against embarrassment to someone not selected.

Hodges' Will Leaves Wife His Estate

Sportscaster Russ Hodges of Mill Valley left an estate estimated at more than $50,000 to his wife, Gay, according to a will filed for probate yesterday in Marin Superior Court.

Hodges, broadcasting voice of the New York and San Francisco Giants for 22 years, died April 19 after collapsing, apparently of a heart attack, at his home.

The will filed yesterday was dated March 28, 1963, and left his entire estate to his wife.

In a petition for probate filed with the will, the estate was estimated to be worth "upwards" of $50,000 and also estimated to provide an annual income of "upwards" of $1,000.

The estate consists entirely of securities and real property, according to the petition.

In addition to his wife, Hodges is survived by a son, Pat, of Burlingame, and a daughter, Judy, of Florida.

Small said Miss Davis has suffered headaches, infections and deteriorating eyesight since her arrest, and cited as contributing factors infrequent fresh air, segregated nature of her confinement, small quarters, lack of exercise and an inadequate and unbalanced diet.

Marcuse's affidavit, dated March 18 and previously made public, offers to continue his supervision of her research for her doctorate on the subject of "The Concept of Force in German Idealisitic Philosophy (in particular, Kant)."

Reverend Williams, minister at Glide Memorial Methodist Church who has acted as Miss Davis's spiritual advisor since her arrival in Marin, offered in his affidavit to act as her supervisor if she is released on bail.

The final affidavit filed yesterday, from Robert Hoover, director of Nairobi College in East Palo Alto, offers Miss Davis a position as instructor in philosophy and black studies at the 150-student school if she is released.

wood and concrete over the sidewalk and street.

Souza said the only link between the two blasts at this point appears to be the type of bomb used. FBI agents are still investigating the bank bombing.

A pipe bomb also did minor damage to the Bank of America in Sausalito March 23.

One student, Sherry New, suffered a minor finger cut yesterday, when a window in her French class across a lightwell from the restroom was broken by the explosion. Principal Raymond J. Bell said a poster taped to the window prevented glass fragments from spraying the room and causing more injuries.

Sousa said the device appeared to have been placed in or on a procelain water tank above a row of urinals. The blast blew a basketball-sized hole in the ceiling above the tank, cracked a similar tank a few feet away, shook loose some pipes and blew holes in five windows.

He was unable to say what type of explosive was used but said the restroom reeked of gunpowder smoke when he arrived.

Bell dismissed classes for the day to allow Mill Valley police to conduct a thorough search of the school. No other bomb was found.

A crude drawing on the restwood wall and the words "May Day" raised the possibility that the high school bombing is connected with the Weathermen.

The "May Day" slogan and a picture of a bomb — a circle with a star in the center and a lit fuse — have been painted on stores and billboards throughout the Bay Area. Police believe this is a warning that Weathermen plan more bombings Saturday.

Someone — possibly the person who set the explosive device — drew the bomb symbol and "May Day" in indelible red ink below the shattered water tank. Bell said the drawing was not there before yesterday morning.

A similar drawing appeared on the wall of another boy's restroom at the school and in a classroom as well.

Bell said this is the first bombing of the school in his experience. "We've received our share of bomb hoax calls, but nothing ever came of them," he said. No telephone bomb threat either before or after yesterday's explosion was received at the school, he said.

The 50-pounds of rubble — fragments of the bomb, porcelain chips, plaster and wood lathe — were swept from the wet floor by police, sealed in a plastic bag and sent to the FBI laboratory in Washington for analysis. Sousa said he does not expect the FBI to investigate the bombing itself.

Bell described the mood on campus today as "one of genuine concern and growing anger that someone would do this and put students and staff in jeopardy."

Bell said students discussed the bombing during their first period class today and have been coming forward with information on who may have planted the bomb.

Students on the other hand appeared relatively unconcerned on campus today, gathering in groups to joke about the explosion. One theory was that a student set the bomb because he was disgruntled about his grades. School officials said the absentee rate was about normal today at around 4 per cent.

State 'Safe' From Polio

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — While polio epidemics may be possible in some big city slums in the nation, California is not endangered by the crippling disease, a state health official said today.

Dr. James Chinn, chief of the Department of Public Health's Bureau of Communicable Disease Control, said, "We haven't had cases of polio traceable to acquisition within California for several years."

He said the "one or two" cases reported each year recently were traced to contacts outside the state.

California law since th early 1960s has required children to be immunized before they enter school, he said.

Chinn said areas where polio could be reported included Mexican-American districts, where persons coming in from Mexico can carry some "wild virus from south of the border." But he added he foresaw no increase in previous numbers of cases.

Dr. John Witte, chief of the immunization branch of the federal Center for Disease Control, warned in Washington this week that polio epidemics threaten some city slums this summer unless vaccination programs are stepped up.

Ripon Sees Mailliard Losing Out

I-J Special Report

LOS ANGELES — One of Marin's two congressmen, Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District will be redistricted this year into political oblivion, the Ripon Society predicted today.

But, contrary to other published speculation, Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, will survive the redistricting by the Democratic-controlled Legislature, according to the society, a nationwide liberal Republican group.

Others have speculated that Mailliard's district, now a combination of parts of Marin and San Francisco, would change little. But the society's analysis concluded that Marin would be returned to the district of Rep. Don H. Clausen R-First District, with Mailliard's district shifting into the heavily-Democratic portions of northern San Mateo County.

This would cut Republican registration in Mailliard's district from 39.7 to 31.7 per cent, enhancing the prospect of his defeat by one of the four San Francisco Democratic assemblymen who will lose his district to Southern California.

Behr, according to previous theories, would face a reelection fight next year because Marin would be added to a San Francisco senatorial district. But the Ripon Society predicted instead that the San Francisco district would be extended into San Mateo County, while Behr would pick up Sonoma to replace Solano county.

The Seventh Assembly District, now consisting of Marin and Southern Sonoma, would include less of Sonoma after apportionment, according to the society.

Humboldt County would be eliminated from the Second Assembly District, which covers the rest of Sonoma, thus making the district Democratic and eliminating the home county of its present assemblyman, Frank P. Belotti, R-Eureka, according to the society.

The analysis was done by Mike Halliwell, assistant sociology professor at California State College, Long Beach, and president of the Los Angeles chapter of the society.

The only hope of "outflanking" Democrats in the reapportionment battle in Sacramento, the society said, would be for the GOP to align with blacks and Mexican-Americans "who would be deprived of fair representation by the Democratic gerrymander."

current series of demonstrations, some protesters went limp and had to be carried to police vans. Normally the protesters walk passively away with police when told they are arrested.

The protests are part of two weeks of "direct action" being carried out by a militant group calling itself the People's Coalition for Peace and Justice.

The heads of 27 religious organizations with a membership of more than 86 million Americans also issued a call Tuesday for an end to the war.

The leaders of Catholic, Protestant, Jewish and Orthodox churches asked that bells be tolled across the country from noon to 1 p.m. Saturday in "mourning for those who have already died in Southeast Asia and our sorrow that the killing continues."

"Our nation is sorely troubled," the church leaders said. "We believe this to be a sickness of the spirit."

"A major cause is the continuing war in Southeast Asia. Although substantial numbers of combat forces have been withdrawn, the war has widened geographically and additional thousands of combatants and noncombatants are still being killed."

War protesters have threatened to block traffic and shut down government buildings next week. This week they have been "lobbying" at different government buildings each day.

Five Found Dead In Automobile

TEMPE, Ariz. (UPI) —A woman and her four young children were found dead in an automobile in the carport of their home early today, the victims of what police termed a murder-suicide.

A newspaper delivery boy discovered the bodies of Mrs. Sheila Marie Salsbury, 30; twins James and John, 6; Rita, 4, and Ann, 3.

Police said Mrs. Salsbury had attached a hose to the exhaust pipe and ran it into the interior of the car. The engine was running when the bodies were found.

Ceylon Is No Paradise These Days

COLOMBO, Ceylon (UPI)— Ceylon looks like a tropical paradise where monkeys swing through the rain forests and tuskless elephants bathe in the rivers. Orchids spring from the ground and sapphires, moonstones and rubies abound.

But it is no paradise. It is an island nation in deep trouble.

Despite the lavishness of nature, Ceylon has a fumbling, technically bankrupt economy. There is widespread unemployment, deepseated labor unrest and a militant student movement more radical than the leftist Trotskyite-Communist government of Premier Sirimavo Bandaranaike.

Ceylon is caught up now in an insurgency by those same radical students and other youths determined to overthrow the government of Mrs. Bandaranaike and replace it with a radical-socialist government run by young men at least as radical as the Red Guards of Mao Tse-tung's Cultural Revolution.

How it will end remains to be seen but it is feared that the revolution launched by the self-styled People's Liberation Front (PLF) in Ceylon on the night of April 4 is likely to be a running sore in the poverty stricken land for many months to come.

Ceylon has had troubles since it became independent from Britain in 1948. There has been labor strife, student unrest, troubles between the predominantly Sinhalese natives and the Tamils who immigrated from southern India, and between the government and the Buddhists who maintain one of Buddhism's most sacred shrines in Kandy, the Temple of the Tooth.

A period of disorders culminated in 1959 with the assassination of Prime Minister S. W. R. D. Bandaranaike. In 1960 his widow, was elected prime minister. Ceylon turned increasingly away from the West and toward the Communist camp.

The nation was swept with student and labor unrest because of widespread unemployment and in 1970 Mrs. Bandaranaike unseated Primier Dudley Sesnanayake in a general election dominated by leftist factions. In her speech accepting the premiership she announced the establishment of relations with North Korea, North Vietnam, East Germany, recognized the Viet Cong and broke off with Israel.

This was not leftist enough for the dissident youth, estimated anywhere between 14,000 and 80,000 and the insurgency began a month ago when the People's Liberation Front raided the U.S. embassy, a colonial type building close to the parliament on the edge of the Indian Ocean on Galle Street.

A few rebels, all in their teens or early twenties, climbed the high white wall surrounding the building and threw fire bombs. Two embassy cars were destroyed and when police intervened an inspector was stabbed in the back and died.

The insurrection was born.

Mrs. Bandaranaike struck back by giving the army the right of arrest. Within a few days 450 youths had been imprisoned without trial, and they are still being held as active supporters of the PLF.

The propaganda did not cease, and within a week the premier declared a state of emergency.

Police swooped on the university in Colombo and found 3,000 handmade bombs, gelignite and dynamite. One hall of a residence at the university had its roof blown off when students making bombs accidentally exploded one.

On the night of April 4-5 the first police post was hit at Welawaya and the first police casualties were suffered. The following night 30 police posts were attacked in widely scattered parts of the country and police slain.

The rebels became more daring as they captured automatic weapons and ammunition when before they had only swords and shotguns. There were rumors, never confirmed, that North Korea or Communist China was supplying arms to them.

The rebels have shown they are well trained and it is thought that in their jungle camps their leaders run highly efficient small arms school.

The armed forces outnumber the insurgents but at first they were ill equipped. However Mrs. Bandaranaike shuffled off her role of a noncommitted nation and began bringing in supplied from India and other Commonwealth nations — and helicopters form the United States.

Observers say even a big power arsenal would be of little help in the long run unless something can be done to build a solid economy.

Tea, rubber and coconuts produce 90 per cent of the foreign exchange in the country. Tea, which provides 60 per cent, has steadily lost in price since 1955 while labor costs have steadily increased.

Because of the steady decline and loss of earnings Ceylon has been living on its capital reserves for more than 15 years.

In 1965 the United National Party (UNP) of then Premier Senanayake tried to improve the economy with external aid from the Ceylon Aid Troup made up of the United States, Britain, Canada, Australia, Japan, France and Italy. The economic program lost its drive and no new industries were brought into the country.

A UNIQUE APPROACH

"It is possible to be completely free of problems, whether they are personal, your children, marriage partner, parents or in any area of your life. Some people find relief in religion, therapy or analysis, meditation, hypnosis or any of a dozen other approaches. Some escape through drugs or by becoming involved in some activity or by committing themselves to some cause. But for some of us, none of these bring any real satisfaction or happiness because they don't solve the problems. To enjoy life fully and have freedom from constant strain and worry is obviously worth any risk or effort, but what can you do? The fact is that if you can fully understand a problem, then you can act to end it. But for that you need a fresh, unconventional view — not something to try to believe in or fool yourself with, but a sane, down to earth, direct approach that works."

The above is an excerpt from the writing of Bill Allen. Working with individuals, a uniquely practical approach is taught and employed in assisting them to understanding and resolving problem situations.

Bennett Pleads Innocent To Charge; Plans Counter Suits

By C. P. McCARTHY

William Morgan Bennett of Kentfield, member of the state Board of Equalization, pleaded innocent yesterday to charges of drunken driving, and leveled charges of his own of brutality and misconduct by a Sausalito policeman.

Bennett charged that he was struck in the mouth by Sausalito officer Blake Hoffman and that his face was smashed against a screen in a police car as Hoffman three times slammed on the brakes of the car while driving Bennett to the Marin County Jail for booking.

Bennett was arrested early Sunday in the parking lot of Valhalla Inn, after Hoffman reported seeing him driving erratically and with the bright lights shining on what Sausalito police said was an official state car.

Bennett yesterday pleaded innocent before Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court to charges of driving under the influence of liquor and driving under the combined influence of drugs and liquor.

Smith set trial for June 14.

Outside the courtroom, Bennett was surrounded by his wife, three of his four children and two attorneys. One of the attorneys, Philip S. Ryan, said Bennett had had two cocktails and a glass of wine at a San Francisco restaurant four hours before the arrest.

Ryan said Bennett was not drunk and accused Hoffman of acting "irrationally, illegally and improperly."

Bennett's other attorney, William O. Weissich, said Bennett intends to file suit against Hoffman and the City of Sausalito, charging police brutality, false arrest and assault and battery.

Bennett said that Hoffman, driving from the site of the arrest to the jail, stopped near Zack's restaurant in Sausalito, got out of the car, opened the door to the back seat, where Bennett was, and struck him in the mouth.

Once on Highway 101, Bennett said Hoffman drove at speeds up to 90 miles an hour, and when Bennett, who said he was "frightened to death," urged Hoffman to slow down, Hoffman slammed on the brakes, throwing Bennett's head into the screen.

"How do you like that?" Hoffman then asked, according to Bennett.

Later, Bennett said, Hoffman drove past the jail entrance to the Hall of Justice and pulled the police car off to the side of an unlit portion of Civic Center Drive.

Hoffman turned off the engine and lights of the car and was reaching for the door handle to get out of the car, when Bennett's wife and two friends, who had followed the police car, pulled up behind it, according to Bennett.

Hoffman then restarted the engine, made a U-turn and took him to the jail entrance for booking, Bennett said.

Cuts and scrapes on Bennett's lips, nose and forehead were visible yesterday. On Monday, Bennett collapsed in a Hall of Justice courtroom while waiting to speak with Ryan. He said yesterday that he felt weak in the courtroom and got up to get a drink of water when he fell to the floor.

Sausalito Police Chief James D. Wright yesterday declined to answer or allow Hoffman to answer Bennett's charges.

"We're not going to try this case in the newspapers just because he's William Bennett," Wright said, adding that Hoffman "will have ample opportunity to present his side of the story on the witness stand."

Bennett is scheduled to stand trial July 15 for a March 4 arrest — also in Sausalito — for allegedly being drunk in public.

Community Action Leaders Selected

Novato City Council's community action program got into low gear last night with the appointment of the nucleus of a Citizens Advisory Committee on Community Needs. (Another Novato City Council story, page 1.)

The council appointed six persons representing various segments of the community, who will recommend the ultimate size and makeup of the committee.

Appointed were Richard R. Kuhn, president of the San Marin Improvement Association; Capt. Joseph W. Corfield, domestic actions coordinator, Hamilton Air Force Base; Robert D. Anderson, Novato Jaycees; Arthur Sorensen, pastor of All Saints Lutheran Church; Doris Abelew, 34 San Miguel Way, housewife; and Raleigh Floyd, president of Novatans for Racial Equality.

As another step in the community action program, the council is scheduled to appoint a Youth Advisory Committee.

The Novato City Council Also:

CABLE TV — Postponed action on a request by G'Tec Cable TV of Novato to boost its monthly charge from $4.50 to $5.50 and the FM rate from no charge to $1.50 a month, pending study by a subcommittee, David Price Jones and Wayne Sartain.

LOMA VERDE — Postponed action on a request by the Novato Unified School District to annex Loma Verde School to the city, until after residents along Alameda de la Loma from the city line to Calle de la Mesa, adjacent to the school, are asked if they would consider being annexed at the same time.

SUIT SETTLED — Authorized paying William F. and Irene Nave $33,165 in settlement of a lawsuit brought against the city by the Naves in 1964 for taking part of their land for right-of-way to widen South Novato Boulevard in the 1500 block. The Naves sued for $51,250 and won a court judgment for $33,165.

SAN MARIN PARK — Postponed action, pending further negotiation, on acquisition of park land after learning that T. V. McGuire of San Rafael, owner of the potential 4.6-acre park site off San Marin Drive, east of San Mateo Way, who wants to retain three frontage parcels, is asking $60,000 for the remainder of the land. The city had offered $50,000 for the entire site.

ANNEXATION — Introduced an ordinance to annex 12.66 acres on the south side of Center Road, opposite Hune Court. The ordinance was strongly opposed by five property owners in the annexation area and backed by Esquire Homes, which plans to construct a 26-lot subdivision on 7.7 acres in the area to be annexed. Councilman Wayne Womack, who said he had an interest in adjoining property, abstained, and Mayor Joseph D. Gargiulo dissented.

UNDERGROUNDING — Introduced an ordinance to require undergrounding of utilities in area previously not served by telephone, electric or cable television lines, and where service is installed to new buildings.

VEHICLE REMOVAL — Adopted an ordinance providing for the removal of wrecked, abandoned, inoperative or dismantled cars from private property as a public nuisance. Councilman David Price Jones, who wasn't on the council when the ordinance was introduced, abstained.

WESTERN HOSTS — Introduced an ordinance to rezone from limited agricultural to planned residential 13 acres west of Highway 101 at the south end of Redwood Boulevard and south of Lynwood Park as requested by Western Hosts Inc. which plans to construct townhouses at the site. Lynwood Park residents, about 150, had petitioned the planned commission in opposition to the spreading of townhouses over the terrain, but only a spokesman appeared last night and councilmen assured him the planned residential zoning was the best tool for controlling development.

REZONING — Introduced an ordinance to rezone 50,000 square feet on the east side of Highway 101, north of Novato Creek, from limited agriculture to general commercial as requested by Ladner N. Cameron who plans a boat sales, service and storage facility at the site.

RENTAL BUSINESS — Approved precise plans by E. D. McGillicuddy for a general equipment rental business, adjacent to 6981 Redwood Highway, west of Highway 101. Councilman Jones abstained citing a conflict of interest.

FEE CHANGES — Set May 25 at 8 p.m. for a public hearing on series of increases in city fees, mainly for planning services, but not affecting business license fees, which City Mgr. Charles A. Brown reported needed further study.

SIGNALS — Approved plans and specifications for traffic signal equipment at South Novato Boulevard and Diablo Avenue, estimated to cost $15,000, and set the bid opening for 11 a.m. May 12.

STREET WORK — Approved plans and specifications for overlaying and paying portions of 15 city streets and the city corporation yard, estimated to cost $104,223, and set the bid opening at 4 p.m. May 6.

GIFT — Received as a gift from the Novato Federated Women a commemorative plaque bearing a painting of Novato City Hall on its face.

MEETINGS — Adjourned until 8 p.m. next Tuesday at city hall and canceled the regularly scheduled meeting, May 11, because some councilmen will be attending a conference in Sacramento.

CONTRACTORS FLP COIN IN TIE BID

What do two contractors do when they submit identical bids on a job?

They toss a coin and the winner gets the job.

At least that's the way it worked in Novato when Ghilotti Brothers Inc. and Carcano and Velcich Associates Inc., both of San Rafael submitted identical bids.

Public Works Director Clifford E. Temps said each firm bid $2,593.80 on curbing of the median islands in Sunset Parkway from South Novato Boulevard to the east end of the parkway.

Ghilotti Brothers won the toss, and the contract.

No Charges Against Couple

No charge was filed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against a Point Reyes Station couple arrested earlier in the day on suspicion of drug charges after the couple was robbed and the woman assaulted.

The woman, Colleen Kane, 25, of 36 Portola Avenue, was released. Her companion, Ernest R. Higgins, 23, also of 36 Portola Avenue, was freed on $6,250 bail to appear on drug-related charges in San Francisco, when it turned out there was a San Francisco warrant for his arrest.

Jones Elected New Head Of Board Of Education

Paul L. Jones, a member of the San Rafael Board of Education since 1967, was elected president of the board at a meeting last night.

Jones succeeds Herman L. Childress, who remains a member of the board.

Lawrence I. Kramer Jr. was elected vice- president and newly-elected board member Marilyn Bolinger was appointed representative to the Marin County Committee on School District Organization.

Sup. John F. Plank was reappointed board secretary.

The San Rafael Board Of Education Also:

HALF DAY — Approved holding a minimum school day Monday at San Rafael and Terra Linda High Schools. Students will be released at about 1 p.m. and faculty members from both schools will hold departmental meetings.

PRINCIPAL — Agreed to meet for dinner and a closed session beginning at 6 p.m., May 10 to interview applicants for the position of principal of San Rafael High School.

MUSIC — Received oral reports from Hugo Rinaldi, district director of music, and Cora Lohse, president of the district's parent-teacher association's music council, and viewed a color film on the district's music program.

UNITED NATIONS — Received oral reports from Albert Gautraud, chairman of the social sciences department at Terra Linda High School, and five students and viewed a slide presentation on the school's model United Nations delegations' participation in programs at Berkeley and Washington, D.C.

GIFT — Accepted a gift of $100 from the Hoopa Valley friends in memory of William V. Leedy, M.D., to the Terra Linda High School science department for the purchase of a balance scale.

APPOINTMENT — Hired Kimberley Mitchell as a substitute bus driver at $3.04 an hour.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted the resignations of Alan Ellsberg, principal of San Rafael High School, who previously announced he was resigning effective June 30, and Margaret Scott, counselor at San Rafael High School, also effective June 30.

COMMENDATIONS — Commended Carl J. Brown and John C. Pfeiffer, who did not seek reelection to the board last week. Brown had been a member of the board for eight years and Pfeiffer for four.

Elizabeth Is Ordered To Rest To Shake Colds

LONDON (UPI) — Doctors ordered Queen Elizabeth today to cancel all engagements to shake off a winter-long siege of colds and coughs. But a Buckingham Palace spokesman said the 45-year-old monarch is determined to embark on schedule Monday on a 4,500 mile tour of British Columbia.

"She has a heavy lingering cold and has been told to take three days off. But it is certainly her intention to go," the spokesman said.

"We hope that she will be 100 per cent fit but she intends to go in any case."

A Substitute For Killing Oak Moth

A bacillus spore, which lives on and kills oak leaf moth, might be an effective substitute for insecticide in combating tent caterpillars that over-run oak trees in Marin.

There is a good possibility that the bacillus will work, according to Dr. Dudley Pinnock, assistant insect pathologist in the agricultural experiment station at the University of California.

Donald L. Brittsan, Marin County farm adviser, contacted Dr. Pinnock because of reports that the bacillus is more natural and less harmful than toxic insecticides such as Malthion and Sevin that are now used in Marin County.

Dr. Pinnock identified the new agent as bacillus thuringiensis, a bacteria that lives on certain caterpillars and kills them but does not harm beneficial insects, birds or animals. He said insecticides can wipe out other insects and can be toxic to animals.

"We've been using this bacillus on California oak worm or moth for years, and it does a good job," said Dr. Pinnock. He said he has not tried the bacillus on tent caterpillars but sees no reason why it would not be just as effective.

He cannot test it on tent caterpillars this year because it is too late in the season, and the cage caterpillars have left the trees and are crawling on the ground and on homes.

Dr. Pinnock said the bacillus is being used successfully in the East Bay Regional Park, City of Berkeley, California Division of Highways, and on the Berkeley campus of University of California.

Brittsan said the substitution of bacillus for insecticides "sounds like a good idea if effective because the more we can use natural things the better off we are."

Pleads Innocent To Assault

Stella Johnson, 23, of Marin City, pleaded innocent Monday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Jury trial was set for the week of June 7.

She is accused of shooting Floyd Barrows of Marin City March 22.

Kentfield Board Will Continue KQED Contract

The Kentfield School District board has agreed to continue its contract with TV station KQED which provides special education programs for the district's students.

According to Barbara Ruzicka, board secretary, the contract is now in its eighth year. Next year it will provide programming for 350 students at a cost of $406.

She said programming includes special science and family life courses for older students and Sesame Street for younger students.

The board, in other action Monday night, approved the hiring of Leader, Jarvis and Kelgwin of San Rafael to audit district records for fiscal 1970-71.

The board also continued its budget study but took no action and entered closed session to instruct its salary negotiator, Supt. Anthony G. Bacich.

An estimated 500 million tons of silver are scattered through the earth's 300 million miles of seawater.

Memorial Exhibit Is Set Sunday

A memorial exhibit of paintings of Carlton Zimmer will open at 1 p.m. Sunday at the Terra Linda Art Association gallery.

The exhibit hours at the gallery at 4172 Redwood Highway, are 1 to 4 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays and noon to 3 p.m., Monday through Friday. The exhibit ends May 9.

Zimmer, who died in January, was head of the San Francisco branch of Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborne, advertising agency. He retired in 1960.

Zimmer's work has been exhibited in many galleries, including the De Young Museum. A stroke incapacitated his right arm, but he continued painting left-handed. He taught art to prison inmates at Alcatraz Island for many years.

Leave Policy Under Fire; Review Set

The Mill Valley School District board Monday night heard district teachers object to its sabbatical leave policy and said it would reconsider the policy.

Carroll D. Killingsworth, district director of business services, said the Mill Valley Teachers Association asked for clarification of the policy after a one-year sabbatical for Steve Buffo, a teacher at Edna Maguire School, was turned down.

The board said budget considerations necessitated the denial. "Because of the strong demands on the budget, the board didn't feel it could grant the leave," Killingsworth said.

Trustee William P. Everts Jr. explained that the policy leaves sabbaticals up to the discretion of the board, Killingsworth said, but teachers wanted a policy that makes granting of such leaves automatic if applicants follow certain procedures.

The board stood by its policy but said it would study and possibly amend the policy to clarify both the rights of teachers in asking for sabbaticals and the board in granting or refusing them.

In other business, trustees heard that $17,000 was spent last year on fire safety at Old Mill School and further expenditures are expected next fiscal year.

Killingsworth said a new boiler, three exit doors and a sprinkler system for the basement were installed. The board authorized the staff to obtain architectural estimates on the cost of installing more exit doors and sprinklers, he said.

The Mill Valley School District board also:

EDNA MAGUIRE — Held a question-and-answer session on the makeup of Edna Maguire School.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE — Designated Saturday as Foreign Language Day.

LEAVE — Refused a one-year leave of absence to Richard Ponzio, Strawberry Point school teacher, to enter doctoral studies at the University of California at Berkeley. The board, however, said it would make every effort to rehire Ponzio when he returns.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted resignations from: Claire Delano, guidance officer; Margaret Gustafson, Edna Maguire teacher; Norma Smith, secretary, Donna Dibble, guidance coordinator, and Cynthia Kellen, Edna Maguire teacher.

EMPLOYMENT — Hired Dr. Delmo Della-Dora as Edna Maguire principal at $20,000 per year. He will assume his duties July 1.

Trial Set In Werber Case

Sausalito restaurateur Frank N. Werber pleaded innocent Monday in Marin Superior Court to seven felony counts of possessing illegal drugs and narcotics.

Jury trial was set for the week of July 19.

Werber, 41, owner of the Trident Restaurant, is accused of having undisclosed amounts of heroin, LSD, marijuana, cocaine, peyote, codeine and mescaline when arrested by drug agents at his De Silva Island home March 26.

Werber is also out on bail pending an appeal of a six-month jail sentence and $2,000 fine imposed last year after he was convicted of marijuana possessing and cultivation steming from the seizure of six seabags of pot at his home in 1968.

Accreditation Of Hospital Renewed

Officials at Hillcrest Hospital in Petaluma have announced the hospital's accreditation has been renewed for another two years by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals.

The commission is made up of representatives from the American Hospital Association, American College of Physicians, American Medical Association and the American College of Surgeons.

Secretary Of Firemen Will Leave Post

Robert Nolan, secretary of the Novato Volunteer Firemen, has notified the group he will leave the post May 24.

Nolan, a teacher in San Francisco, is moving from Novato, Fire Chief Jack Kidder reported.

Nod To Half-Staff For Kent, War Dead

Flags at the Marin Civic Center will be lowered to half-staff next Wednesday, the first anniversary of the tragedy at Kent State University, in memory of those who met violent death on the Ohio campus and in Southeast Asia.

Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday approved the flag-lowering on a motion by Michael Wornum.

The request came from Robert A. Le Blanc of San Rafael, representing a group called the Marin Veterans for Peace.

"One year ago, four young persons died because Kent State students demonstrated their hate for the war that's taken so many of their fellow Americans," said Le Blanc.

..."Our friends who died in Southeast Asia and didn't know why, and the four young people who died in Ohio must be remembered so that in the future we might not be so quick to send others to their deaths."

"I see no problem in lowering the Flag in memory of people who were killed violently," said Wornum.

John F. McInnis said he wants it clearly understood that the vote to lower the Flag is in memory of veterans killed in the war, and is not an endorsement of the statement read by Le Blanc.

Summer School Sign-Up Slated

Kentfield School District will hold registrations for summer school classes from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday in the multipurpose room of Adaline E. Kent School.

A second sign-up session for nonresidents will be held from 10 a.m. to noon May 8 in the same place. The summer program will include courses in ceramics, chess, tennis, photography, shop and weaving, in two two-week sessions beginning June 21 and July 6.

Office Development Gets Approval From Planners

The San Rafael Planning Commission granted last night a use permit and architectural approval for a five-building office development in the Northgate Industrial Park.

The vote was 6 to 1 with Commissioner Jorgen V. Lunding against the use permit but voting for architectural approval.

The commission required that owner Johnny Ribeiro and Margarita Development Co. agree to restrict use of the buildings to offices.

The five buildings will contain 72,260 square feet of floor space.

The San Rafael Planning Commission also:

APARTMENTS — Approved a use permit and architectural approval for a 32-unit apartment building at 270 Channing Way for Echo Construction Co., and an 11-unit apartment at 175 Clinton Court for Collins and Curran.

FILL — Approved Marin Sanitary Service, putting up to 1,000 cubic yards of fill on a vacant lot at 1195 Francisco Boulevard. Joseph J. Garbarino, chairman of the commission, vacated his seat as he is a partner in the business.

AUTO REPAIR — Granted a use permit to Rosemary Bradford for an auto repair in an existing warehouse building at 65 Larkspur Street.

ADDITION — Approved an 8-by-16-four addition to the office on a used car lot at 805 Irwin Street for Douglas Cowan; a 320 square foot storage building to the Marin Rod and Gun Club at 2675 Francisco Boulevard and a small addition to Dr. Gideon Sorokin's building at 4140 Redwood Highway.

ALTERATION — Approved plans to enclose the former car wash at 120 Bellam Boulevard for an equipment sales building for Glenn-Lee Enterprises.

DECK — Granted a variance for a swim pool deck up to the rear property line at 10 Tweed Terrace for Donald Edmondo.

AUTHORITY — Gave the planning Director authority to authorize filling up to 5,000 cubic yards and excavation up to 1,000 cubic yards, and to approve or disapprove temporary outdoor activities, such as shopping center promotions, up to 45 days use.

RENEWALS — Postponed indefinitely a request of the planning director for authority to renew previous commission use permit approvals.

The population of Hong Kong is 3,950,802, according to the 1971 census.

Hearing On Transit Put Off To May 11

I-J SPECIAL REPORT

SACRAMENTO — An Assembly subcommittee hearing scheduled yesterday on the Golden Gate Bridge District's bus transit plan was postponed to May 11.

The transportation subcommittee, chaired by Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, has held two hearings on the $331 million plan. Foran has promised legislation to conserve district funds for long-range transit, but has not yet drafted the measure.

Population: Hayakawa To Testify

Dr. S. I. Hayakawa of Mill Valley, president of San Francisco State College, will be the lead-off witness at a public hearing Monday and Tuesday in Los Angeles on California's population problems.

The hearings before the Commission on Population Growth and the American Future will focus on the development of a population policy for the United States and the implications of such a policy for California, according to commission officials.

The commission was established by Congress last year to examine the growth and direction of population between now and the year 2000.

Other witnesses scheduled for the hearing in Los Angeles include Senator Alan Cranston, D-Calif., Mrs. Otis Chandler, wife of the publisher of the Los Angeles Times, and television figure Henry Gibson.

Cathedral Choir Will Present 'Hair' Selections

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Cathedral of St. John the Divine will present musical selections from the controversial Broadway hit "Hair" at a Sunday afternoon service May 9.

A spokesman for the Episcopal cathedral said Tuesday the selections will be performed as the offertory music for "Mass in F," written by "Hair" composer Galt Mac Dermot.

The mass will be sung by the cathedral's men and boys choir and the cast and the musicians of "Hair." The mass will be celebrated by Rev. Canon Edward N. West who will be assisted by Father Richard Ragni, a Roman Catholic priest and brother of "Hair" author Gerome Ragni.

Applications For Peace Corps Up

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Applications to join the Peace Corps, which had dropped steadily for the past four years, now are increasing, according to the agency.

As of the week ending April 23, 19,180 persons had applied this year to become Peace Corps volunteers, compared with a total for all last year of 19,022. The recruiting year ends in August and the corps said it expected 26,000 applications this year.

Marin City Residents Charge Police Patrol Lag

Police protection in Marin City, supplied by the Marin County Sheriff's Department, is inadequate and cannot cope with crime in the community, a group of residents charged last night.

The accusations were disputed by sheriff's deputies, who said residents themselves were largely to blame if service is poor.

The charges and rebuttals came at a special meeting of the Marin City Community Services District board to discuss police-community relations.

The residents, led by Thelma McKinney, of 30 Pacheco Street, complained of a growing number of incidents — many involving guns —which they said point to the need for more frequent patrols of Marin City.

Recent incidents mentioned included sniping, brandishing weapons and burglaries as well as less serious offenses such as pilfering gasoline, stripping cars and vandalism.

Mrs. McKinney charged deputies with making infrequent patrols of Marin City, with not responding to calls for several hours and with behaving rudely when they do respond.

Another resident said he once heard a burglar alarm ringing for 70 minutes before deputies arrived.

Sgt. Robert Godina of the Marin City Sheriff's substation responded that the office at times is understaffed in order to provide more patrols on weekends. "That's a legitimate complaint and you should take it to (Sheriff Louis P.) Mountanos," he said.

Deputy Bill J. Dews defended the sheriff's offices, saying, "We're only as good as you in the community make us. You're our eyes and ears. I can't come camp on your doorstep until you need me. When you see something illegal you've got to call us."

Dews compared the attitude of citizens in Marin City to that of Tamalpais Valley residents, where sheriff's deputies also patrol.

"People will call us from Tam Valley and say, 'There's someone breaking into a house next door. Come get him and I'll be in court tomorrow to testify.'

"But in Marin City we find someone who's been shot and we ask, 'Who did this?' and people put their hands into their pockets and say, 'I don't know.' "

Dews said he understands some residents are reluctant to call the sheriff because of the threat of retaliation against informers.

"But this group (responsible for the crimes and threats) only has 15 or 20 in it," he said. "Are 1,500 people going to let 15 tell them what to do? It doesn't make sense."

One woman in the audience agreed that most residents will not cooperate with the authorities because "we see some kids stripping a car and we say, 'that's Tom's kid, and that's Aunt Suzie's boy."

Sgt. Richard A. Nutting of the California Highway Patrol also was present, but most of the questions were directed at Dews and Godina.

Some bitterly complained that on week nights only one patrol car is available to cover a beat from Golden Gate Bridge to Corte Madera and from Tiburon to Muir Beach.

Godina admitted this, explaining that more manpower is needed on weekends. "We think we're understaffed too," he said.

The district board, on a motion by Arthur Miller, seconded by Frank J. Phillips, urged the sheriff and county supervisors to provide adequate patrols of Marin City.

Director C. J. Williams said another community meeting with better attendance should be held soon to further discuss police protection in the community. Although the district distributed 1,000 flyers announcing last night's meeting, only about 15 residents attended.

Bay Fill Projects Win BCDC Support

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Plans for two bay fill projects in Marin have won general approval from Bay Conservation and Development Commisison advisory boards.

The projects are to fill 2.9 acres of Richardson Bay for parking and roadways for new houseboat facilities, and to fill one acre along the shoreline of San Rafael Bay to widen San Pedro Road to four lanes to Peacock Gap.

The full commission will hold its initial hearing on the San Pedro Road project on May 6, at which time it also is to vote on the houseboat projects.

The design review board, meeting Monday evening, urged the staff to investigate removal of the long spit of fill in Richardson Bay at Kappas Yacht Harbor. Houseboats on the spit will be relocated to the new moorings, and the spit then used as a conventional marina.

But the design review board suggested that removal of the spit be considered to improve water circulation.

The engineering criteria review board yesterday tentatively approved the safety of both projects. Suggestions to move the San Pedro Road project inland, it agreed, apparently were not feasible because this would force a deep cut in a hill with a high potential for landslides.

Injuries To 2 Persons In Accidents

Two persons received minor injuries in two accidents yesterday, San Rafael police reported.

Kerry Anne Stanfield, 7, of 41 Coleman Drive, San Rafael was to see her own doctor for bruised hip and head. She was riding her bicycle north on Tampa Drive at 4:33 p.m. when it collided with a truck driven west on Coleman Drive by Paul Anthony Smith, 42, of 77 Porteous Avenue, Fairfax.

Thomas Joseph Sherlock, 17, of 533 Wake Robin Lane, San Rafael, was treated at Marin General Hospital for a muscle sprain in his neck.

He was a passenger in a car driven south on Alexander Street, at 5:35 p.m. by Steven Troy Larkin, 18, of 533 Wake Robin Lane, which collided with one driven west on Fourth Street by Randall Edmund Auvil, 26, of 316 C Street, San Rafael, according to police.

Inmate Held On Traffic Count

A San Quentin inmate who failed to return last night to the prison after being given a one-day pass for job interviews was being held in the Contra Costa County Jail today for a traffic violation, according to prison officials.

Associate Warden James W.L. Park said that Philip Green, 30, had called once yesterday to say that he couldn't meet his 5 p.m. deadline because he had car trouble. He was given a four-hour extension but still had not arrived at 9 p.m.

Park said that Contra Costa officials notified the prison today they were holding Green, who was scheduled to be paroled July 19. He has been in San Quentin since 1961, serving a term for robbery and assault to commit rape.

Offices Bombed In Argentina

ROSARIO, Argentina (UPI)— Nine bombs exploded today at business offices, three of them U.S.-affiliated firms. One policeman was seriously injured while trying to defuse a bomb.

The explosions caused mostly minor damage.

American firms hit included Goodyear, Remington and Bayer.

Youths Selected For City Panel

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The Board of Supervisors has appointed two high school students to the Delinquency Prevention Commission, the first persons in their teens to become city commissioners.

The commission provides services for youths before their problems can lead them to the police and juvenile authorities.

Those appointed are Pelton Stewart, 18, and Maria Leal, 17.

Stewart is student body president at Balboa High School and has been presented the Boy of the Year award from the Boys Clubs of America. President Nixon made the presentation.

Miss Leal is an honor student and year book editor at St. John's High School.

Oil Spill Fouls Puget Sound

A diesel oil spill of more than 200,000 gallons has killed at least 200 birds, endangered many more and covered about 200 square miles of North Puget Sound.

Waterfoul coated with the oil are being cleaned on nearby beaches or being flown to Seattle where other volunteer workers manned a 24-hour rescue operation.

Four tugboats and an oil skimmer boat were being used to concentrate oil so it could be absorbed by bags to shredded straw.

'Ecology Corps' For CO's Is Suggested

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan yesterday announced plans for establishment of a volunteer "California Ecology Corps" whose membership primarily would consist of conscientious objectors to war.

He said it will be the first of its kind in the United States.

The governor said the corps would operate three "Ecology Centers" in Northern California initially, probably in the redwoods area of the north coast.

They will be implemented as five state-operated conservation centers manned by minimum security prison convicts are abandoned in the coming fiscal year. Reagan said the "Ecology Centers" would be staffed by about 80 persons each and could include welfare recipients.

Volunteers will be paid $15 a month and will wear forest ranger-type work uniforms, be housed in dormitories and be provided meals. They will help with reforestation projects, fight fires and floods, clear streams, and improve beaches and parks.

Reagan told a news conference that such work for conscientious objectors meets federal requirements that they serve at least 24 months of "appropriate civilian work" as an alternative to the military.

"The Selective Service System will immediately begin soliciting volunteers for the California Ecology Centers," Reagan said.

Reagan released a statement by state Conservation Director James G. Stearns which said "safety standards required of regular firefighters of the Division of Forestry will apply, including reasonably short hair and an allowance for properly trimmed mustaches."

Novato Eyes Effluent Ban Threat

Novato Sanitary District directors are worried about the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board's announced intent to consider a ban on discharge of waste water into San Francisco Bay by 1985.

District Mgr. Charles A. Joseph told directors Monday night such planning "is in conflict with what we are now doing."

Joseph explained that the district and six other agencies from Marin and Southern Sonoma are proceeding on a subregional study for transporting effluent to the bay.

The subregional study is to determine the best method of handling waste water, Joseph said. If the regional board has already decided that a ban is the best way to handle the problem, it has "thrown out two-thirds of the study," he contended.

The regional board has announced that it intends to consider banning waste discharges into the bay as part of its final plan, he said.

Another complication, Joseph said, is that the regional board's interim plan calls for the subregional system to be completed by 1978.

Then if the ban were enacted, it would have to be removed in 1985 at a considerable cost, he said.

The Novato Sanitary District board also:

ANNEXATIONS — Annexed seven acres on the west side of Eucalyptus Avenue at Mendocino Lane, owned by Marinaways Inc., and the city corporation yard at the south end of Davidson Street.

ROBERTS PROPERTY — Rejected a bid by developer Robert Roberts to annex only two of his 43-acre parcel in Marin Highlands, since district policy requires inclusion of the entire parcel for annexation.

RESIGNATION — Accepted the resignation of Benny Gibby, a mechanic.

MEETING SCHEDULE — Adjourned until 6 p.m. May 13 at the North Marin County Water District office, instead of the regularly scheduled May 10 date.

Largemouth bass can live in water temperatures ranging from near freezing to over 90 degrees.

Freeway Vs. Rail Debate Criticized

ASILOMAR (UPI) — The president of a San Francisco engineering firm said Tuesday mass urban transportation was not just a battle between freeways and rapid transit.

"I think we are all wearying of the sterility of the 'freeway vs. rail transit' argument," Louis W. Riggs told an engineering symposium.

"In many cities it is not an either-or situation at all. There are corridors which indicate one or another, or both."

Riggs, president of Tudor Engineering Company, said "there are many more situations where other modes of transportation are needed."

"The point is that we must custom-design future urban transportation systems to fit specific transportation needs."

The conference, sponsored by the Engineering Foundation of New York City, was called to explore ways in which design or public works can be improved.

Riggs' firm is involved in construction of the Bay Area Rapid Transit system.

The color of the brook trout usually varies with its habitat.

Per Capita Income: $3,910

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Commerce Department said Tuesday per capita income in the nation was up 5.75 per cent in 1970 to $3,910.

In 1969 it was $2,216, and in 1969 $3,699.

The department said the top gains, around 10 per cent, occurred in the District of Columbia, Alaska, Mississippi, Hawaii, Montana and West Virginia. It rose 3 per cent of less in Delaware, Indiana, Washington and Michigan while declining in North Dakota.

Per capita personal income is total personal income divided by total population.

At the same time the department said personal income rose in every region of the country and in 48 states by at least 4 per cent. The nationwide increase was 7 per cent.

Personal income mainly consists of wage and salary payments, proprietors' income, interest, rent, and dividends and government transfers, less personal contributions for social insurance.

Here is a table showing total personal income, per capita income and per cent of per capita income to the national average for the Western states:

Far West

Washington $13,675,000,000; $3,993; (102.) Oregon $7,775,000,000; $3,700; (95.) Nevada $2,258,000,000; $4,544; (116.) California $89,761,000,000; $4,469; (114.) Alaska $1,426,000,000; $4,676; (120.) Hawaii $3,429,000,000; $4,530; (116.) Arizona $6,334,000,000; $3,542; (91). Montana $2,350,000,000; $3,381; (86.) Idaho $2,289,000,000; $3,206; (82.) Utah $3,416,000,000; $3,210; (82.)

Seeks Delay In Rail Takeover

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A consumer lobbying group today filed suit in U.S. District Court to delay for at least 30 days the takeover of the nation's railroad passenger service by the National Railway Passenger Corporation.

The semipublic corporation, known as AMTRAK, is scheduled to take over most of the nation's passenger service May 1. It will drop about 100 of the present 285 intercity passenger trains and concentrate its remaining service on the more heavily traveled and profitable routes.

The suit was brought by the National Association of Railroad Passengers (NARP), whose lobbying activities were partly responsible for passage of the original AMTRAK law. The states of Michigan and Indiana joined in the suit.

G.M. Low Bidder On Commute Fleet

General Motors Corp., beating its only competition by a slim $122,006, yesterday bid $5,833,550 to sell 132 buses to the Golden Gate Bridge District by the end of this year.

Flexible Bus Co., the only other bidder, offered the fleet for $5,955,556.

Flexible, an Ohio-based company, also bid $1,118,520 to develop 20 additional buses powered by smogless diesels fueled with liquid natural gas.

District officials, however, differed on whether they would recommend acceptance of the separate bid by Flexible. General Motors did not bid on the option for smogless power plants. The district board has yet to act on the bids.

The district's bus transit manager, Donald White, had estimated the cost of the buses, with some spare parts, would average $45,000. He was over the actual average by less than $900, but noted he originally had expected to seek more spare parts.

In addition to the 132 new buses, the district also plans to lease 20 buses built since 1964 from Greyhound Lines-West.

The fleet, to serve midday intracounty traffic as well as commuters, is expected to require an annual subsidy of $1 million, including the cost of depreciation.

Luehring doubted the staff's analysis of the bids would be completed in time for Friday's regular board meeting, but said the analysis would be done "as soon as possible."

The district's board of directors has agreed to pay cash for the full cost of the bus system, but has an application pending for a federal grant for two-thirds of the cost.

Both bidders acknowledged that their buses exceeded by some 600 pounds the state's maximum allowance of 20,500 pounds for rear axles, but White said the same buses have been approved by the state for service elsewhere.

The 132 new buses are to include 112 suburban types and 20 transit types. Suburban buses are more posh, with more comfortable seats and all passengers facing forward. Seats are elevated on raised flooring on each side of the aisle.

The transit buses, to be used for short feeder service, especially to the district's planned ferry fleet, have some seats facing the aisle and flat floors, thus allowing easier loading and unloading.

General Motors bid $44,408 for each suburban bus, and $42,070 for each transit bus.

All the buses will be air-conditioned and carry only 45 passengers instead of the maximum capacity of 53. This will increase leg room.

They will be 102 inches wide, compared to conventional 96-inch-wide buses.

Shepard Picked For Admiral Rank

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Navy announced today the selection of Astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr. for promotion to admiral.

Shepard is the first of the astronauts to win star rank from among a large group who were or are Air Force or Navy officers.

He was the first American to be shot into space and was commander of the most recent lunar-landing mission.

Firm Looted

Thieves entered the Empire Casting Co., 150 Hopper Street, Petaluma, during last weekend and took $66 in cash and a clock radio, police said yesterday. A window was broken to gain entry.

Protesters Disrupt ROTC Exercise

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI)— Antiwar protesters turned a Naval ROTC exercise into a two-hour coffee klatch Tuesday of Stanford University.

About 25 peace activists marched toward the drill field armed with cakes and pitchers of steaming coffee as 60 cadets drilled. The exercise was halted and the two groups spent two hours talking politics.

Behr Urges Population Curb Study In Bay Area

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Study of controls on population growth in the Bay Area and Southern California was urged today in a resolution by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael.

The measure requested the state Department of Public Health to make the study and recommend controls to the 1973 Legislature.

The study was asked by the State Environmental Quality Study Council. Behr represents the Senate on the council.

His resolution declared that the continuing concentration of population in the two urbanized regions had depleted and deteriorated "vital resources beyond the capacity of natural processes to restore them." It asserted that no means were available "to restore levels of quality which will assure freedom from injury to health."

Behr's resolution asked that the study relate air, water and land pollution and land use patterns to health effects and each region's "natural carrying capacities."

Rogers Shifts Attention To Vietnam Peace

LONDON (UPI)—Secretary of State William P. Rogers shifted his attention from America's China policy to negotiations for peace in Vietnam today, meeting with David K.E. Bruce, chief U.S. delegate to the Paris talks.

Aides to the secretary of state, who is on a tour of Europe and the Middle East, said Rogers' meeting with Bruce would be a "useful consultation" and no dramatic new peace moves were planned.

On Thursday, Rogers will make a brief visit to Paris to meet French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann before traveling on to Ankara, Turkey, for the ministerial meeting of the Central Treaty Organization (CENTO) at the end of the week.

Sentenced To Center At Corona

Joseph Rivera, 25, of San Rafael, was sentenced to the California Rehabilitation Center at Corona Monday after receipt of doctors' reports in Marin Superior Court that he is, or is in danger of becoming, a heroin addict.

Judge E. Warren McGuire suspended further proceedings against Rivera, who pleaded guilty last month to burglarizing a home at 178 Marina Vista, Larkspur, Jan. 21.

Rivera is also known as Herman Joseph Sanchez.

Foran Bill To Support Transit Plan

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill appropriating $250,000 to the Bay Area's Metropolitan Transportation Commission has been introduced by Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco.

The commission formed this year under legislation passed last year by Foran, but has had no funds of its own to start operations.

His measure would appropriate the money from the unexpended balance of a $9 million state fund for air pollution research. His staff said the special appropriation was a one-time funding, with future funds hoped for from pending legislation to impose a sales tax on gasoline for transit purposes.

The commission was formed to force regional transportation planning on the nine-county Bay Area.

To Be Promoted

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon today announced his intention to nominate Civil Service Commission Chairman James E. Johnson, a black, to be assistant secretary of the Navy for manpower and reserve affairs.

India is one-sixth the size of the Soviet Union.

Behr Attempting To Save River Bills

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, today was drafting extensive amendments to rescue his legislation to preserve the Eel, Trinity and Klamath rivers.

The three wild rivers long have been targeted for massive dams by state and federal water engineers, but they could be preserved permanently under his measure to include them in the Federal Wild and Scenic Rivers Act of 1968.

The amendments will strike from the original bill its provision to condemn for a half-mile-wide greenbelt along each bank, a move designed to meet objections by land owners — especially by major lumber companies and counties concerned about cuts in their tax bases.

The amendments also would declare that the legislation could not "unreasonably limit lumbering and other resource uses" and would permit taking of domestic water within the counties through which the rivers flow.

Alioto's Mother Stricken, Dies

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Mrs. Domenica L. Alioto, mother of San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto, died today of an apparent heart attack. She was 78.

She was stricken at her home, and rushed to St. Mary's hospital where she died with the mayor at her side.

Mrs. Alioto, a native of San Francisco, had four children, 19 grandchildren and 13 great grandchildren. Her husband, Giuseppe, died in 1961.

San Anselmo Joins 'World Community'

San Anselmo today became the first California community to "mundialize," aligning itself with "world cities" which fly the United Nations flag.

The San Anselmo city council, by a 3-to-2 vote, elected to adopt the concept of world citizenship as proposed by World Federalist Youth-USA and its executive director Norman E. Leach. (Another San Anselmo City Council story, page 1.)

Councilmen Woodrow V. Capurro and Warren R. Perry voted against the proposal.

The proposal came at 12:30 a.m. near the end of a long council meeting filled with debate and generated considerable controversy of its own.

"Mundialization" as explained by Leach is an effort at "world citizenship and responsibility." One of its goals is to establish a world court to resolve international disputes.

For San Anselmo residents, mundialization means they will have a United Nations flag flying with the American flag at city hall and they will be paired with a sister city chosen from another country as part of a twinning program.

Leach reported that, Tokyo, the world's largest city, is mundialized as are cities in Canada, Great Britain, France and Scandinavia.

Councilman Capurro said he was against munidalization because "We're here to do city business."

The San Anselmo City Council Also:

RECREATION APPLICATION — Voted to file a letter with HUD to receive matching funds for parks and recreation projects totaling an estimated $46,400 for the coming fiscal year. Projects include $10,000 worth of improvements to Memorial Park. No indication was given on what percentage basis local funds might be matched.

TERMS SET — Approved one year terms for Human Rights Mini-Board members on the recommendation of Dennis Post, board member. Members missing three consecutive meetings will be removed from the board.

EQUIPMENT REQUEST — Approved the use of city equipment and labor to landscape a strip of land separating the Greyhound Terminal and the bank beside Center Boulevard.

ELM SPRAYING — Awarded a contract for elm leaf beetle spraying to low bidder Sohner Tree Service in amount of $983.

COMMITTEE VOLUNTEER — Asked that a resident volunteer to serve on a streets and traffic committee.

BIKE RACKS — Voted to appropriate $300 for three bicycle racks to be permanently placed in three car parking spots in the downtown area.

Marvin Role

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Lee Marvin will star in "Prime Cut!" for Cinema Center Films playing a Kansas City racketeer.

Rhubarb Souffle Is New Treat

RHUBARB SOUFFLE

30 vanilla wafers, finely rolled (about 1½ cups crumbs)
1 cup sugar
¼ cup butter or margarine, melted
1 (1-pound) package frozen rhubarb, thawed
4 teaspoons unflavored gelatin
⅓ cup cold water
4 eggs, separated
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
½ cup heavy cream, whipped
1 pint fresh strawberries, crushed

Combine crumbs, three tablespoons sugar and butter or margarine: set aside. Wrap a double thickness of wax paper around 10 demitasse cups or a 1 quart souffle dish, forming a 3-inch collar. Secure with tape. Whirl rhubarb in a blender or puree. Soften gelatine in water. Combine egg yolks, salt, lemon juice and ½ cup sugar in top of double boiler. Cook over simmering water, stirring constantly, for 6 to 8 minutes. Remove from heat. Add softened gelatine; stir until dissolved.

Add rhubarb and lemon rind. Chill, stirring occasionally until mixture mounds. Beat egg whites until foamy. Gradually beat in one-quarter cup sugar. Beat until moist distinct peaks form. Lightly fold rhubarb mixture and cream into egg whites. Set aside two tablespoons crumb mixture. Layer crumbs and mixture in cups or souffle dish, beginning with crumbs and ending with rhubarb. Refrigerate four to five hours or until firm but spongy. Remove paper collar carefully. Sprinkly top with reserved crumbs. Serve with strawberries, sweetened with one tablespoon sugar or to taste. Makes 10 (approximately two-thirds cup) servings.

Tips Offered For A Crisp Salad

The salad experts from the west who grow and ship nearly all the three and one half billion heads of western iceberg lettuce consumed in the nation each year offer these tips for making really crisp salads.

Select firm (not hard) heads that give slightly to finger pressure.

At home, strip off any damaged leaves, remove the core and run cool water down into the head.

Invert the head and allow to drain thoroughly, core-side down.

Then, refrigerate in tightly-sealed plastic bag or plastic crisper.

Do not add dressing or salt to salads until just before serving.

Malnutrition Can Bring On Loss Of Energy

Malnutrition among American children of the poor results in apathy, listlessness, loss of energy and ability to concentrate and comprehend, inattention and restlessness, behavioral problems and retarded learning. These were the findings of the recent Senate Hearings on Hunger, chaired by Sen. George McGovern.

There is also evidence of lowered resistance to disease and infection and general mental and physical growth retardation.

There are 38 million "poor" and "near poor" Americans living in families with incomes falling below the minimum established as necessary to provide nutritionally adequate meals, according to Social Security Administration estimates.

Because lack of nutrients retards learning capacity and thus affects adjustment and future employment possibilities, attaining adequate nutrition is a key factor influencing the happiness and well-being of these Americans.

ANTIQUE SHOW FEATURE

'Friendship Rum Pot' Ready For Annual Event Tomorrow

Passing from home to home in Mill Valley is a "Friendship Rum Pot" recipe which will become the basis for a new offering at Grandmothers' Cupboard of the annual Marin County Antique Show and Sale which opens tomorrow at the IDESI Hall in Sausalito.

Episcopal Churchwomen of Mill Valley's Church of Our Saviour, which sponsors the show have been adding fruits and sugar to the "rum pot" which gets more mellow as the weeks go by.

FRIENDSHIP RUM POT

1st week: Drain, add and stir 1 cup sugar, 1 cup diced canned peaches, ¼ cup halved maraschino cherries.

2nd week: Drain, add and stir 1 cup sugar, 1 cup pineapple tidbits, ¼ cup maraschino cherries.

3rd week: Drain, add and stir 1 cup sugar, 1 cup diced canned pears, ¼ cup maraschino cherries.

Keep repeating each week; store at room temperature in a covered conatiner. This forms the basis for the rum pot which will be sold at the Cupboard. To this starter various other fruits can be added.

Serve as a delicious topping for ice cream or pound cake.

BEAN SPROUT-SAUERKRAUT RELISH

Mix:
1 large can sauerkraut, drained
1 large can bean sprouts, drained
2 green onions, diced
1 small jar of pimentos, chopped

Blend ¼ cup oil, ½ cup vinegar, 1 cup sugar. Boil mixture one minute. Pour over other ingredients.

Makes three pint jars. Seal. Chill at least overnight before serving.

A Tasty Meat Dish Ideal For A Twosome

Cooking for two has its difficulties. Most recipes are tested for families of four to six.

Here's a main dish developed specifically for twosomes. It's easy to make, yet fancy enough for a Sunday dinner. Be sure to set aside two tablespoons of the almonds for garnish.

MEATLOAF FOR TWO

½ cup dried apricots, cut up
¼ cup water
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 tablespoon brown sugar
½ cup blue cheese or plain croutons
½ cup milk
¾ pound ground chuck
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon rosemary, crumbled
¼ teaspoon seasoned pepper
¼ cup chopped almonds, toasted

Combine apricots and water in small saucepan; simmer four or five minutes until liquid is absorbed. Stir in butter and sugar; set aside. Combine croutons and milk; let soften one-quarter hour. Mix with chuck and seasonings.

Flatten meat mixture on waxed paper into 8x6-inch oval, spoon apricots and two tablespoons almonds in crosswise strip across center. Fold two ends of meat over filling to make a loaf shape. Seal openings and place loaf in shallow pan or pie plate.

Bake at 350 degrees 30 minutes or until done as desired. Garnish with the two tablespoons almonds remaining. Serve with Parmesan sprinkled tomato halves heated in same oven and mashed potatoes.

Makes two generous servings.

Egg Casserole Is Easy On Budget, Tasty, Too

Looking for something different and economical? This one-egg casserole can easily fit the budget.

EGG CASSEROLE

¾ cup diced celery
¾ cup diced green pepper
½ pound mushrooms sliced
½ cup butter or margarine
5 tbs. flour
1 tbs. Worcestershire sauce
6 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
2 cups shredded Cheddar Cheese
2 cups French Croutons
dash tabasco sauce
3 cups milk
1 tsp. salt

Lightly brown celery, green pepper and mushrooms in butter. Remove from pan with slotted spoon. Blend flour into butter remaining in pan, being careful not to let it brown. Gradually blend in milk, Worcestershire sauce, tabasco and salt. Cook, stirring until smooth and thickened.

Add eggs and one cup of the cheese to pepper, celery, mushroom mixture in casserole. Gently fold in sauce. Sprinkle croutons over casserole evenly; top with the remaining cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

Pregnancy Demands Increase Of Proteins

Protein needs increase during pregnancy and lactation. A pregnant woman requires as much protein as an average adult man and a nursing mother 14 per cent more.

To satisfy these special needs, the daily diet should include generous servings of meat. Liver should be included at least once a week because of the large amount of iron and vitamins A and niacin it contributes.

The Importance Of Daily Breakfasts

Breakfast menus which include meat, fruit, bread and milk provide protein, minerals and vitamins which contribute to growth and muscle repair. They also help prevent fatigue, increase resistance to infection and lessen the desire for mid-morning snacking.

Meats popular on the breakfast menu are: bacon, Candadian-style bacon, ham slices, chipped beef, cubed steaks, pork chops, pork shoulder roll slices, beef patties, corned beef hash, pork sausage links and patties and lamb patties.

Three Types Of Onions; Best Uses

Do you like your onions raw or cooked, or both ways? Knowing which type of onion to use for cooking or eating raw can be a problem. According to the United States Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service, there are three types of onions.

Globe onions — are the most common and are considered primarily for cooking. Most varieties of globe onions have yellow skins, but some are white and a few have red or brown skins. They are round to oval shaped and have a rather pungent flavor. Most fall into the medium size range, but some smaller onions are packed and sold separately.

Granex-Grano onions — have a mild flavor and are considered ideal for slicing and eating raw. They are mostly yellow skinned, but may also be white. The shape tends to be less round and less symmetrical than the globes, ranging from somewhat flattened to top-shaped. The size range is medium to large.

Spanish onions — resemble globe onions in shape, but they are generally much larger. Most varieties are yellow, but some are white-skinned. They are mild in flavor, often called "sweet Spanish." They are ideal for slicing or for salads. Sometimes medium sizes are packed separately from large ones.

Whatever variety you choose, look for hard or firm onions which are dry and have small necks. They should be covered with papery outer scales and reasonably free from green sunburn spots and other blemishes. Avoid onions with wet or very soft necks, which usually are immature or affected by decay. Also avoid onions with thick, hollow, woody centers in the neck or with fresh sprouts.

At home store onions at room temperature or slightly cooler (60 degrees is best). Put in loosely woven or open meshed containers with good circulation of air. Onions sprout or decay if temperature or humidity is high, but will keep several months in a cool, dry place.

SWEDISH EXCHANGE student Kaisa Noren, who is spending the year at San Rafael High School, feels young Americans are very much like young Swedes — when you get to know them. "Americans tend to play roles," she said, "to keep up a face." She will tour the United States with other American Field Service students after the school term and return to Sweden in July.

Swedish Girl Amused By Dating

By BETH GAEDDERT

The American custom of dating was one of the things Kaisa Noren has had to adjust to during her year at San Rafael High School on the American Field Service scholarship program.

In Sweden, where 17-year-old Kaisa has already completed one year of college she said, "You have many, many boy friends. They are friends whether they are boys or girls. I can call boys up and ask them if they want to see a show — just like girls."

She also pays her own way most of the time in Sweden, and if not, she is just as likely to foot the bill as the boy. The practice of boys holding doors open for girls is amusing to Kaisa who thinks the boys get in the way more than help.

"THAT'S ANOTHER thing," she laughed. "They go in front of you and sort of get in your way — it's kind of awkward."

"You feel more equal in Sweden. You pay for yourself — you do your own thing more. We don't have any kind of dating system at all." said blonde freckle-faced Kaisa.

Teen-agers in Sweden enjoy more independence than their American counterparts, she said, noting that some American families allow children more freedom than others. Kaisa has already spent one summer in England on her own. "Like most Swedish youngsters do," and another month alone in France, "to practice my French."

It's really quite common for Swedish youngsters to take off alone for the summer to travel in Europe — often hitchhiking — she said, adding it's much safer there. They may be using the money the Swedish government pays them for attending high school. She says students get the equivalent of a few hundred dollars upon graduation.

AFTER HIGH school about 98 per cent go on to continuation school, trade school or to a university. After a year or two a student who does well in continuation school may then enter a university. Students not only get free books and tuition, they are paid to attend.

Despite the fact that almost everybody gets an education in Sweden, Kaisa said there is no unemployment problem such as in the United States.

Kaisa took science courses in Sweden and thinks she may study medicine like her older sister. "About 30 to 35 per cent of doctors are women in Sweden and I think there will be more. There are about 40 per cent studying sciences now," she said.

"You don't notice any prejudice in Sweden. It's not at all uncommon that the woman brings in the most money into the household," she said. Kaisa believes "it's up to them (every woman) what they do. Everyone has to decide for himself. I'm totally for that."

"HERE IT seems you get out of high school and get married" compared to Sweden where "you marry around 25 maybe. It's not a big deal if you do or don't. Even girls in high school are married here — I was so surprised. I wanted to see the United States and travel," said Kaisa adding that she "didn't want to get locked in."

She said she was also surprised to find that high school girls weren't for women's liberation. From what she'd heard of the movement she expected all the people her age to be more independent.

Other than that her preconceived notions of the United States were fairly accurate except for the smog. "I didn't think it should be so smoggy. When I came off the plane in New York I couldn't see the sky and it wasn't a cloudy day."

Kaisa likes hiking in Lucas Valley, where she lives with Mr. and Mrs. Homer E. Marston Jr., but misses the wild forests of Sweden where one can hike and "really get away from everything. You can still hear the noise, she said about hiking in the hills of Marin.

THE NATIONAL sport of Sweden makes use of the forests. "It's like cross country running with no trail," Kaisa says. Each person is armed with a compass and a map and the winner finds his way to a certain location first. "It's really fun, some people always get lost and you have to go looking for them." Soccer and ice hockey — she likes to play both — are also big sports in her country. Youngsters participate in competition between clubs and cities rather than by schools, she said.

The business of school spirit was a new experience, "You say more bad things about your school, than good in Sweden," she said.

Kaisa's mother is a ballet teacher in Linkoping, where the family lives. Her father works for an aircraft company. Although she takes dance classes from her mother, she has no desire to dance as a performer as her mother did before marriage.

Child care centers on "almost every corner" make it possible for more women to work outside the home. Kaisa's sister and her husband are each on a half-day schedule so they can share child-rearing duties, as do an increasing number of Swedish couples, Kaisa said.

SWEDISH CHILD centers are like American nursery schools except that besides the privately owned ones some are for children of residents of a certain apartment complex, some are paid for by city, state or federal taxes and others are put up by a neighborhood.

During the fall semester Kaisa lived with the Raymond Jeffs in San Rafael. She finds her high school classes easy and with a background of seven years of English, she speaks with only the slightest accent.

Kaisa enjoyed a camping trip with other San Rafael High School students to Death Valley over Easter vacation, not only for the camping-out but because she got to know some of the students well.

"When you get to know them there is really not that much difference" between Swedes and Americans, she feels. Although on the surface Americans "tend to play a role, try to keep up a face," she thinks it is a way of "hiding yourself, kind of protecting yourself."

Homemakers Wondering Again 'Why Don't They?'

Marin Women

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) —It's time the voice of the housewife was heard in the land —again. For the "why don't they?" folder is full again, as women continue to voice their suggestions on how manufacturers can improve products and packaging and so increase their sales.

One of the most frequent "why don't they?" complaints involves pantyhose. not sized, as one housewife puts it, "for us big gals." Or, as another, suggested, why not "manufacture pantyhose in sizes designed to fit women with short legs and large hips?" Other complaints involve durability. But let it be said that most manufacturers, are trying sizing so a woman can elect hose that'll fit to her height and weight, and also are working to improve durability of what has become a staple of the lingerie market.

The man of the house complained the other day his shoes wouldn't stay tied. It turned out the laces are nylon, and as a homemaker had written, the nylon is durable but tends to untie more readily than cotton.

One of my own complaints in the clothing department sounds like women's lib is getting to me. Why do manufacturers put hanging loops in the back of men's coats, but not in women's?

Many of the why don't they suggestions come this way through national Family Opinion, Inc., a Toledo, Ohio-based consumer market research firm. Here are samplings of queries sent in by some of its part-time homemaker-consultants:

Why don't they?

—Make a more durable vacuum bottle for children's use. As one mother complained, "the glass liner doesn't last long in a first grader's lunch pail."

—Make all cups and glass with flat bottoms, or at least flatten so-called "everyday" ware. The bases of many have depressions in them that fill with water when they are washed in the dishwasher.

—Save the consumer some money by making pajama tops, only for the men who won't sleep in the bottoms, and vice versa. Fortunately for the former group, anyway, you now can buy nightshirts.

—Make horizontal buttonholes on dresses and blouses for firmer closing.

—Sell spices in smaller containers. There are so many you seldom use and they get stale on the shelf.

—Manufacture bed sheets with top and bottom widths the same. Being able to reverse the sheets should make for longer wear.

—Use less salt in canned vegetables and vegetable juices. It is a simple matter to add salt if wanted at home. But there are low sodium dieters and many regular eaters who don't like the over-salted taste.

—Package bacon so you can see all of it, not just the lean parts.

—Offer canister sets consisting of only two large canisters. Many people use instant coffee and tea and don't need the two small containers.

—Include tea bags or packets of instant tea along with the instant coffee provided for guests in many hotel or motel rooms.

—Make certain that detailed instructions for care and cleaning come with wallpapers, in particular the new vinyl types.

—Offer rubber gloves with an extra right or left hand; the glove more used usually wears out faster.

—Pack a few extra envelopes in greeting card boxes for the inevitable dressing errors.

This Time Mrs. McGovern Is Ready To Take Campaign Dip

By MARGUERITE DAVIS

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Eleanor McGovern said she had mixed feelings when her husband announced he would seek the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972.

Sen. George S. McGovern made his first unsuccessful try in 1968. Then, the South Dakota Democrat announced his candidacy Aug. 10, only 16 days before his party's national convention was to make the selection.

"It hardly dawned on me last time" that her husband actually was seeking the nomination, she said, and this time she "had mixed feelings at first."

By now she has lost all reservations and plans to join the campaign, traveling alone as well as accompanying McGovern.

Mrs. McGovern is a little nervous about the campaign speeches she will make.

"I approach that with some trepidation," she said. "But I worry about things unnecessarily. I expect my self-confidence will return."

She relies in part on the experience she had with her college debating team. Forensic competition already has played an important part in her life—she and McGovern met at a college debate.

The senator was one of the first doves in Congress to speak against the war in Vietnam, and Mrs. McGovern feels as strongly as he.

"Most Americans believe it's a wrong war, no matter how lofty the motives that got us into it," she said.

She did not agree with predictions that the United States would lose face if American soldiers were withdrawn.

"This nation would stand taller if it admitted a mistake," she said.

She believes America is feeling a sense of guilt about the war.

"The returning men are not greeted as heroes," she said. "They wonder why they made the sacrifice."

If Mrs. McGovern should become First Lady, she would continue the absorbing work in which she now is interested—volunteer day care center for babies and small children. There are 39 in the country including one in Washington, she said, and "I am sold on the program."

The center here, which now sends volunteers to the children's homes, will open its headquarters this summer.

But before then, Mrs. McGovern has a problem of her own to solve, a companion to stay with her two children still at home when she is off campaigning.

Massacres, War Films Rated GP But Dirty Words Are Rated X

DEAR HELEN:

Your reader who is under the impression that theater owners or managers do not enforce age limitations in R and X-rated films should, for one night, stand by the box office and listen to the insulting rants of parents who become indignant and abusive because their little Suzie or Bobby was refused admission.

As a manager, I couldn't count the number of times I've had insults thrown at me by a parent who claimed his adolescent knew more about what's going on than I could ever put on the screen. These people are usually on their way to an evening out. They drop the kids off, figuring parental okay is all that is necessary.

One final word: When the day comes that theaters do not get lucrative box-returns from the thousands of patrons who break the door when (and they do) to see "adults only" pictures (then usually protest to City Hall after they've seen them three times), only then will adult films wend their way back to selected urban art houses. — THEATER MANAGER

DEAR HELEN:

These ratings: People can be starved, tortured, massacred in a war movie, and it's general admission. But if they toss in a few so-called dirty words and some nude scenes, it's Restricted.

I guess the code means, "Make War, not Love." — PUZZLED

DEAR HELEN:

Your answer to the young man in Vietnam whose letters were not being received by his wife in the U.S. should have included the suggestion that she contact her local chapter of the American National Red Cross.

Assistance available to U.S. servicemen and their families by the Red Cross includes help with emergency communications, advice and counsel with personal problems, financial assistance to a wife when an allotment check is delayed, or to her husband if he needs cash to get home for a family crisis.

In our one small California county, 1,743 service families received assistance with communications, counseling or emergency financial aid last year.

We're here to help. Please use us. — RED CROSS DIRECTOR

DEAR HELEN:

I, too, have a teenage boy with long hair. He is constantly the butt of rotten remarks, especially from his uncle whose two short-haired sons are the neighborhood troublemakers (perhaps because they resent their tyrannical father so much).

My son, like Mrs. J.B.'s, has worked since he was 12, paid his own way from the time he was 15, bought his own car and keeps up the insurance. He never answers back when these uptight adults downgrade him as a "long-haired hippie." What he thinks is a different matter.

Like Mrs. B., I feel that the great majority of teens are good kids, and I've learned a lot about sharing and giving of oneself and caring, just from watching how they operate. When someone is in trouble, they're often right there to help, which is more than I can say about most adults.

The older generation wants respect, but how many of them give it? Why can't they see past hair style or dress to the real person. My son's hair is neat and clean and doesn't interfere with his job.

After all, George Washington wore a ponytail! — PROUD TO BE THE MOTHER OF A LONG-HAIR

DEAR MOTHER:

As I've said before, "It's not how long you make it, but why you make it long." Too bad more people can't see that for boys like your son, hair is a style, not a drop-out symbol. — H.

'Old Look' In Child Rearing

The pendulum is swinging from permissiveness in child rearing toward the earlier restrictive attitudes, Jerome D. Goldman, M.D., states in an article written for Family Physician magazine.

According to Dr. Goodman, certain segmants of our society are beginning to recognize that freedom involves responsibility and that young people need disciplinary guidelines in order to become productive citizens.

The dramatic rise in demand for child psychiatric services, Fr. Goodman reports, is being met by several short-term methods of therapy. The physician stresses the need for accurate diagnosis, and counseling for parents as foundations for all treatment methods including child-focused psychotherapy and intelligent use, when indicated, of psychoactive drugs.

USDA Faces New Labeling Of 'All Meat' Frankfurters

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — If a district court judge here is not overruled, the U.S. Department of Agriculture will have to ban frankfurter labels that say "all meat" or "all beef" when they are not entirely made up of meat or beef.

Judge Barrington D. Parker rules that such labeling is misleading and therefore violates the Wholesome Meat Act.

The suit against the USDA was brought by attorney Edward Berlin in behalf of the Federation of Homemakers, a consumer group headquartered in Arlington, Va. It is headed by Ruth Desmond, who previously gained fame for pushing a standard of 90 per cent peanuts in peanut butter.

THE FEDERATION pointed out that frankfurters bearing such labels as "all meat," "all beef," "all pork" and the like usually contain about 15 per cent non-meat substances.

In its original complaint filed last July, the Federation said these non-meat substances include 10 per cent added water (beyond the amount naturally found in meat), 2 per cent corn syrup solids and approximately 2 per cent miscellaneous ingredients such as salt, spices and curing additives.

According to the complaint, many consumers assume that "all meat" franks are more nourishing when in fact they are less nourishing than those containing 3 per cent dried milk, a substance not allowed now in "all meat" frankfurters.

The federation contended that such labeling practices restricts the production and marketing of more nutritious frankfurter products.

DURING THE legal proceedings, the USDA made no attempt to dispute the facts about what ingredients are allowed in the products at issue. So the court had only to rule on the validity of the complaint.

However, the USDA did dispute the right of the Federation to sue on a matter considered by the USDA to be solely at its own discretion. Judge Parker decided that the Federation had such a right because it had members who might be "injured" by the prevailing labeling practice.

He cited a section of the law saying:

"Misbranded... meat food products... are injurious to the public welfare (and) destroy markets for wholesome... properly labeled... meat food products."

IN SUBMITTING its case, the federation included copies of labels from "all meat" and "all beef" products listing ingredients as beef, water, dextrose, corn syrup, salt, flavorings, hydrolized plant protein, monosodium glutamate, hickory smoke flavoring, sodium erythorbate, sodium nitrite and sodium nitrate.

Ingredients are usually printed in small type next to the Federal inspection seal saying the product has been "inspected and passed" by USDA.

The hot dog decision is the latest bone of contention in attempts to get more truthful labeling of food products. It took the Supreme Court to rule that chicken soup should contain at least 2 per cent chicken.

And it took the Supreme Court to decide another sticky issue, that peanut butter should contain at least 90 per cent peanuts.

Will hot dogs be next on the menu of the Berger court? They may be if the government decides to appeal the latest ruling.

Women's Law Day Announced

Women and men who are interested in finding out more about the woman's role in the legal profession are invited to attend a "Women in Law Day" meeting at the University of California at Davis School of Law on May 4.

The Women's Caucus of the UCD Law School is sponsoring the meeting, beginning at noon on the law school patio.

Scheduled to speak are Fay Stinder, an Oakland attorney, who will discuss prison reform; Ann Wesley, a welfare rights organizer from Sacramento, and Clarissa Bronson of the Woodland Legal Aid office.

She's In Snowshoes To Read Meters

By BETY BAUER

GLENS FALLS, N.Y. (UPI)— Did you ever meet a woman meter reader? One who reads meters on snowshoes?

Well, here's Sandy Hanna.

Miss Hanna is a meter reader for the Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. She is the only female on such a job in the thousands of miles the utility serves in upstate New York.

She prefers the countryside to the city, and that's where the snowshoes come in. Her territory for meter reading is a large rural area in Warren County around Lake George, where the snow is frequent and deep.

But, Miss Hanna loves the outdoors. And that's half the job, she says.

She sets forth by car from her home near here to check meters on the outside of barns, in farmhouses, at rural stores and scores of vacation homes dotted through the scenic southern Adirondacks area. And, from the main roads, it means snowshoes to carry her over the mountainous drifts on her appointed rounds.

Bundled up in a warmly lined jumpsuit and wearing a company "hard hat," Miss Hanna travels over the deep snow to reach the meters and jot down the figures in her meter reader's book.

"I like to be on the go, and I'd certainly recommend this job to any girl, provided she can cut it," says the pert, slim blonde.

Rift Seen On Bruce's Successor

Seemingly split down the middle on how to hire a successor to County Administrator Alan Bruce, the Marin County Board of Supervisors wrangled for more than an hour yesterday before putting off the issue to next Tuesday.

The debate left the board polarized, with Supervisors Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and Arnold M. Baptiste urging promotion of some present county employee. John F. McInnis and Chairman Louis H. Baar urged a wider search for candidates and a screening committee to recommend the top prospects.

Supervisor Michael Wornum argued that promoting a county employee would be "good for morale" but claimed he did not know if any of Bruce's aides or other county employees wanted the administrator's post. "I'd have to talk to anyone who has been in a subordinate role," he explained.

Arrigoni said he was prepared to vote immediately to promote an unnamed county employee, but would agree to wait a week. If the rest of the board took no action at that time, "I will move for an executive session," he warned.

Acting in Baar's absence last week, Arrigoni had arranged for yesterday's agenda to provide a closed session on the hiring issue in case the board wanted to discuss a promotion rather than outside hiring.

McInnis said he wanted to see widespread recruiting but stressed that he felt county employees should be accorded an equal opportunity for the post.

"I believe the . . . position is of such importance it deserves solicitation to get the most qualified person," McInnis said. He urged that the board appoint three other Bay Area administrators — specifically including Thomas J. Mellon of San Francisco — to screen candidates and provide the board a list of the best qualified.

If the board first closeted itself with in-house hopefuls and then went outside, it might "cloud the career" of the in-house men by implying doubt of their capabilities, McInnis argued.

"We owe it to the people of the county to see who's best," interjected Baar.

Arrigoni and Baptiste contended that most recent county department head vacancies have been filled by promotion — citing the public defender and the planning director. "I'd like to continue my expression of confidence in county employees," Arrigoni said.

Two women employees, however, spoke up from the audience to urge widespread recruiting and formal screening.

"I would have the public know I'm opposed to an executive session at this time," McInnis said. "I think we have to explore this," Baar agreed.

Margaret B. Azevedo, spokesman for the Marin Council for Civic Affairs, earlier urged the board to decide publicly what steps it would take to replace Bruce, only going into closed session to discuss specific persons.

Bruce warned that the county counsel had ruled that the method of selection should be decided in open meeting.

Span Bike Lane Urged By Board

Richardson Bay Bridge, which is undergoing a widening to eight lanes, should also have a special path for bicycles and pedestrians, the Marin County Board of Supervisors decided yesterday.

On a motion by Michael Wornum, the supervisors voted unanimously to ask the State Division of Highways to add a pedestrian-bicycle path to the bridge.

"It's absolutely crazy to put in an eight-lane highway without a bike path," said Wornum.

Pierre W. Joske, director of county parks and recreation, said he would particularly urge a bicycle facility on Richardson Bay Bridge because the only other route from Marin City to Strawberry Shopping Center entails a six-mile detour toward Mill Valley and over heavily travelled city streets.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

APPOINTMENTS — By a 3-2 vote, with the appointees laughingly dissenting, reappointed Supervisors John F. McInnis and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. to the City-County Services Committee as delegate and alternate. Reappointed McInnis to the Association of Bay Area Governments. Named A.L. (Ray) Crebassa to a vacant seat on Flood Control Zone 3 advisory board. Postponed decision between nominees Carolos Gonzales and Warren Jacobs for a four-year term on the county board of appeals, as the engineering representative. Postponed to May 4 naming a replacement for attorney Lloyd Tunik on the county law library board of trustees.

ADVISERS — Voted 5-0 to expand membership of the Flood Control Zone 3 (Richardson Bay) advisory board to seven persons, in order to provide Mill Valley City Council representation on the board. No appointments were made.

MENTAL HEALTH — After a warning by McInnis against treating the issue routinely, reappointed Dr. John Guerrant as program chief of the mental health center.

MC NEARS BEACH — Approved a call for food concession bids for three months at McNears Beach, to include optional beer and wine sales.

PERSONNEL — Raised the $600 annual maximum reimbursement — at $25 per meeting — to $750 for county personnel commissioners.

FIRE STATION — Approved plans and specifications for a new Marin City police and fire substation; awarded a $2,550 contract to Maggiora and Ghilotti, Inc. of Corte Madera, for fill at the site.

GIFTS — Voted thanks for a $303.44 check from the Marge Leech Memorial Fund for courtyard benches for the new Novato branch library, and for a $200 copy of a venereal disease prevention film made in Marin County, courtesy of the Civic Center Lions Club.

RETIREMENT — Put on the agenda for May 4, discussion of a replacement for County Fire Chief Louis J. Bloom, who faces mandatory retirement June 1.

SACRAMENTO — Agreed to cut short their May 11 agenda to travel to Sacramento for an afternoon meeting with State Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-Mill Valley, and Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Anselmo, on Marin legislative problems.

INDIAN ARTIFACTS — Ordered revision of the county ordinance on excavating Indian middens to clarify sections concerning excavations at the College of Marin.

RESERVE — Received a report from Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell that the contingency fund was down to $8,825 from the $1,447,348 allocated for the fiscal year.

AUDITORIUM — Accepted as complete the $4,868.10 installation of cabinetwork for the Veterans Memorial Auditorium.

BICYCLE FESTIVAL — Authorized public works department to erect barricades on old San Geronimo Road intersections to control traffic for 25-mile bicycle race Saturday, and requested the sheriff to provide two deputies for traffic patrol.

CAPITAL PROJECTS — After hearing objections from County Parks and Recreation Director Pierre W. Joske and Planning Director Werner Von Gundell, as well as criticism by individual supervisors, accepted the proposed five-year spending program for roads and parks, subject to further hearings at budget session in June.

GNOSS FIELD — Authorized an outlay of $18,958 to pay for a $39,675 repaving job on the runway at Gnoss Field. The federal share will be $20,717. Last year, $13,500 had been budgeted at the request of Public Director Donald R. Frost. More stringent requirements by the Federal Aviation Administration raised the cost, said Frost.

SPECIAL RAISE — Approved a special salary raise for county planner Marjorie Macris, from the present $937 per month to $984. Louis H. Baar voted against the raise, but the other four supervisors were convinced by County Planning Director Werner Von Gundell, who argued that he has held back raises for the underserving but is now asking for a special raise because of outstanding work.

SLIDE REPAIR — Awarded a $20,923.55 contract to Bresnan and Dalecio of San Rafael to repair storm damage on Fawn Drive and DeBurgh Drive in Sleepy Hollow. Ten bids ranged to a high of $35,345.

TOMALES BAY — Approved a rezoning of the 23-acre Tomales Bay Ranch near Blake's Landing, north of Marshall, where architects Robert Hersey and Bruce Wendell Beebe want to develop eight homes on four lots.

Tart Reply From Judge To Bruce

A Marin Superior Court judge sent a blistering letter yesterday to County Administrator Alan Bruce for comments Bruce made about the court's failure to realease Angela Y. Davis on bail.

Judge E. Warren McGuire told the county administrator that the statement "has to be one of the more stupid statements of your career and fully demonstrates your lack of knowledge, understanding and good judgment in such a serious matter as this."

In his letter of resignation presented to the Marin County Board of Supervisors on April 20, the county administrator said: "I must say that I am happy to remove myself from an establishment of which the judicial branch has not found yet a way to release Angela Y. Davis on bail . . ."

Judge McGuire gave a chronological outline of the Davis court appearances and her requests for delays and continuances. Any delay in the hearings on various motions, including the motion for bail, is due to Miss Davis and her co-defendant Ruchell Magee, and not to any action or inaction of the courts, declared Judge McGuire.

"I recognize that criticism and attacks on the courts are in vogue these days, but one would expect a person in a position of responsibility such as you hold to speak accurately in matters of importance and when you know your comments will be the subject of widespread dissemination by the news media, particularly when the distribution of your letter was so extensive."

Board Balks At Master Teacher Pact

The Petaluma Board of Education balked last night at teachers' request to negotiate a so-called master contract that defines school policy as well as calling for increased pay.

Supt. Lesly H. Meyer said the board objected to the request by the Association of Petaluma Area Teachers because many of the rules called for in the proposed master contract already are part of adopted school board policy.

Meyer won approval from the board to refer the teachers' request to the Sonoma County Counsel for review.

The proposed master pact, among other things, calls for method under which teacher-school board impasses would be resolved and asks that a teacher approve a document before school officials place it in his personnel file, Meyer said.

The teachers' group already has asked the board for an 11 per cent pay increase for fiscal 1971-72.

In other business, the board told the Penngrove Advisory Committee it may have to condemn to obtain acreage for a playground addition at Penngrove School. The committee expressed concern the purchase was not moving fast enough, Meyer said, but the group was told school officials only recently were able to sell bonds to cover the cost of the land.

The committee also complained about teaching duties being assigned Penngrove Principal John Anderson, but Meyer said it was pointed out to the group that other principals in the district were similarly affected because of defeat of the recent tax increase election.

Seale Case Rested

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI)— The state rested its case today against Black Panther chairman Bobby G. Seale and court was recessed until 10 a.m. next Tuesday when the defense will offer motions.

The 5,400 windows at United Nations headquarters require six to eight full-time window-washers.

Percy Gets Principalship In Cotati

Paul Percy, temporary principal of both Thomas Page and Cotati schools the past year, was named principal last night by trustees of the Cotati School District.

Percy, appointed following a closed session of the board, replaces Annagene Cornish, who has been on extended sick leave, according to Miriam Horne, board secretary.

Percy's salary will remain the same, since he received a boost when he became acting principal last year.

In other matters, the board extended teacher contracts except for the two instructors it previously announced would not be reemployed because of tight finances; gave the county schools office space at Waldo Rohnert School for three portable classrooms for the trainable mentally retarded, and heard a report from the Citizens Advisory Committee on planning for the June 1 tax increase election.

Waring On Two Types Of Pottery

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The Food and Drug Administration yesterday issued a warning in 11 western states against using two patterns of pottery sold by Holt Howard Associates of San Rafael because of potentially dangerous lead content.

The cups and saucers, imported from Italy, were sold by the company between February 1968 and October 1969.

A spokesman for the firm said today that the company had "worked for eight months" to recall the dangerous pottery.

"Prolonged use of this pottery could cause severe illness or death," the FDA warning said. It said lead levels in the pottery ranged from 580 to 1,200 parts per million in cups and up to 3,900 parts per million in saucers.

The FDA limits leached lead in pottery to seven parts per million.

The same firm had earlier imported some mugs which also were declared by county officials to contain dangerous amounts of lead.

New Holt Howard pottery, often marked "H H Italy," has been tested and found suitable for distribution, the FDA said.

The dangerous patterns were described as No. 7604 cups which have a cream colored background with small bright blue dots and a green rim, a green band and an aqua colored leaf pattern, and No. 2838 jumbo cup and saucer set which has a cream background and green rim and leaf pattern and clusters of green grapes.

Hikes For Prison Guards Proposed

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO—Salary increases up to 20 per cent for prison guards for college credits earned during employment have been proposed in legislation by Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally, D-Los Angeles.

The increases would be paid from federal funds available for this purpose, according to Dymally.

His measure said it was intended to make correctional work financially more competitive with other law enforcement work "and to encourage more dedicated people to choose a career in the field of corrections.

Marin Hospital Gets Cancer Society Aid

The Marin Hospital District board last night accepted a $28,724 grant from the American Cancer Society to provide post-hospital care for cancer and other chronically ill patients.

Acquired through the society's California division, the funds will support the project for one year and will be used to hire a nurse and social worker.

According to Ray K. Bolinger, hospital administrator, the nurse and social worker will help patients adjust to their illness while at Marin General Hospital and to help plan extended care.

It will provide planning for care, facilitate patients' move from the hospital, decrease the amount of time patients spend in the hospital and assist physicians in providing for the needs of patients.

"The continuity of care program will fill a substantial need in our community," Bolinger said. "Hospital staffers providing acute hospital care must, of necessity, focus on short-term goals in crisis situations. This often means that post-hospital planning becomes a second priority."

The Marin Hospital District board also:

THRIFT SHOP — Approved a proposal by the hospital volunteers to operate a second-hand clothing store at the old Northwestern Pacific Railroad building in San Rafael to raise funds for the hospital. The project still must receive city approval.

MENTAL HEALTH — Heard a report from Dr. John S. Guerrant head of the Marin Community Mental Health Center, outlining a program aimed at treating the mental patient before hospitalization becomes necessary. Guerrant said the proposed program seeks to work not only with patients but also with those influencing his life. The board took no action.

FIRE PROTECTION — Selected a two-man committee to meet Monday with representatives of the Kentfield Fire District board to discuss the hospital's $1 per year contract for fire protection. The fire district would like the amount increased. No time or place has been set for the meeting.

CIRCULATION CAMPAIGN — Authorized the Mill Valley Record to use the hospital's name in a circulation promotion. The hospital will receive a $500 donation from the newspaper for purchase of equipment for the pediatrics ward.

Crash Kills 34

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)— The Joranl do Brasil news service said an air force DC6 exploded today at Manaus airport in the Amazon basin, killing 34 of 80 passengers aboard.

Confusion Over Burglary Reporting

San Anselmo City Council last night indicated a belief that reporting of burglary victims in the Independent-Journal singles out the easy mark for burglars, but was confused about how reporting should be changed.

Police Chief Raymond Buchignani was told to provide reporters with a list of burglaries identifying only the blocks in which the offense occurred without the names of victims. However, councilmen changed their minds when Buchignani told them reporters take information off police reports and that is the only way the department can accommodate the press.

SYMBOLIC PHOTOGRAPHY — Simply titled "Peter," this photograph by Jerry Uelsmann is featured with 39 other "post-visualization" pictures now in the College of Marin's Fine Arts Building gallery.

ART REVIEW

Photography Has Surrealist Feel

By KAY KSANDA

The photography of Jerry Uelsmann is almost a surrealist art form approaching the dream world of Salvador Dali.

In 1967 and 1969 Uelsmann received the Guggenheim Fellowship in Photography. His pictures have been reproduced in magazines and books from the most esoteric to "Life" and "Newsweek." Although, he teaches today at the University of Florida, his one man exhibitions still travel through most of the colleges in the United States.

Looking at his 40 photographs on display now in the gallery at College of Marin, a painter or sculptor might dismiss many of the Uelsmann effects as a montage technique. Incredibly, it is not. All the dramatic unreal reversals, all the startling images are created within his own medium.

He remains a purist within his darkroom. From long hours of printing and reprinting with complicated processes, sometimes using many negatives, he achieves one picture.

In many of his dream-sequences, it seems that he has used a sponge, ink, or even paint to achieve a particular effect. However, in his facility with his medium, he can achieve almost any effect staying within the confines of his paper, scissors, and enlarger.

Unlike Ansel Adams, who studies his subject and sets his shot up far in advance with just the correct exposure, definition, and design, Uelsmann is a "post-visualist" photographer. Although he knows equally well what is going to happen, his greatest creativity is within the darkroom after the shutter has snapped.

In his pictures he has huge trees growing out of the tips of a thicket. He has rocks forming out of the tops of trees. He has stones creating symbols and shapes. In one picture he has a bush with exposed roots floating upright in the air over a horizon of mountains. Another, has a huge eye in a toilet.

The show will continue through May 14 at the gallery in the Fine Arts Building on the college's Kentfield campus. Hours are week-days, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and in the evenings from 6:30 till 10 o'clock.

Corte Madera Housing Inquiry Result Due Study

A questionnaire to sample community opinion on low and moderate-income housing will be discussed tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. by the Corte Madera citizens' housing committee.

The proposed questionnaire consists of 16 questions aimed primarily at probing community acceptance of a low-income housing program.

"Families with low, fixed or moderate incomes will not be able to find housing in Corte Madera (in the future) and some resident families may have to sell their homes because of high property taxes and move to other areas," it says. "The effect this change will have on Corte Madera must be considered now."

"Do you oppose property tax relief to handicapped families?" one question asks. "Would you support construction of a low income (under $20,000) federal housing project in Corte Madera?" asks another.

Meeting at town hall, the committee also is expected to continue drafting a report on a housing element for the town's general plan. Drafting such an element is required by law.

Indictment In Hunt For Fortune

CHICAGO (UPI)—A federal grand jury looking for the source of an $800,000 "shoebox fortune" left by the late Illinois Secretary of State Paul Powell has indicted one of his former business associates on extortion charges.

The three indictments, returned Tuesday, charge Seymour Emalfarb, 46, with extorting $2,000 from the president of a trucking company "for the purported benefit of Paul Powell and on the purported behalf of Paul Powell."

Powell, a native of Vienna, Ill., was fond of calling himself a "poor boy."

At the time of the alleged extortion, Powell and Emalfarb were partners in Statewide Tire Sales Inc., a firm that sold tires to trucking firms.

Park Plaza Plan Will Be Aired

Questions telephoned in will be answered on the live broadcast tomorrow. The program, moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer, will be rebroadcast at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

New Pact For Creek Flood Work

By ERIK M. INGRAM

The Army Corps of Engineers announced yesterday it has awarded a new contract for completion of Phase 3 of the Corte Madera Creek flood control project.

Eugene Huggins, public affairs officers for the corps in San Francisco, said the Army has contracted with the Elmer J. Freethy Co. of El Cerrito for the remaining work.

The original contractor, J B and C Co. of Scottsdale, Ariz., pulled out of the project Friday, claiming financial difficulties. Work was already more than a week behind schedule at the time of the pullout.

STORMY ROUND

The Arizona firm's first year in 1970 was marked by a stormy relationship with the Army over operational procedures. A one-day shut down of the project — called by the contractor — highlighted the dispute.

J B and C completed the first stage of Phase 3 in November about two weeks behind schedule. During the 1970 construction season they constructed a concrete channel from the College Avenue Bridge upstream to a point 600 feet below the Laurel Avenue Bridge.
Bridge.

This year's stage, now in the hands of Freethy Co., will see the reinforced concrete channel moved up to a point 200 feet downstream from the Ross post office.

FINAL COSTS

Freethy will be paid about $490,000 for the second and final stage of Phase 3 due for completion in October, Huggins said.

Freethy Co. is no newcomer to the Corte Madera Creek scene. In 1968 it was awarded a $2,513,508 contract to build 4,000 feet of earth channel and 2,000 feet of concrete channel up to the College Avenue Bridge.

It is also the firm which channeled Tamalpais Creek in 1969 after a swirling controversy ended with the arrest of 38 conservationists who attempted to block the project.

President of the firm, Elmer J. Freethy, said yesterday his men are already at the site preparing for the new construction season.

"TIME IS SHORT"

"To be perfectly frank with you," he said, "time is short. We have to begin moving on this thing right away."

While the deadline for completion is October, Freethy said he plans to complete the project by the middle of September at the latest.

"You know what the weather is like up there," he said. "We can't go by calendar days . . . We have to go by seasons."

Pair Is Found Stabbed To Death

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The fatally stabbed bodies of two young persons were found Tuesday night in an apartment near the San Francisco Mint.

The victims were identified as Tom Cornell, 18, a gasoline station attendant, and Nadine Smeage, 17, who had lived nearby.

Both had been bound hand and foot and stabbed several times.

John Lippman, Cornell's roommate, found them when he returned from classes at the City College of San Francisco.

Inspectors Jack Cleary and Gene Fogarty said the victims were "definitely not hippie types."

$4 Million Jet Settlement

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A $4 million settlement was announced Monday in payment for a DC8 aircraft destroyed in a fire at the McDonnell Douglas Corp. plant in Long Beach in 1966.

Five insurance companies which agreed to the settlement had contended the company was not eligible to collect on the insurance because it would not give up the plane in return for payment.

The companies involved were Eagle Star, National Fire, North America, Commerce and Industry and Northwestern Mutual.

J. D. NICHOLS
Baritone in recital

Baritone Will Sing On Friday

Baritone J. D. Nichols will present a free song recital at 8 p.m. Friday in Caleruega Hall, Dominican College, San Rafael.

Nichols will be accompanied by pianist Judith Storss in a program that will include songs by Salvator Rosa, Benedetto Marcello, J. S. Bach, Hugo Wolf, Francis Poulenc, Maurice Ravel and Ralph Vaughan Williams.

A teacher of vocal music and musical theater at Redwood High School, Nichols earned a bachelor's degree in music from San Jose State College. He is a candidate at Dominican College for the degree of Master of Music in performance.

The baritone sang in and provided musical direction for the Marin Shakespeare Festival production of "Brigadoon" last summer and has participated as director or singer in a number of musicals in Marin presented by the Tamalpais High School District and the Festival Theater.

Nixon Schedules News Conference

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon plans to hold a nationally broadcast news conference Thursday at 9 p.m. EDT, before leaving Friday morning to spend the weekend in California.

The White House said Nixon would return to Washington Monday so he could hold his regular Tuesday morning meeting with GOP congressional leaders.

College To Present Premiere Of A Play

The premiere of a first play by a young playwright, "Psalms of Two Davids," will open May 7 at the College of Marin under a Rockefeller Foundation grant.

The play by Joel Schwartz will be presented at 8 p.m. May 7-9 and May 11-15 in the Fine Arts Building theater.

The play's story centers around the Old Testament character, David, with the first act portraying him as a young man and the second as King of Israel.

Although the story is historical, it is contemporary in its conflicts, according to Director James Dunn, who has been working with Schwartz for the past three weeks.

Scheduling of the play began more than a year ago when a scout from the Rockefeller Foundation selected College of Marin's drama department for a program in which new plays by young playwrights are presented.

Dunn selected Schwartz's play from among several scripts, and the college was given a $3,000 grant to produce it.

Schwartz, 26, a Harvard University graduate, also studied under fellowship at the University of Minnesota for play writing.

Dunn said that he will use techniques of the Japanese Kabuki theater in this final performance of the year for his department.

Bid For Markers On Highway 37

The California Division of Highways has announced acceptance of the low bid of $27,775 by Rayalco, Inc. of Danville, for placement of pavement markers to include a portion of Highway 37 in Marin County.

The plain and reflective markers will be placed between Atherton Avenue north of Novato and the Highway 37 and Highway 121 junction in Sonoma County. The total bid also includes sign placement in San Francisco County and elsewhere in Sonoma County.

British Industrial Rubbish Rate Soars

LONDON (UPI)—British industry is turning out more rubbish than at any time in its history, according to a government report.

The report, published Tuesday, said industry accounted for 20 million tons of waste material last year. Homes turned out 14 million tons, it said.

Montessori Plan To Be Explained

A public meeting to explain the Montessori method of early childhood education will be held at 8:30 p.m. today at the Kenilworth Recreation Building in Petaluma.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lord of Ross, administrators of two Montessori schools in Marin County, will talk to parents of children between the ages of two and six about the possibility of opening a Montessori school in Petaluma.

The Montessori teaching method is aimed at allowing a child to mature at his own rate, allows the learning experience to occur naturally and through the use of sensorial material and repetition, helps the child develop and refine his senses, according to the Lords.

Israeli General Indicted On Manslaughter

TEL AVIV (UPI) —One of the men who commanded Israel's victory in the 1967 Middle East War was indicted today on charges of manslaughter and driving too fast in connection with the death of a pedestrian last month.

Retired Maj. Gen. Ezer Weizmann was at the wheel of a car that struck and killed an 81-year-old doctor outside Tel Aviv March 21, police said. He is free on bail.

Weizmann masterminded the preemptive aerial strikes that destroyed most of Egypt's air force on the ground on the first day of the 1967 war.

No date was set for his trial.

Fenner Rite Set By Novato Jaycees

Tom G. Senior will be installed as internal vice president; Raymond Nielsen, external vice president; Capt. Joseph W. Corfield, secretary; and Jeff Cornish, treasurer.

$200,000 In Stanford Fires, Disruptions

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI)—Disruptions and fires on the Stanford University campus have caused $200,000 in damage over the past month, President Richard W. Lyman said Tuesday.

Lyman said that this does not include the $300,000 increase in campus security forces during the past two years of campus troubles.

The president of the 13,000 student university said Stanford has been "brought to the edge of the abyss" by violence, "especially the horror of someone's willingness to play Russian roulette with student lives in the dormitory."

He referred to an early morning fire in a freshman dormitory that caused more than $50,000 damage.

Capitalistic Look At Nation's Ills

By DAVID DIETZ

A vocally antiwar banker with a Prince Valiant haircut, an educator whose specialty is peacetime use of money and a soft-spoken physician who wondered whether America could adjust to a society free of war and degradation made up a varied peace alliance last night at a Sonoma State College forum.

The three, together with a Cotati businessman, appeared before a largely student audience in Fred Warren Memorial Auditorium to describe a professional man's view of a "peaceful alternative to war." The program was part of a two-week-long college Peace Festival that got under way yesterday.

Other festival activities yesterday included folk music, prayers, a lecture on population growth and a discussion of so-called political prisoners. On today's schedule is a program on nonviolence and an 8:30 p.m. folk concert in Ives Hall.

Last night's panelists, who expressed divergent outlooks, met scattered hostility and suspicion, largely from radical students who saw no remedy for the nation's ills through capitalism.

Many comments seemed aimed at the so-called rebel banker, Fortney Stark, president of Security National Bank of Walnut Creek. Stark, billed as the evening's main attraction, gained nationwide attention recently when he placed a huge peace symbol on his new East Bay bank building, declaring he wouldn't take it down until the war ended.

Stark dresses mod, wears his hair collar-length in back. Despite criticism which sprang from the crowd, he clung to an endorsement of free enterprise, although in one instance he foresaw changes in property laws to halt property speculation.

At one point, Stark challenged the student critics in the audience.

"You spend $150 to $200 a year on such things as cigarettes, Cokes, SCOPE . . . on real or imaginary things that bother you," he said in a fatherly tone. "Not many of you give to the Free Angela Fund or the Peace Coalition thing."

"How much have you given to Angela Davis? a student inquired as he attacked capitalism's shortcomings. "Students give what they can."

The educator, Sonoma State economics professor Richard M. Bell, feared that if present trends continue, a swelling social conscience could collide with an unyielding "power structure," and overthrow of the government might result.

"Indestructible force meets immovable object," Bell summed up.

The nation's first priority should be dismantling of weaponry, said Bell, who is conducting doctoral research on the economics of peace and war, and he explained he didn't believe that massive government spending, including that for the military, was good for the economy.

He espoused, instead, a controlled speed-up in the country's growth rate once peace were achieved, although noting the expansion would have to be controlled by restrictions on savings and profit.

A student challenged Bell's modified free enterprise plan as piling "encumbrances upon encumbrances." Stark said, however, he was "more afraid of a police-type state" under a system that eliminates private ownership.

Dr. Brad Lundborg of Santa Rosa, a member of the Sonoma State Advisory Board and of Sonoma environmental groups, held a cautious outlook, believing social and political change could be achieved only through a "nonconfrontation approach."

But he wondered whether the U.S., since it has "never lived in peace," a reference also to harming of the environment, has the "faintest idea how to go about living in such a society."

Lundborg's father, Louis, board chairman emeritus of the Bank of America, also was to have appeared as a panelist, but had an educational television engagement in San Francisco.

The fourth panelist, Stephen Jones, manager of the Exchange Bank in Cotati and president of that city's chamber of commerce, said one method to prevent war is with "massive effort to reduce the world's population."

Postal Rate Hearing Set

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Postal Rate Commission has set May 17 for the start of hearings on the U.S. Postal Service's request for $1.45 billion a year in higher rates.

The service, which already has printed billions of new stamps, contends the 1970 Postal Reorganization Act permits it to temporarily raise rates by one-third within 100 days of its request if the commission has not acted —and it plans to do so on May 16.

First-class mail would be raised from 6 to 8 cents, airmail from 10 to 11, and other classes by one-third. The service also intends to raise second class mail by 142 per cent over a five-year period.

RAP SESSION

Orr Reflects On His Youth, Problems Then

By SANDRA YOUNG
(Third in a series of 24 raps)

With memories of his own youth in his mind's eye, Fairfax Police Chief James R. Orr finds himself looking with some envy and some distaste across the chasm he finds between the generations.

Recently, the I-J "rapped" with Orr about youth today, its attitudes and problems.

He feels that today's young people have a lot to offer: "They're interested in the environment, government, world affairs. They're educated. They have far more to offer than I can, say I did at that age."

Orr, 42, can recall peddling papers at the age of 10 on the streets of San Francisco to earn money and feels he learned more from "struggling to get it" than today's youth who are growing up with "everything handed to them."

While Orr envies the increased availability of education today, he questions the direction in which he sees it leading some young people.

"Youth nowadays are far more educated, far more inquisitive and far more concerned with what's going on." he said. "But I can't say they take the intelligence they have and direct it the right way. A lot of them aren't directing it anywhere."

The police chief feels today's youth show a greater consciousness of and participation in city government.

"In my day, I didn't even know there was such a thing as a board of supervisors. I didn't even know the name of the mayor of the city," declared the police chief.

A question about the so-called new morality caused Orr to scratch his head.

"They're doing things today in the open that I plotted to do in secret and then worried about for two weeks afterward," he said, laughing.

"I guess they're still doing the same things — they're just uninhibited about it. They aren't stuck with the guilt hangups we were," Orr said.

Orr, who served as a Marine during World War II and has two daughters, is sympathetic to the way young people feel about the Vietnam War, and especially to the feelings of young men facing the draft.

"Kids today have plenty of gripes against the Establishment. They're growing up in a world that's moving too fast for all of us," Orr commented. "Young fellows nowadays don't know if they'll be able to finish their education or not."

But Orr — a police chief for 10 years, who says he became a policeman as a challenge "to see if I had the right material" — has little sympathy for revolutionaries or "long-haired hippies that call me 'pig.'"

"I don't see any need for long hair. I'm not talking about mod length, it's the shoulder length hair that gets me. It's not an expression of individuality anymore — there are too many of them," Orr remarked.

Asked if he would wear his hair long if he were a youth today, Orr answered, "No, I wouldn't. But then, I didn't wear my hair in a crew cut when it was popular either."

Much of the discontent evident in today's youths is caused by the problems they see around them, Orr said. He thinks, however, that there are other ways to effect changes than through violent means.

"Blowing up a chemical plant doesn't stop the war in Vietnam," the police chief said. "Tearing down educational buildings, destroying millions of dollars of property just to say, 'We don't like it and if you don't change it, we'll level it,' will never work."

Orr said the recent election in Berkeley is evidence of a new kind of revolution "through the vote."

The verbal attack some young people make upon policeman, calling them "pig" or shouting "oink, oink" as the patrol car rolls down the street, is "shameful" according to Orr.

"Why, I never would have dreamed of saying something like that to a policeman in San Francisco when I was a kid," he said. "They know they can get away with it now, that's why they do it. If they had been spanked more when they were kids, maybe they would have learned some respect."

U.S. Troop Cut Running Ahead Of Timetable

SAIGON (UPI)—U. S. troop strength in South Vietnam dropped by 6,200 men last week, spokesmen said today, officially beating the sixth phase of President Nixon's troop withdrawal program by at least nine days.

Spokesmen said there were 281,400 men in South Vietnam as of April 22. Phase VI of the troop withdrawal program was aimed at having a strength of 284,000 men by May 1.

The rapid reduction launched Phase VII early, officials said. That phase is aimed at reducing the manpower in South Vietnam by another 100,000 by Dec. 1, 1971.

80 Marin Pupils Exhibiting Art

Eighty Marin County students are among the 2,000 students from throughout the state displaying their works through May 9 at the Oakland Museum's Great Hall.

The students are participating in "Upstart," a display of original works by art students from kindergarten to college.

Their work represents expressions about such issues as deteriorating environment, racism and politics as well as whimsical caricatures of their own life styles.

Doctor Develops Home Treatment that
RINSES AWAY BLACKHEADS
Help Dry Up ACNE-PIMPLES...

QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE 15 MINUTE HOME TREATMENT
MUST SHOW IMMEDIATE IMPROVEMENT OR YOUR MONEY BACK

A leading New York Doctor, working with a cosmetic laboratory, has developed a simple home treatment that rinses away blackheads, helps dry up acne pimples, and shrinks enlarged pores. The name of this medicated product is QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE. Apply this delightfully Mint-Scented Cream and within 2 or 3 minutes an absorbing agent called Argilla, dries and turns this cream into a plastic-like masque. You will now feel as though hundreds of "tiny fingers" are kneading the skin, loosening pore-caked dirt, blackheads, and other foreign impurities. As it firms and hardens, its suction action draws out waste matter from the pores. . . . In 15 minutes you simply rinse the masque away with lukewarm water which dissolves it immediately. When you wipe your face, you can see that blackheads and other pore "filler" actually comes off on your wash cloth. And your skin feels clean . . . really clean . . . refreshed, smooth like velvet. Women 35 and over will enjoy the skin tightening experience as the masque relaxes tired facial muscles and eases tension lines on face and throat. If you suffer the agony of blackheads, acne-pimples, and enlarged pores, give yourself this home treatment and see the breath-taking results. Ask for it by name QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE.

Bathe Away Aches and Pains
RELAX TIRED MUSCLES
Reduce Tension
Sleep soundly tonight!

A leading New York doctor has discovered a way to turn an ordinary tub of hot water into a relaxing, soothing, satisfying Mineral Bath. BATHERAPY is a unique combination of minerals similar to the beneficial mineral waters found in famous Spas throughout the world. Imagine what this means to those who suffer the disturbing aches and pains that are so often associated with over-exertion and fatigue. Many who have tried this new discovery give glowing reports of how they now "soak away" many of the pains of sore muscles and stiffness right in their own bathtubs—just as though they were bathing at one of the world's famous Mineral Springs. In fact, millions of people who have been traveling to distant Health Spas for pain relief—on the advice of their Physicians—may soon be saved this bother and expense. Thanks to this new triumph in medical chemistry, they may find that they can enjoy the often comforting benefits of true mineral bathing in the snug convenience of their own homes.

If you are one of the millions who suffer the misery of minor aches and pains, body tensions and fatigue, uneasy sleep . . . BATHERAPY, a doctor's prescription, is the quick easy way to relief. When such distress occurs and your whole body cries out for relief, wouldn't it be wonderful if you could suddenly find yourself at one of the world's great Health Spas . . . where so many wealthy people bathe away their aches and pains in the soaking warmth of Mineral Baths?

As this is being written, BATHERAPY is being made available to hospitals everywhere—and to the public through this announcement. Already thousands are enjoying its benefits. Yet BATHERAPY does not help everyone. Unfortunately, there are some people who are constitutionally unable to respond even to Nature's own Mineral Baths. If you, however, are among the millions who suffer from minor aches and pains—or from the tensions and fatigue of modern living—ask your doctor about BATHERAPY. If he thinks it might help you, by all means try it. The chances are you'll find its soothing, cushioning, pain-softening action will give you surprising relief from minor discomforts and a feeling of well-being that may last for quite some time.

Even if you are fortunately free of any bodily discomforts, you'll find a bath with BATHERAPY is a delightful and rewarding experience. A wonderful sensation of physical freedom envelopes you. Tensions unwind, nerves are soothed, and you relax so blissfully, you sleep as though you hadn't a care in the world.

ALMANAC

Today is Wednesday, April 28, the 118th day of 1971.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Taurus.

President James Monroe was born April 28, 1758.

On this day in history:

In 1788 Maryland was admitted to the Union as the seventh state.

In 1945 Fascist leader Benito Mussolini was executed by Italian patriots.

In 1952 the war with Japan was officially ended with the signing of a treaty by the United States and 47 other nations.

In 1969 French President Charles de Gaulle resigned after being defeated in a referendum.

A thought for today: President George Washington said, "To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace."

Berkeley Nod To Absentee Count

BERKELEY (UPI) —City councilmen voted Monday not to appeal a Superior Court order that they count 100 absentee ballots in the April 6 municipal election.

The decision came despite the advice of City Attorney Robert Anderson who held it "would be desirable to have a higher court rule."

Judge Robert Kroninger of Alameda County Superior Court ordered the counting of all absentee ballots postmarked before 5 p.m. April 5 and delivered before 1:30 p.m. election day.

South Is Very Foolish In Taking Out Safety Insurance

If you are a careful householder, you keep your pills in labeled bottles to avoid taking ascorbic acid when what you want is aspirin. You probably keep sugar and salt in separate containers. Things that look alike are not always exactly the same. I wouldn't be telling you this if I didn't have a bridge hand to prove it.

Opening lead — ♡ Q

HEART TRICKS

The defenders swiftly rattled off the first three tricks in hearts. After East had won the third trick he returned a diamond to dummy's weakness.

South won with the ace of diamonds and swiftly led out the ace of spades as a "safety" play. South had seen hands of this kind in bridge books and newspaper columns, and he played the ace of spades first in the hope of capturing a singleton queen.

When nothing startling happened on the first round of spades, South led a club to dummy's king in order to return the jack of spades for a finesse. East covered with the queen, forcing out the king. West's discard revealed the bad trump break: East was sure to take the setting trick with the seven or eight of trumps.

WRONG SINGLETON

South's "safety" play of leading the ace of trumps first would have worked if West had the singleton queen, but it was sure to lose a trump trick if West had any other singleton. It was four times as likely that West had a low singleton since he could hold the 8, the 7, the 5 or the 4. It was foolish of South to take out insurance against one possibility, while ignoring four other equally likely cases.

South was, of course, deceived by appearances. His play would have been quite all right if his own spades had been headed by A-K-J, A-K-10 or even A-K-9.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠-5
♥-Q J 10
♦-J 9 8 4 3
♣-J 9 4 3.

What do you say?

Answer: Pass.

Avoid responding when you have only five points. You would raise if partner had bid any other suit, since then your singleton spadw would be an asset. When your partner has bid spades, however, a singleton in his suit is a liability rather than an asset.

Angered Reagan Denounces Probe

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Gov. Ronald Reagan says a three-judge commission appointed by the Nixon administration should quit unless it conducts field investigations of the embattled California Rural Legal Assistance.

"They either misunderstood or they were misinformed in Washington as to what their purpose was," the governor angrily told a news conference Tuesday.

The three judges refused to comment, but CRLA released the transcript of a telegram from the federal official who named the panel which indicated Reagan was wrong. A CRLA spokesman said the governor knew it.

Reagan said the commission's hearings in San Francisco are being conducted in an "adversary" manner and therefore the state won't actively participate. But he pledged "our full cooperation in any study they want to make of the CRLA."

He said the judges were appointed to "study the entire situation, study CRLA, study any other ideas, and come up with a recommendation as to how to provide better rural legal assistance."

The commission was named by Federal OEO Director Frank Carlucci shortly after he upheld Reagan's veto of a $1.8 million CRLA grant for 1971 and at the same time issued an abbreviated six-month grant.

"I'm afraid they came here with the idea that they could sit at a bench while everyone else did the work and brought a case before them and then they would sit back and make a judgment," Reagan said.

"This is not what they were supposed to do," he insisted. "They were to go into the field and investigate CRLA. And if they are unwilling to do that they ought to resign."

In San Francisco, CRLA released a transcript of an April 1 telegram from Carlucci to commission chairman Robert Williamson which contradicted the governor's explanation on the group's instructions.

"The commission has determined that the only feasible method by which it is prepared to proceed with its task is by receiving testimony on the record at hearings," Carlucci wired. "In my March 29 letter to you I said it is understood that the commission shall adopt such procedures as it deems appropriate to accomplish this task.

"Accordingly, this is to advise you that the procedure the commission has chosen is acceptable and I request the commission to proceed with its task."

Cruz Reynoso, executive director of CRLA, told newsmen in San Francisco that Reagan "is absolutely wrong and I believe he knows he is wrong." He said the governor "understood full well what the hearings were going to be" because state OEO director Lewis K. Uhler attended a session at which the Carlucci telegram was read.

Reagan accused the CRLA attorneys of behaving "like a bunch of ideological ambulance chasers doing their own thing at the expense of the rural poor who actually needed help."

The commission includes Williamson, retired chief justice of the Maine Supreme Court; George R. Currie, retired Supreme Court chief justice of Wisconsin, and Robert Lee, a Colorado Supreme Court justice.

At the time of the veto, Reagan accused the CRLA of engaging in politics, handling criminal cases contrary to federal rules and of denying civil legal aid to the rural needy.

The CRLA denied the charges and accused the administration of waging a vendetta against its success rate of 86 per cent. The federally financed agency has been a frequent and successful courtroom challenger of Reagan's cutbacks in welfare and Medi-Cal.

At the hearing Tuesday, Earl Johnson Jr., former director of legai services for the OEO, testified that Reagan had threatened to veto CRLA funding in 1967 unless certain conditions were met.

Johnson said he mentioned the threat to Sargent Shriver, then head of the war on poverty, who replied: "If I don't overrule a veto like that, we may as well turn the country over to the John Birch Society."

The commission ruled the testimony irrelevant and said it would not be considered.

The most intense endorsement of the CRLA came from Mario Obledo, general counsel of the Mexican-American Legal Defense Fund, who called the legal group's work "magnificent."

"CRLA for the first time has established in the Chicanos a sense of faith in the legal system," Obledo said.

"Before its existence, frustration builds up and you have no trust in the administration of justice," he said. "CRLA taught Mexican-Americans they could trust lawyers, could take their problems to the courts instead of the streets. We say CRLA stands for 'Chicano Rural Legal Assitance.'"

The commission continued its administration-boycotted hearing today.

Hatfield: Return Republic To People

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., says the Constitution should be amended so that House members would be limited to six consecutive two-year terms, and senators to two consecutive six-year terms at any given time.

Hatfield plans to propose a constitutional amendment to that effect Thursday. Under his proposal, any lawmaker who has served the full 12 years would be eligible to try for re-election after a two-year furlough.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Bicycle Injuries Can Be Serious; Some Examples Cited

A bike provided some of my fondest childhood memories. It was fun to ride, a good way to exercise and definitely beat walking to school or to the park. In those days, there was less traffic, and we were exposed to fewer hazards. Today city youngsters are forbidden to ride bikes on many streets. Even older boys and girls must know and follow the rules of the road to survive a trip of any distance. Some falls are inevitable and it is surprising that injuries are not more common. Minor cuts and lacerations should be washed thoroughly with soap and water and covered with a clean dressing. Be sure to remove all pieces of dirt, gravel, and cinders.

MANY ACCIDENTS occur when the cyclist tries to show off or is not paying attention to the job at hand. I remember crashing into a parked car when turning my head to wave at a girl. Mark, one of my grandsons, did the same and he ended up with a serious fracture of his right elbow.

NOW AND THEN a child puts his foot through the moving wheel and the spokes produce an extensive laceration. The bike usually tips over and the rider has a nasty fall.

AN ENGLISH surgeon recently reported several cases of handlebar injuries. (Four involved boys.) While riding, the child turned suddenly to avoid a hazard, lost balance and fell forward on to the handlebars. In each case, the handlebar grip went into the groin and caused severe tears or bruises.

ONE 7-YEAR-OLD injured the major blood vessels in his right groin. Following an operation to stop a serious hemorrhage the lad made a satisfactory recovery. However, the leg was still swollen when he was released from the hospital. All of these accidents involved small-wheel type cycles with handlebars that turned completely around (360 degrees). These proved to be a hazard when the rider turned too short.

SAWING SOUNDS

J. G. writes: Will you please explain why my heartbeat sounds like wood being sawed? It is so loud that I can hear it when lying down or sitting up. Is this serious?

REPLY

I don't know, because the heart never snores when resting. Unless, of course, these strange sounds represent a murmur. This question could be answered in a moment by your physician after he listened to the ticker with his stethoscope.

DRIVING AND HEART

A reader writes: Does driving a car put an added strain on the heart?

REPLY

Only in those who get excited in traffic or angry with pokey drivers or pests who cut in and out. Anyone who develops heart pain or severe palpitation when driving should never get behind the wheel.

LEG PAIN

L. writes: My left leg aches constantly and seems to turn in. Can you make any suggestions? P.S. I am 78.

REPLY

You need a firsthand medical opinion. Possible causes include arthritis, osteoporosis, poor circulation, flat feet or a nerve or brain disorder.

HARELIP IN CHILD

Mrs. G. writes: Is harelip in a child caused by malnutrition in the mother during pregnancy?

REPLY

The cause of this defect is not known and no one has been able to pin it on the mother's diet.

Controls On Ocean Dumping Sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Nixon administration, contending it would not be feasible to ban all ocean dumping at once today asked Congress instead simply to authorize strict controls on what may be thrown away at sea.

William D. Ruckelshaus, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), told a Senate subcommittee the administration wants to see "the creation of the farthest reaching and strongest authority that law and technology will allow" to control the dumping of wastes in the nation's coastal waters.

But Ruckelshaus said the EPA does not favor several bills now pending before the Senate Oceans and Atmosphere subcommittee to prohibit all ocean dumping.

"It would not be feasible to ban all ocean dumping at once," Ruckelshaus said in testimony prepared for the subcommittee. "In some instances, waste disposal methods which are less damaging to the environment than ocean dumping are not immediately available . . .

"This approach has a certain appeal when you look at it out of its full context. But the problem of ocean dumping must be examined in the broad context of the staggering problems of waste disposal experienced by many communities."

He said many communities that now dump at sea simply could not convert to land disposal immediately. And, he said, not all materials dumped into coastal waters are harmful.

"Some . . . may actually be beneficial, for example the sinking of car bodies or other similar materials to serve as shelters for fish," Ruckelshaus said.

He urged enactment of the Nixon administration's anti-dumping bill, which would give him as EPA administrator sweeping powers to decide what could be dumped where.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

The 'Attractive' Nuisance Studied

The big tree in Mrs. Oakley's yard had long been a child's delight. Nearly every boy in the neighborhood had climbed it one time or another. But parts of the tree were dying, and some branches were brittle. When Tommy, age 8, climbed the tree, a branch cracked, and he fell 30 feet to the ground. Tommy was permanently injured.

Tommy's parents sued Mrs. Oakley, contending that she should have put up a fence or otherwise warned Tommy of the danger. They claimed that she was keeping an "attractive" nuisance.

The court held that Mrs. Oakley was not liable. It said that the tree was a natural part of the land, not an artificial structure, and that youngsters should know the dangers of high places. Further, the court said that an 8-year-old should know that branches might break.

An "attractive" nuisance may result in a property owner being held liable to trespassing children, but certain tests must be met:

The place must be one where children are likely to trespass, resulting in an implied invitation. A property owner is under no obligation to take precautions, however, if he does not have reason to believe that children will trespass.

The condition must involve a recognizable risk of harm, such as a special danger which children cannot comprehend. The usual dangers, such as fire, water, and height, are understood by most children.

The child must not discover the dangerous condition, or must be unable to appreciate the risk. This depends upon the maturity of the child. A child of ten, for example, should know the dangers of jumping over a pile of burning leaves, where a four-year-old may not. Each case turns on the age of the child, as well as on the special nature of the risk.

In applying these tests, the courts will balance the utility of maintaining the condition against the risk to children. But the more dangerous the condition of the property, the greater are the property owner's responsibilities. Note: California lawyers offer this column so you know about our laws.

THE PLEASURE OF HIS COMPANY

Chimo, a 7-month-old cougar makes noises, which his master, David Hancock (background) of British Columbia, insists are "snarls of pleasure." Hancock, visiting the Independent-Journal yesterday to promote an ecology film at the College of Marin, reassured the reporter: "When he snarls, he's happy. It's like when a cat purrs." Moments later, the 50-pound beast, with one swift slash of a furry paw, seized the reporter's notebook. Fortunately, however, he missed the page that reports: the ecology film on wildlife will be shown in the college's Olney Hall Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. as part of ecology week activities. Long-Range Strategy By Guerrillas

Toronto Telegram News Service

SINGAPORE — Politics in Malaysia which now look to be run so firmly on communal lines, may lose their hard edge because of Communist guerrilla long-range strategy.

The change is noticeable because Malays, all of whom are Moslems, are worried about Malayan Chinese Communist influence upon the separatist rebellion being waged in far southern Thailand by Moslems of Malay racial origin.

These Malays in four southern provinces want to break away from domination by far-distant Bangkok (850 miles) and join racially and religiously-akin Malaysia, or else set up their own independent Moslem "Republic of Patani."

"Patani" was the name of the ancient Malay sultanate which covered the area of the present Thai provinces of Songkhla, Patani, Narathiwat and Yala.

Most Malaysian Malays are, of course, thoroughly in sympathy with the Patani armed struggle. They think the British should have taken the provinces away from the Thais when they had their chance — at the end of World War II.

The Thais, as allies of the Japanese, had, after all, annexed four other Malay states during the war, with Japanese encouragement.

No Malay state is more thoroughly (and some say actively) sympathetic towards the Patani rebels than the northeastern state of Kelantan, the only one in Malaysia governed by the Pan-Malay Islamic Party.

The PMIP would like to see all government in west Malaysia controlled by Malays, with the immigrant races, Chinese and Indians, aware of their "guest status".

But a PMIP senator from Kelantan got up in Federal Parliament recently to break the pattern.

Sen. Amaluddin Bin Darus said he feared that "we shall be forced to confront not only Communists from other races, but also Communists of the Malay race."

"It's very dangerous," he added during a speech of almost two hours on these and other defense and security considerations.

The senator said that he did not want to comment on the actions of the rebels, but "we will be in a state of danger whenever the rebels who want to set up a Republic of Patani succeed in being armed by the Communists."

He claimed that the separatists had not received help from anyone yet, but he believed that they would take aid from anywhere, including the (Malayan Chese) Communists who also operate on the border, if the circumstances forced them to.

And, echoing the official attitude of the Kelantan State Government, Senator Amaluddin said that Malaysia could not aid the Malay struggle in the north, as it had to protect good relations with Thailand.

The appearance of more Malays among the Communist Guerrillas, which is happening at the other (western) end of the border in Perak and Kedah states, could, quite seriously, have some beneficial side-effects for Malaysian nation-building.

The over-simplified view sometimes taken — as if the conflict were wholly one between a predominantly Malay army and a predominantly Chinese guerrilla force which is also directed to political extremism —would have to be modified.

It is not hard to see how this could have some effect on legitimate politics inside Malaysia, now so organized along communal lines that there seems no end to the pattern.

The only possible change would be through parties which wanted to improve the lot of all Malaysians, advocating different methods approved by the law, but not, in effect, racial ones as they now are.

Malaysian officials told me on a recent visit to the western end of the border that they are worried by the numbers of Malays joining Communist guerrillas there who have been hitherto of almost overwhelmingly Chinese descent.

It is not hard to see how the guerrillas manage this rapprochement with Islam on two scores:

The Kuala Lumpur government, despite its strong Malay composition, can be represented as stillsympathetic to the former colonial British. The five-power defense arrangements with Britain, Singapore, Australia, and New Zealand, are used in this argument.

GM Vs. Nader: Microfilm Saga

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. paid $20,000 to regain 19 boxes of microfilmed complaint letters about the Corvair and other Chevrolet products to keep them from falling into Ralph Nader's hands, a salvage dealer said today.

The microfilmed letters from the years 1964 and 1965 had vanished from the Chevrolet Customer Relations Department sometime after 1965 and turned up in a warehouse in downtown Detroit that was purchased by two suburban Wyandotte men new to the salvage business.

The years involved were the height of Nader's campaign against safety defects in the Corvair, which has since gone out of production.

Scrap dealers Kenneth A. Simpson, 31, and Floyd E. Avery, 44, discovered the cardboard boxes marked "GM," among surplus goods they purchased from a Detroit electronic concern in March. They moved the salvage, which cost them $7,500, to their warehouse in Wyandotte, not knowing of the value of the film.

"We just had them sitting on the floor in the warehouse and a customer came in and bought some of the films," Simpson said. "Then he called back and said he wanted to buy them all. We got suspicious because we couldn't figure out why he wanted all of it." Simpson said he did not get the man's name and has not heard from him since.

Simpson said a woman then identifying herself as an associate of Nader called offering to pay for shipping the boxes to Washington.

Avery and Simpson then contacted GM. "We called one day and they sent a man the next day and he made a deal right then, within 45 minutes, and came down in the evening with a cashiers check and a truck," Simpson said. "They were anxious to get them back."

W.E. Ludwick, assistant manager of Chevrolet customer relations, identified the microfilmed letters "as obsolete correspondence which at one time had been processed for destruction in the normal course of events."

Ludwick paid the asking price of 20 cents per microfilm card, or $20,000, Simpson said. "We bargained and he agreed to that figure."

John Cutter, Chevrolet public relations director, said what is puzzling is how the letters, marked for destruction, got into the Detroit warehouse.

He said a sampling of the contents showed they were a "cross section of the type of owner correspondence which is normal in this business." He said there was not an unusual amount of letters dealing with the Corvair.

Avery said Ludwick "told us that if 'Nader ever got these we'd be hurting.' He was really in a panic."

Cutter said he wouldn't describe Chevrolet as in a "panic," but "you could say we were desirous of getting them back to determine what was in them."

Behr To Push Gas Tax For Bike Lanes

SACRAMENTO — Use of gas taxes for bicycle lanes alongside highways, backed for the first time by the legislation by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael.

His measure would end the long stalemate between the state and Marin over putting a bicycle lane on Richardson Bay Bridge as part of its current widening project.

State law now prohibits this use of gas taxes unless local government foots the entire cost. Past attempts to eliminate the prohibition always foundered on the claim by highway forces that such a use would violate the constitutional restriction of gas taxes for highway purposes.

The claim, however, has been disputed for the first time by Legislative Counsel George H. Murphy. In an opinion to Behr, the counsel concluded that such use "would probably be upheld by the courts."

Murphy reasoned that using gas taxes for bicycle lanes could be justified "since bicycle traffic would then be separated from the motor vehicle traffic on the highway and thereby increase the traffic capacity and safety of the highway."

He said that this also was the justification for using gas taxes for pedestrian facilities and railroad grade crossings.

Welfare Pay Delay Seen

Welfare checks may be delayed a few days in delivery each month, starting in May, because of a change in federal policy, Marin County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell said yesterday.

Mitchell said that the federal government has in the past sent welfare money to the county a few days before the end of each month so that the county could mail checks on the last day of the month.

He said that under a new policy the federal money will not arrive until the first of the month so that checks will no longer be received by Marin's 4,500 welfare recipients on the first day of each month.

Federal funds provide half the county's welfare bill.

CO Is Killed In Vietnam

NEW YORK (UPI)—A young conscientious objector serving two years of alternate service with a church missionary organization in Vietnam reportedly was slain last Sunday when Communist troops overran the village where he was working.

A spokesman for the Vietnam Christian Service (VCS) a branch of the World Church Service, said Tuesday that Ted A. Studebaker, 25, of Union, Ohio was killed when North Vietnamese troops took the village of Di Linh, a Central Highlands hamlet about 140 miles northwest of Saigon.

Three other VCS members, including Studebaker's bride escaped the assault unharmed. Studebaker and his wife, Ven Pak Lee of Hong Kong, had been married April 17.

Former Premier Asks Smoking Ban

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Sweden's former premier Tage Erlander, now a member of Parliament, has proposed a total ban on smoking in the new Parliament building.

"The pollution of our environment is serious enough," he said. "At least, we should avoid polluting the place in which we work." Erlander stopped smoking 33 years ago. He admits he had a relapse in 1942 but definitely put away cigarettes after a bad cold.

Wilderness For Farallon Isles Asked

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Richard M. Nixon today asked Congress to designate the Farallon Islands a national wilderness area. The 141-acre preserve was included in a list suggesting 1.8 million acres to be added to the wilderness areas in nine states.

Conservationists recently, had expressed alarm that the group's seven islands would be left open to vandals when the Coast Guard automates its light and removes its small crew. Attempts had been made to have the area declared a state wildlife refuge or to find funds to maintain biologists on the island to protect thousands of nesting waterfowl.

Another California area proposed by Nixon for wilderness status was 721,970 acres in Kings Canyon and Sequoia national parks. Joseph C. Rumberg, regional director for the National Park Service, said today in San Francisco he did not know what effect the proposal would have on the Walt Disney Enterprise plans for a Sierra playground in the area.

Britannia II Out In Pacific

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Rowers John Fairfax and Sylvia Cook were finally headed in the right direction today as they pulled their oars toward Australia 8,000 miles away.

The Coast Guard reported the British adventurers, who shoved off from San Francisco Bay on Monday, were "way out in the Pacific."

Fairfax, 33, who rowed solo across the Atlantic in 1969, and Miss Cook, 32, a London art dealer, were pushed north by winds and currents as they rowed out of the Golden Gate. They got on the right course after reaching Point Reyes, 25 miles northwest of here.

Hiring Consultant For Project Backed

The Southern Marin Sanitary District Advisory Committee last night recommended hiring consultant Dexter Alghren of Sunnyvale as project director for a $190,000 study of Southern Marin sewage disposal proposals.

The hiring request was to be before the Marin Municipal Water District board of directors today, according to William R. Seeger, water district general manager.

Seeger reported to the advisory committee that nearly all the necessary joint powers agreements have been completed for the formation of Improvement District A, created by the water district to study the area's sewage problems.

Seeger said the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board will hold hearings in May on its San Francisco basin plan, which calls for export of all sewage from the District A area. He told the advisory committee of alternatives to the primary proposal — discharge via Tennessee Cove — that included possible discharge areas between Sausalito and Raccoon Strait, offshore of Tiburon, or the Point San Quentin area.

The advisory committee, which represents Mill Valley, Tamalpais Community Services District and the Alto, Almonte, Homestead Valley, Richardson Bay and Sausalito sanitary districts, met a day earlier than its regular meeting date yesterday without notification of the press. Seeger said a staff error in the water district offices was to blame for the lack of notice.

'Massacre' In Vietnam Report Told

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A witness at an informal House group hearing on possible U.S. war crimes claimed today that as an infantryman in Vietnam he saw members of his squad kill 30 Vietnamese women and children at a village in Quang Ngai province in April, 1969.

Danny Spencer Notley of St. Paul, Minn., told the informal House group conducting the hearings he could identify four or five men responsible for "shooting women and kids."

Notley, now a University of Minnesota journalism student, said the shootings took place with the knowledge of a lieutenant colonel but that no punitive action was taken.

He said the men were members of the 1st Squad, Reconnaisance Platoon, E Company, 1st Battalion, 21st Infantry Brigade, Americal Division.

In what Notley said was his first public disclosure of the incident, he said the squad indiscriminately opened fire on the villagers.

Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., called the shooting a "massacre" and said Notley had "my highest respect" for coming forward with the story.

Notley, 23, said he told his wife of the incident only Tuesday night. "This is the first time I've been able to talk about it."

The squad of about 10 men entered the village without encountering hostile fire and began "shooting women and kids —they didn't say anything. They were just shooting."

Notley said: "I was in a state of shock, they killed these 10 people ... It was too traumatic. I couldn't believe it, I was in a state of shock."

Search Launched For Missing Jail Trusty

Marin County sheriff's deputies were searching today for a county jail trusty who walked away from the sheriff's substation at Marin City.

Deputies said Frank Garcia, 22, of Daly City, was washing patrol cars outside the substation when he disappeared Saturday morning.

He has not been seen since.

Garcia was in custody pending a superior court trial on charges of transporting and driving under the influence of methamphetamine.

He was arrested Feb. 19, 1970, on Highway 101 for erratic driving. His car reportedly contained four large plastic bottles of the drug in the next-to-last stage of refinement.

One man arrested with him faces similar charges in Superior Court and a third man arrested was charged only with a misdemeanor in municipal court.

Garcia also faces drug-related charges in San Francisco.

Cal-Vet Bill Makes Gain

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Bills allowing wives of Vietnam prisoners of war to obtain CalVet loans and allowing loans for mobile homes were approved today by the Assembly Government Administration Committee.

The measures by Assemblyman Ernest N. Mobley, RSanger, were sent to the Ways and Means Committee.

The first bill provides that the wife of a man who entered the service while in California and who lived here for six months immediately before and who is a prisoner of war or designated missing in action can take out a loan.

The second allows loans of up to $12,500 for buying mobile homes if the veteran owns the property on which the home is situated.

But the committee rejected a bill by Assemblyman Jim Keysor, D-Granada Hills, to allow the Department of Veterans Affairs to defer CalVet loan payments on homes damaged by earthquakes. The department said it already had such authority.

Search For Cabin Cruiser Going

The Coast Guard was searching San Francisco Bay today for a 30-foot cabin cruiser last seen Sunday at the Corinthian Yacht Club in Tiburon.

Coast Guard officers said the boat, described as white with blue trim, was reported overdue last night and a helicopter, and two patrol boats checked harbors throughout the night without finding the boat.

Aboard were Wayland A. Borst, about 70, of Burlingame, and Beverly Greenfield, whose age and address were not known.

Officers said that the boat was believed headed for Coyote Point Marina on the Peninsula. The name of the vessel was not known by the Coast Guard.

Engaged in the search today were a helicopter, air cushion vehicle and two patrol boats.

Funds To Save School Lunches

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation guaranteeing California will not lose $20 million in federal school lunch funds was approved today by the Senate Education Committee.

The measure by Sen. George R. Moscone, D-San Francisco, was sent to the Finance Committee despite Republican objections its provisions were unclear as to how many youngsters would qualify for the program.

Moscone said the measure provides $1.2 million in state funds to match the federal money, but also deletes a requirement that a child be eligible for Aid to Families with Dependent Children in order to qualify for a free or reduced-price lunch.

Death Ruled As Auto Fatality

The death of a Marin City man Monday was accidental, the Marin County Coroner's office reported today.

Will Wilson, 74, died when his car careened down an embankment and into a tree in his front yard at 100 Waldo Court.

It was believed at first that he may have suffered a heart attack, but Coroner's Investigator Keither Craig said today that an autopsy had determined Wilson died of injuries suffered in the accident.

He was the sixth person to die in an automobile accident this year compared to 14 such fatalities in the same period last year.

FRUSTRATION OF TIMES

Two Seattle men, Jim Youngren and Bob McDonald, spent $160 to erect this billboard, expressing the frustrations of many who are leaving the Seattle area to find work elsewhere. The loss of the SST and cutbacks in the space program have brought financial hardship to the area.

Sen. Jackson Rises To FBI's Defense

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)—Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said Tuesday "the FBI never makes a move without legal sanction" but called for a congressional watchdog committee to monitor its activities.

Jackson was here for a series of speaking engagements as part of his self-proclaimed status as "an official non-candidate" for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Jackson gave his appraisal of the current controversy over Federal Bureau of Investigation activities during a news conference on mass demonstrations and efforts to protect national security.

"The best way to deal with internal security is to rely on the professionalism of the FBI," Jackson said. "I think the FBI has a responsibility to keep track of the extremists in our society. My definition of an extremist is one who would take the law into his own hands —the Ku Klux Klan, the Minutemen, the Weathermen and others of the fringe left groups."

He suggested, however, that in view of recent criticism of the FBI a joint House-Senate committee be formed to hear charges about the organization.

He said the committee could function permanently as a congressional monitor of FBI activities much as a joint congressional committee serves as watchdog on the Central Intelligence Agency. Jackson serves on that committee.

Jackson said, "The FBI never makes a move without legal sanctions" but conceded that the agency has made some mistakes. He said these were in the area of "public statements more than in substance."

He said retention of J. Edgar Hoover as head of the FBI was a decision to be made entirely by the President based on performance, not age.

Jackson said he is concerned about an increasing tendency of Americans to "take to the streets" to voice their grievances.

He said such actions "make for political instability which erode our free institutions and could lead toward totalitarianism." He added, "Let us never become a banana republic."

New Aide For Crime Fighting

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Attorney General John N. Mitchell today appointed Dean Pohlenz, former administrative assistant to Sen. Roman L. Hruska R-Neb., to a newly created position at the Law Enforcement Assistance Association (LEAA).

Pohlenz, 50, is the second Hruska aide to be put on the crime fighting agency created by the 1968 Safe Streets Act to channel federal aid to state and local law enforcement agenes.

Mitchell named Pohlenz to be assistant administrator, in charge of LEAA's office of Public Information, Office of Intergovernmental Liaison, and Office of Special Projects.

More Support For Mills' Nomination

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Reps. John C. Watts, D-Ky., and Al Ullman, D-Ore., have added their support to the handful of congressmen backing Rep. Wilbur D. Mills for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972.

Mills, 61, has said he is not a candidate and would withdraw his name from the New Hampshire primary if it is entered there.

Pentagon Show, Scott Nominated

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—"The Selling of the Pentagon," the controversial documentary, and George C. Scott, the controversial actor, were nominated Tuesday for Emmy awards for excellence in television.

The National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences announced a total of 31 nominations in the categories of news documentaries and culture programs. NBC garnered the most with 14 and CBS was second with 11.

"The Selling of the Pentagon," which covered the public relations activities of the military, was nominated for outstanding achievement in news documentary programming.

The program became a political controversy when it was criticized by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew. It now is the object of a congressional investigation.

Scott was nominated for his narration of "A Man Called Lombardi" in the cultural documentary category. He was nominated earlier in the entertainment division of the Emmy awards for his performance in "The Price."

Scott refused to accept the movie Oscar for best actor of 1970 for his role in "Patton." He called the Academy Awards show a "parade of meat."

The news and cultural awards will be presented May 7 and the entertainment Emmys on May 9.

Mays' Single Outdoes Aaron's Big Homer

ATLANTA (UPI) —Hank Aaron got his 600th homer against the San Francisco Giants but it was Willie Mays' 3,087th career base hit that made the difference.

Mays, who will be 40 on May 6, singled home the winning run in the 10th inning with his fourth hit of the game Tuesday night to break a tie and send the Giants off to a 6-5 win over the Atlanta Braves.

Aaron, three years younger than Mays, teed off on starter Gaylord Perry in the third inning for a two-run homer that gave Atlanta a 4-3 lead. That put Aaron 114 homers behind Babe Ruth and 33 in back of Mays on the alltime list.

Only two of Aaron's homers have been off Perry. However, Giant pitchers also have surrendered Aaron's 500th homer (Mike McCormick) and 550th (Ron Bryant).

San Francisco unleashed a 14hit attack on three Atlanta pitchers but stranded 13 runners. With two on and two out in the 10th, Mays rifled a pitch off loser Bob Priddy into right field to score Hal Lanier with the deciding run.

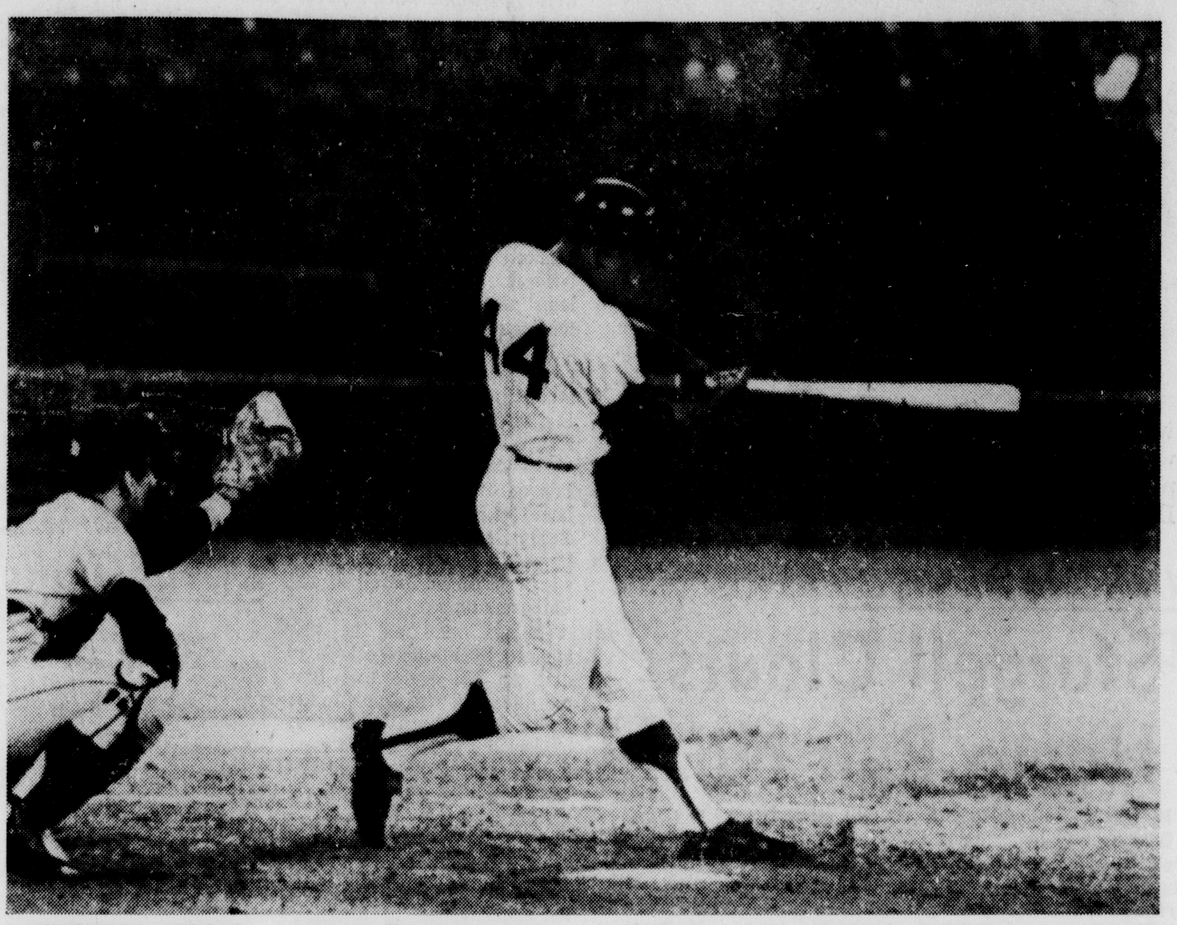
In the bottom of the 10th with two out and a runner on first, Jerry Johnson took over for winner John Cumberland (2-0), and got Earl Williams to force the runner at second to end the game as a sigh of relief rippled through the Giants' radio listening audience.

In addition to Mays, a couple of other bright spots for the Giants were the return to the lineup of outfielder Bobby Bonds and the long-range hitting of first baseman Willie McCovey.

Bonds was at his regular post in right field after being sidelined for a week with a sprained ankle. He collected two singles and drove in a run.

McCovey drilled his third homer of the season in the fifth to tie the score 4-4 and pushed the Giants ahead 5-4 in the seventh with a sacrifice fly to score Chris Speier. Speier led off the inning with a single and raced to third on a single by Mays.

In tonight's second game of the series, rookie righthander Steve Stone, who blanked Pittsburgh in his last outing, goes against former Oakland A's hurler Jim Nash (1-1) of Atlanta.



HISTORIC SWING — Atlanta Braves superstar Henry Aaron blasted the 600th home run of his major league career last night before a hometown crowd of 13,494. The blow, a 350 foot shot down the left field line, came off San Francisco's Gaylord Perry with a man on in the third inning. The Giants spoiled it, however, by winning, 6-5. (UPI Telephoto)

A'S FALL

Quiet Win For Orioles

OAKLAND (UPI) —Diego Segui and the Oakland A's made a lot of noise and commotion but it was the Baltimore Orioles who quietly won the game.

With Dave Johnson hitting and lefty Jim McNally pitching, the Orioles beat the A's 6-2 Tuesday night to end Segui's complete-game string at three before 5,502 chilled fans at the Oakland Coliseum.

Johnson drove in four runs with a double and a single to hit safely in all 16 games in which he has played. That puts him only four off the club record held by Bob Nieman. Johnson is hitting .354 and leading the world champions with 16 runs batted in.

Segui was wild while absorbing his first loss after three straight wins. He hit Frank Robinson on the left wrist and Brooks Robinson in the back in the third inning when the Orioles bunched three runs off him.

Frank Robinson may be sidelined for a few games. He retired from the game and had the wrist x-rayed but Brooks stayed in.

Rookie outfielder Angel Mangual provided the loudest noise for the A's with his bat by stroking his first major league homer off McNally in the fourth following a double by Tommy Davis.

Other than that, McNally, a 24-game winner last year, had little trouble in running his 1971 record to 4-0 with a sevenhitter.

Brooks Robinson set an alltime major league assists record in the third inning when he threw out a runner to surpass the mark of 4,322 held by Eddie Mathews.

The loss for the A's was only their third in the last 16 games.

In the third game of the series tonight, Mike Cuellar (10) of the Orioles throws against Jim Hunter (2-2).

Kids Get Chance At Ice Hockey

With the Stanley Cup playoffs in progress, I imagine some of you youngsters out there in readerland have taken more interest in ice hockey.

Thus, this is the ripe opportunity to tell you about the Marin Junior Hockey Club that is interested in enlisting the membership of some young blood in the 6 through 10 age bracket.

If you join this spring or summer, says Coach Charlie Crawford, you'll be ready for action during the inter-club competition which will start next fall.

You needn't be an experienced skater, says Crawford. "Just show up at the Raydine Ice Arena in Corte Madera any Sunday from 5 to 6 p.m.," he advised. Cost is $1.50 per week with skate rental available at 40 cents. There's also a summer insurance fee of $2.50. No equipment is needed as the club provides helmets and sticks.

"Non-skaters learn to skate in a few weeks," Crawford explained. The club's series of junior teams, with more than 85 boys enrolled, played numerous games throughout Northern California last season.

And, if you practice hard to perfect your game, kids, you'll be in line for some glory. Last season, for example, the Marin Club had three boys who were awarded trophies from the Northern California League. They were Tim O'Hara of the Squirt Division, top scorer; Pat McPartlan and Scott Anderson, both in the Pee Wee Division.

The local boys who garnered All-Star status included Jeff Southern, Tim O'Hara, Chris Bonbright and Dan Quan in the Squirts Division, McPartlan, Anderson, Shaun Mitchell and Mike Long in the PeeWee class and Gene Presley and Rob Long in the Bantams.

GOOD NEWS from the Houston Astros organization. Novato's John Dolinsek has moved up to the Triple A club at Oklahoma City and is the starting left fielder.

An All-American at Arizona State College in 1969, Dolinsek started his professional career on a Class A team, last year graduated to Double A and now is Triple A. Next, the Astrodome!

Incidentally, Dolinsek became a proud papa last month when his wife, Sue, presented him with a son. They've been sweethearts since Novato High School days.

HAL FISCHER, former Corte Madera resident now living in Sonoma County, has been selected as the United States representative to the World Technical Committee which reviews international basketball rules, regulations and competitions for more than 150 nations.

Fischer recently coached the Armed Forces team to its fourth consecutive National Amateur Athletic Union championship and fifth in the last six years.

Hal, sports director at the Presidio of San Francisco, is internationally known as a basketball expert.

2-1 Win For Tars Of Marin

Supported by a pair of unearned runs, Dennis Bueler pitched the College of Marin Tars to a 2-1 victory over De Anza Junior College yesterday in a Camino Norte Conference baseball game in Cupertino.

The victory, in the first game of the third and final round robin of the season, lifted Marin's record to 10-5, and kept them in third place behind Santa Rosa and West Valley.

Larry Brazda, the leading hitter in the CNC, increased his average to above .450 with a pair of infield singles, the first of which led to the first run of the game. Brazda stole second, went to third after Steve Henrickson walked on an infield single by Jim Peters, and came home on a throwing error by the Dons' pitcher.

Henrickson scored moments later on a wild pitch, and Bueler had all the runs he would need. The redheaded righthander struck out seven and walked three and allowed only six hits in his second victor this season over De Anza.

Wrong Way Colt Shakes Up The Fans

ALBANY, Calif. (UPI)—A wrong-way colt who had thrown his jockey and bolted through a temporary inner rail and out again caused a stir Tuesday at Golden Gate Fields.

At the start of the seventh race, Findal broke from post position No. 3 directly across the path of French Jacket and Uncle Mark. Findal then broke through the inner rail onto the infield and threw apprentice Gary McSwan who was not hurt.

As six horses headed up the backstretch, Findal made his way out through the hole in the rail and began sprinting towards the onrushing field.

With announcer Tod Creed shouting warnings and valets and grooms waving their arms, they managed to keep the errant colt toward the outside of the oncoming pack.

Jockey Dale Long, aboard winner Kaweah Kid, and Mel Lewis aboard My Day, who finished third, spotted the oncoming horse as they neared the sixteenth pole.

"We just kept on riding, hoping he wouldn't veer over toward the rail," said Lewis. "If he had, there would have been a hell of a wreck."

NBA Playoff Game On TV

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Admitting "nobody's going to hand anything to us," Milwaukee Bucks coach Larry Costello felt confident about winning game No. 3 tonight in the National Basketball Association finals against the Baltimore Bullets.

"It could be the knockout blow. I'm not saying it will be, but it could be," Costello said Tuesday. "Heck, if we lost they could square it at 2-2 Friday and we'd be right back where we started."

The game will be televised by ABC (Channels 7, 11, 13) beginning at 6 p.m.

Very Tight Race At Halfway Mark

The Marin County Athletic League baseball season reached its halfway point yesterday, and when the last of the year's first round of games was over, the top four teams were separated by just one and one-half games.

Marin Catholic High School's Vince Bormolini personally tightened up the race when he tripled home Tom Olson in the top of the eighth with the run that gave the Wildcats a 3-1 victory over Terra Linda at Albert Park.

Both teams emerged with 4-2 records, tied for third place.Taking over the second spot from Terra Linda was the MCAL's Cinderella team, the Redwood Giants. They demolished last place Tamalpais in Mill Valley, 11-4 for their fifth victory in seven games.

The Giants remained a full game back of league leading Novato, winners by a 5-4 count over San Rafael in Novato. In the day's other game, Drake edged San Marin, 3-2 in nine innings in San Anselmo.

For a while it looked as though Marin Catholic and Terra Linda might have to settle for their second tie games of the season; with Olson at bat and one out in the eighth, Albert Park's sprinkler system decided to turn on in left field, and it was over half an hour before a helpful fan could find the handle and shut it off.

The delay must have been too much for Terra Linda pitcher Scott Seefeldt, who up until then had allowed only two hits. After Olson got aboard on an error and Don Bianchini popped up, Bormolini ripped his triple and scored seconds later on a clean single by shortstop Steve Sherry.

Olson set the Trojans down in order in the bottom of the eighth, thereby recording his fourth complete game on the mound this season. It was his second win.

Terra Linda's only run came on the first hit of the game off Olson, an off field home run by Bill Sherbert to lead off the fifth. The blow cleared the left-field fence at a distance of 350 feet.

Redwood's Giants exploded for 14 hits, but only three of them came in the second inning, when they scored six times to put the game out of reach. Tam's defense collapsed in that frame, commiting four errors.

Sophomore second baseman Daryl Edralin and junior third baseman Bob Brown each collected three hits in the rout, while the only live bat for the Indians belonged to catcher Bill Rudolph, who doubled and tripled in three at bats.

John Moresco went all the way for the win, allowing only one earned run while striking out eight.

Randy Jackson's two-run homer in the first inning and the late inning relief work of pitcher Dave Judnick helped the Novato Hornets edge San Rafael for their sixth win of the season against a single loss. The Hornets scored all their runs in the first two innings, and then held on while the Bulldogs picked away at their lead with single runs in the sixth and seventh.

Curt Flood In Europe After Quitting Nats

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Curt Flood who was showing his age in a $110,000 comeback effort with the Washington Senators, is done with baseball today for the second season in a row because of "very serious personal problems mounting every day."

A half an hour after game time when he was supposed to have been suited up for the Senators, Flood, an all-star outfielder only two seasons ago, was aboard an airliner in New York City Tuesday night enroute to Europe with a one-way ticket.

He took with him a .200 batting average which had reduced him to benchwarmer status with the Senators and the genuine regrets of owner Robert E. Short and Manager Ted Williams that the former St. Louis Cardinal suddenly called it quits again. The 33-year-old player's departure for Barcelona caught the players and the front office by total surprise.

Tam Track Team Keeps Rolling On

San Rafael High School knocked off Redwood High in a battle for second place in the Marin County Athletic League track race yesterday, while Tamalpais continued toward an undefeated season.

Tamalpais defeated San Marin 77-52 and San Rafael outscored Redwood 72-64.

In other MCAL meets yesterday, Terra Linda defeated Marin Catholic, 81-55 and Novato outscored Drake, 74-52.

Getting double wins from Paul Crovo in the 100-yard dash and long jump and Jim Grigg in the triple jump and 220, San Rafael ran its record to 5-1, while dropping Redwood to 4-2. A season mark was set by San Rafael's Doug Puskar in the discus with a heave of 152-4, and Redwood's Kip Kermoian equaled the best pole vault effort to date with a 12-6 leap.

Terra Linda moved into a tie for third with the win over Marin Catholic. Dave Johnson and Mark Lowey each grabbed two victories to pace the win, while Don Nelson was a double winner for the Wildcats.

Novato bested Drake in a battle of winless teams despite a triple win by the Pirates' Tom Thompson. He took the 100, 220 and long jump. The Hornets did not have a double winner.

MCAL, upped his average with a double and a single in three trips to the plate. And Jackson, also one of the league's top hitters, slapped a single to go with his homer.

With one out in the ninth, John Loane singled for Drake, and moved to second on a walk. Damian Casalnuovo expertly dropped a sacrifice bunt to move both runners along, and after an intentional walk, Kevin Marshall grounded to San Marin's shortstop, Marty Larson. Larson bobbled the chance, and Loane sped home with the winning run.

George Shawver went all nine innings for Drake and got the win, while Len Hoffman, victimized by the ninth inning unearned tally, got the loss.

Redwood Merman Sets School Mark

Redwood High School's Brian Hennessy recorded a school record and a near school mark in collecting two wins in a Redwood swim victory over Drake yesterday.

In the 82-13 rout of the Pirates, Hennessy won the 200-yard individual medley in the speedy time of 2:07.3, and took the 400-yard freestyle in 4:08.1, one-tenth of a second off the existing school record.

In the other Marin County Athletic League meet yesterday, San Rafael defeated San Marin, 72-23.

Hennessy's I.M. time is under the existing MCAL record set in 1967 by Bob Girvin of Drake.

Also scoring double wins for Redwood were Spencer Eldred, John Goepp and Erick Humber.

Winning twice for San Rafael were Scott Dicker and Wolf Christenson.

This concludes the dual meet season for MCAL teams, but the league championship meet and qualifying for the North Coast Section meet will be held Saturday at Redwood High in Larkspur, beginning at 9 a.m.

Love Signs, But Not For Love

BALTIMORE (UPI) —Stan Love, high-scoring 6-9 center from the University of Oregon, has become the highest paid rookie in the history of the Baltimore Bullets.

Love signed a multi-year contract with the Bullets Tuesday for an estimated $500,000, the amount he said he was worth two months ago. Love, whom the Bullets plan to use as a forward, also was drafted by the Texas Chaparrals of the American Basketball Association.

"The figure from the bullets is what I term very fair but it was a little less than what Dallas offered," said Nick Grillo, Love's attorney.

THIS DAY IN SPORTS

"He was big league all the way as far as I was concerned," Williams told newsmen. "He tried like a sonuvabitch to get himself going after last year's layoff. There wasn't a guy on this club who had a better attitude. He was perfectly marvelous.

"He never mentioned quitting to me or to anyone else. The only serious manager-to-player talk we had was when I took him out of the line-up and he took it in stride.

"I knew he was having problems, baseball and otherwise. When I saw him Monday night, I thought his eyes looked like he hadn't slept good. I'll take him back anytime because he's big league. I just found out he made sure he paid up with the clubhouse boy two days ago."

Flood notified Short, who lured him out of baseball retirement last fall with a $110,000 contract, that he was abandoning the club in a 22-word telegram sent from Kennedy International Airport in New York.

It read: "I tried. A year and a half is too much. Very serious problems mounting every day. Thanks for your confidence and understanding."

It was signed: Flood.

Short also cited Flood as having outside problems but did not specify them. The player pulled out of a baseball career for the entire 1970 season to challenge baseball's reserve clause in the federal courts. He has lost decisions in the federal, district and appeals courts but indicated he would carry the fight to the Supreme Court.

Stargell Clouts Home Run No.11

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Despite Willie Stargell's record 11th home run, the Los Angeles Dodgers have chalked up their seventh victory in eight road games.

"I just threw him (Stargell) a fastball down the middle," Dodger reliever Pete Mikelsen said sheepishly after a come-from-behind 7-5 win over the Pittsburgh Pirates Tuesday night.

Keeping pace with frontrunning San Francisco in the National League West, the Dodgers trailed 3-0 going into the seventh inning. They scored four runs and then tallied three more times in the eighth.

Stargell set a major league record for home runs in April when he hit his 11th into the centerfield seats with the bases empty in the ninth.

"He must have hit that ball 450 feet plus," Mikkelsen said.

Mikkelsen, the Dodgers' palmball specialist, recorded his second save, going the last three innings.

Sandy Vance came in for starter Claude Osteen in the third inning and was credited with his second win against no defeats.

The Dodgers, who have five games left on a 13-game road trip, knocked Dock Ellis off the mound in the seventh after he went into the inning with a three-hitter.

In other NL games, New York edged St. Louis 2-1, Cincinnati downed San Diego 61, Los Angeles defeated Pittsburgh 7-5, Houston blanked Philadelphia 1-0 and Montreal at Chicago was postponed because of rain.

The Mets scored two third inning runs on a pair of errors and a wild pitch and held on behind the pitching of Jerry Koosman and Danny Frisella to defeat St. Louis. An error by left fielder Lou Brock on a single by Bud Harrelson allowed Tommie Agee to score in the third. Harrelson moved to third on an error by second baseman Ted Sizemore and scored on a wild pitch by Steve Carlton. Joe Torre extended his hitting streak to 21 games for the Cardinals with three hits in four at bats.

Errors also played an important part in the Reds' victory. San Diego made three of them and the Reds also got timely hits from Lee May in the first and Tommy Helms in the sixth in defeating the Padres. Don Mason hit his second major league homer to account for the Padres' only run.

Larry Dierker pitched a six-hitter and Doug Rader drove in the game's only run with a sacrifice fly in the eighth inning as the Astros edged the Phillies. A steal of third by Denis Menke in the eighth set up Rader's sacrifice fly.

Redwood Netters Continue Streak

Redwood High School's tennis team continued on its winning ways yesterday with a 5-0 romp over Novato High School.

In other Marin County Athletic League matches yesterday, Terra Linda defeated San Rafael 5-0, Drake beat San Marin of Novato by the same score, and Marin Catholic whipped Tamalpais 4-1.

The victory for Redwood pushed its MCAL consecutive win string to 44, with seven of the wins coming this season.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

McLain Victory For Senators

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Bob Short's "Halfway House" in Washington is half empty today but the Senators' owner can take heart in the performance of the remaining half.

Short shocked the baseball world last winter when he lured Curt Flood out of retirement with a $110,000 contract and handed Denny McLain a $100,000 deal after purchasing him from the Detroit Tigers.

It was Short who was shocked on Tuesday, however, as Flood, who retired last season after launching a suit against baseball's reserve clause, announced he was quitting because of "personal problems" and leaving immediately for Spain.

But McLain managed to offer some consolation as he pitched a six-hitter to lead Washington to a 2-0 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

Elsewhere in the American League, Baltimore ripped Oakland 6-2, Milwaukee downed Boston 4-2, New York edged Chicago 6-5 in 12 innings, Kansas City stunned Detroit 8-1 and California nipped Cleveland 2-1.

McLain, who said he was stunned by Flood's decision to quit, got RBI singles from Bernie Allen and Tim Cullen in the sixth and seventh innings to outduel the Twins' Bert Blyleven. He struck out eight and walked one in boosting his record to 3-2.

Marty Pattin pitched a sixhitter and Mike Hegan had a solo homer as Milwaukee beat Boston and snapped the Red Sox' five-game winning streak.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Painting Your Boat? Here Are Some Tips

I find quite a few boaters still have to paint every spring to get (or keep) their wooden boats in condition. Then, too, I find a lot more people painting fiber glass and aluminum boats lately, despite the fact they aren't supposed to need painting. This may be for several reasons. For example, the finish may be rough, coarse or pitted from age and use. The owners may want a new color (most of the older fiber glass boats came in any color as long as it was white), or the boat may have been repaired or patched and the new and the old must be matched.

Aluminum boats that are getting on in years also may need painting even if only to put some of the new non-skid paint on the inside. This non-slip finish saves a lot of skinned knees and shins, and it's a must for the angler who often gets a lot of water in his boat from lines and tackel.

But whatever the reason to paint a boat there are still many areas of uncertainty about it, as shown by some of the questions the readers ask:

Q. I want to paint my trailer boat the same color as the car. Can I use the same paint?

A. Yes, but it will probably come off in flakes after two or three weeks. Get the proper paint for whatever kind of boat you have. It's possible to match the color. Car enamels are intended for primed metal. On boats, generally, they are not so good.

Q. I've got epoxy paint for my fiber glass boat, but the directions don't say how to prepare the surface.

A. A fiber glass-plastic boat should be clean (wash with detergent), and roughened with fine sandpaper to give the new paint something to grip and bond to. Sand it enough to take off all the gloss, then wipe down with lacquer thinners.

Q. Why doesn't an aluminum boat need paint?

A. It doesn't need it for protection, because the surface of the metal oxidizes to form a very thin, tough film which protects the rest of the metal beneath. But the film is a dull gray. If you see the bright aluminum, it's either very new or lacquered.

Q. Should I use steel wool on metal fittings?

A. I see many people using steel wool, but I think it's poison around a boat. You can never pick up all the tiny particles of steel left after use . . . even with a tack rag. They rust and stain the surface.

Q. Anything to know about painting a plywood boat?

A. This above all! Seal the wood thoroughly with the very best sealer, primer and paint. Plywood should not get wet, because it can't swell up or expand like other woods. This is because the grain of the plies lie in several directions. If they expand they tend to tear the material apart.

Q. What's "spar" varnish?

A. Spar varnish is "long on oil" as the painters say. It's got more oil, less resin in its makeup than varnishes designed for interior work. This means it dries with a more resilient surface or "skin" and withstands sun and weather better.

Q. I took old paint off with paint remover. The new paint didn't stick. Should I have used a blow torch?

A. Some paint removers have waxes in them to retard evaporation of the solvents. After the old paint has been taken off the surface should be wiped down with thinners or mineral solvent such as varsol or naphtha (be very careful, it's inflammable) or washed with detergent and water to remove the wax.

Q. What's a tack rag?

A. It's the handiest gadget a fine painter can have. It picks up dust and grit that might mar the finish. It's made by wetting a big hunk of cheesecloth, then sprinkling with droplets of thinned varnish. Knead the cloth a little and you'll begin to feel the tackiness.

STANLEY CUP ACTION

Black Hawks, Canadiens Take 3-2 Series Leads

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

It was all a matter of time.

The New York Rangers had held Chicago's Bobby Hull scoreless for five full games but the second leading scorer in National Hockey League history ended his drought in fine fashion. Hull drilled home a goal at 6:35 of the first overtime period Tuesday night to give the Black Hawks a 3-2 victory over New York.

The goal also helped Chicago build a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven series.

Time also ran out for the Minnesota North Stars, who played on almost even terms with Montreal for 50 minutes before the Canadiens exploded for a flurry of goals in the last 10 to win 6-1. Montreal leads that series 3-2.

Hull, playing one of his best Cup series despite the fact he had not scored against New York, slapped a loose puck into the net after Pit Martin had won a faceoff. Ranger goalie Ed Giacomin had no chance on the play.

"I shot in almost the same motion," said Hull. "It was on the ice to Giacomin's right and he didn't have a chance to move on it."

Hull's goal came after he had spent an unusually long period of time on the ice. "I thought I overplayed him a bit in the first period," said Chicago Coach Billy Reay. "But he's a willing workhorse and in something like this, you don't like to get behind."

Chicago had taken a 2-0 lead in the first period but the Rangers tied in on a first period goal by Vic Hadfield and a second period score by Rod Seiling.

The series returns to New York Thursday night and a seventh game, if necessary, will be played Sunday in Chicago.

"They're far from being beaten," said Hull. "We're going to have to play the same type of game we did there last time when we won 7-1. If they were going to be demoralized, they would have shown it last night."

Montreal, which has had its hands full with the pesky North Stars, got a pair of goals from Pete Mahovlich and brother Frank's 10th of the playoff series to down Minnesota.

"It was hard checking all the way and quite a game for the first 50 minutes," said Montreal Coach Al MacNeil. "I guess it was no contest in the final 10 minutes.

"We've won hockey games in all buildings this season, including Boston," said MacNeil. "Thursday night we're going to come out skating and they'll have to keep up with us."

The Canadiens-North Stars series resumes Thursday night in Minnesota. The winner of that series will face the New York-Chicago winner for the Stanley Cup.

"We missed our chances early in the game and then they backfired against us when the Canadiens took advantage of their opportunities," said Jackie Gordon, the Minnesota coach. "But we'll be out to get them Thursday night. We're not out of it yet."

LOCKER ROOM KARATE

Orioles Coach Finds Way For Trouble On Day Off

NEW YORK (UPI)—Some people get into all kinds of trouble on their day off.

Have you noticed that?

Bill Hunter has. You have no idea how much.

Hunter is Baltimore's third base coach and any time he's on the coaching line he's all business. No fooling around. Off it he's something else. An entirely different individual.

There isn't a mean bone in Billy Hunter's whole body. He's exceptionally good-natured, he likes a joke and he enjoys a little fun. But even these otherwise innocent qualities can get a man into trouble.

They did last Thursday when Hunter had a day off with all the rest of the Orioles, who had arrived in Anaheim, Calif., a day early for a three-game set with the Angels.

Earl Weaver, the Orioles' manager, and Hunter, like two bus drivers on their day off, decided to go for a ride to the ball park.

They got there as the Angels were getting ready to take on Charlie Finley's Oakland A's and Weaver said he was heading for the press box. Hunter told him he'd join him after awhile but first he wanted to drop in and see some of the guys he knew among the Angels.

Well, you know how those things go. At first there was the customary kidding around and swapping of stories. Then somehow the conversation veered to karate and judo. Billy Hunter said he didn't hold a black belt but he certainly could demonstrate a few different blows if the Angels really were that interested.

With that Hunter delivered a neat karate chop to Clyde Wright's left arm. It hurt. What hurt Clyde Wright more is that he makes his living with his left arm ... While Wright was still tingling a little Hunter quickly pinched Jim Maloney's right elbow ... and then in almost the same quick motion playfully dispatched a loving karate chop to the valued right arm of Andy Messersmith, who was to be the Angels' starting pitcher that night.

Andy Messersmith, it turns out, also knows a couple of things about karate and judo. Quicker than you can say see-what-happens-on-a-guy's-day-off he got in a beautiful backhander that split Billy Hunter's lip.

The rest of the story becomes a bit garbled in the telling but a few clear facts emerge.

Messersmith was raked for seven runs and six hits by the A's, and yanked in the fifth inning. When the press, which had learned about the pre-game karate-judo session, asked Lefty Phillips if he thourhg that might have led to his pitcher's ineffectiveness he said he didn't think so at all.

Dick Walsh, the Angels' general manager, refused to let Billy Hunter off that easily. The fact the Angels dropped their third straight game that evening, 7-3, didn't do much for Walsh's composure.

He called Hunter "a disgrace to baseball" and said if he were his boss he'd fire him.

Dick Walsh was over-reacting, I think. I like the course of action taken by Harry Dalton, the Orioles' director of player personnel, who happened to join the club that evening. Harry Dalton apologized to the Angels on behalf of the Baltimore club.

Frank Lane also kept the brouhaha in correct perspective, I think. Lane, who used to be with the Orioles and now bosses the Brewers, fired off a telegram to Hunter which read:

"I'm surprised that you would attack 25 defenseless athletes the way you did. However, this is a cordial invitation to enjoy all the courtesies of our lavish Milwaukee Brewers' clubhouse on your next visit to our city. I understand you're bragging about the 'Hunter karate chop.' Have you ever heard of the 'Lane Bleeding Ear treatment?' Big deal. Best regards. Frank Lane"

BOWLING TIPS

Your strike ball is your best best for picking up the 1-2-5-8 spare. The 5-pin usually is the most troublesome in this set-up and a fairly good "pocket hit" is needed to bring it down along with the others.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Profits Seen In Trend To Leisure

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. My company has gone to a four-day week. How will this affect profits? Can you mention what stocks will benefit from a large scale change to the short week? A.T.

A. Yours is one of more than 100 companies to have changed to the shortened work week. The proportion of workers thus affected is still minute, but with the Steelworkers Union campaigning for a four-day week by 1974 the swing-over could gain momentum.

In some instances three-day schedules have been adopted, necessitating hiring a second shift of workers for the balance of the work week. This type of schedule might be a means of reducing the current high rate of unemployment. The consensus of those companies now on the abbreviated week is that production has risen, costs, employee turnover and absenteeism have been reduced and morale has been boosted.

While many workers have utilized the extra time by getting a second job, they are in the minority. Other methods chosen to fill the free hours have included: education, sports, travel and do-it-yourself activities.

Beneficiaries of an upsurge in do-it-yourself pastimes would be: Black & Decker, manufacturer of electric hand tools; Channel Companies, OTC retailer of hard goods and lumber and Diamond International, which derives 25 per cent of sales from retail lumber outlets.

Sporting equipment manufacturers should also benefit from increased leisure time. Acushnet Co. has largest share of the golf ball market, and, spending for this sport has increased 145 per cent since 1960. Snowmobiling enthusiasts have pushed Rupp Industries' sales from $1.6 million in 1965 to $29 million last year. AMF and Brunswick, originally bowling equipment makers, have diversified into numerous other sports.

Camping has enjoyed a strong upsurge in popularity; use of state and national parks has almost doubled in the last decade. Coleman Company, a leading maker of quality camping equipment has grown at an even more rapid pace. American Express is a broadly representative company in the field of travel and Prentice-Hall in the field of education.

Demand Hits 24 Million On New York Exchange

NEW YORK (UPI)—Investors drummed up a turnover of approximately 24,000,000 shares on the New York Stock Exchange Wednesday amid fresh signs the economy is recovering.

Market indicators generally pointed higher, although profit taking, which developed in the middle of last week, continued to restrain demand for certain stocks, notably the airlines which had been one of the most popular groups recently.

Standard & Poor's 500 Stock Index showed a gain of 0.39 at 104.78. Of the 1,671 issues crossing the tape, 747 pointed higher, while 662 retreated.

The index, which usually foreshadows future developments in the general economy, increased 0.6 per cent in March. A government spokesman said the report "suggests strongly that a balanced and broadly based economic expansion is developing."

Closing prices included AT&T 48 1-8 unchanged, Bethlehem Steel 23 7-8 unchanged, Du Pont 144 3-4 up 1 1-2, General Electric 124 up 1 1-2, General Motors 89 5-8 up 1 5-8, IBM 361 1-4 up 3 1-4, Southern Pacific 42 1-8 off 1-8, Texaco 39 unchanged, and U.S. Steel 35 1-4 up 1-8.

Banker Gauges Union Demands

LOS ANGELES (BW) — Union wage demands in 1971 will undoubtedly lead to some major strikes and costly settlements such as occurred in 1970, a banking economist predicts.

When 1971 is over, pay increases to labor will probably be in line with the high advances of last year, unless specific wage and price ceilings are imposed by the government.

This is the view of Dr. Ray Jallow, chief economist for United California Bank and a contributing editor to California Business, financial and business newsweekly of the West. In an article in this week's edition, he continues:

"While such expensive wage agreements can fuel inflation, economic planners hope that 1971 will have sizable gains in productivity, which could help to avert significant price rises.

"Productivity — or output per man-hour — can spurt dramatically after a recession as it has done in the past. However, an objective view of productivity in 1971 suggests only a modest gain and thus only a slight dampering of inflationary trends, and a continuing need for government restraint of inflationary wage-price movements.

"The influence of labor costs on inflation is obvious since such costs play a large role in determining the price of most items. This influence was stated quite specifically by the Council of Economic Advisers in its second "inflation alert."

"One of the best-established facts about the American economy is the long-run tendency for prices on the average to rise at about the same rate as unit labor costs on the average. Put another way, apart from temporary aberrations the general price level tends to rise by the excess of wage increase over productivity increases.

"It is this gap between increases in wages and productivity which fuels inflation, as well as being a source of labor-management strife.

"The wage increase-productivity gap was absent in the recovery year following each of the four prior recessions of 1948, 1954, 1958 and 1961, since unit labor costs actually declined in these periods. Productivity grew at the sizable annual rate of 6.2 per cent during the year following the 1960-61 recession, and 5.4 per cent during the year following the 1965 recession, both rates being in excess of compensation increase grants. Should we expect to do as well in 1971? Probably not.

"The dismal picture of productivity in recent years can be compared with the first half of the Sixties. Man-hours worked in the private economy increased about 5 per cent from 1960 to 1965, while output rose 28 per cent for a productivity gain of 20 per cent. During 1965-1970 the man-hours worked were similar, but out-put rose only 17 per cent, and the productivity gain barely reached 11 per cent. At the same time, pay per man-hour moved up 40 per cent between 1965 and 1970 as compared with a 23 per cent gain between 1960 and 1965.

"Since the economy has just begun to enter its recovery period we should expect productivity to rise significantly in the near future, and thus smaller, more favorable figures should show up for unit labor costs in 1971.

The 1970 recession has had a beneficial aspect in that much of the fat has been cut out of operations. Cost-cutting measures during the year have eliminated excess workers, as well as obsolete equipment and practices. Consequently, output can now go forward from a low cost base.

"Some day Wall Street will recognize our solid management for what it really is."

Marin City Site Set For Study

The Tamalpais High School District board has authorized its staff to explore the possibility of selling its 32 acres of land in Marin City.

According to Edward J. Neumeier, administrative assistant, the board Monday night approved a carefully worded motion authorizing Supt. (Wilber D.) Hawkins to explore the possible disposition and/or use of the Marin City site.

The parcel was acquired in 1958 through a federal grant after the district agreed to construct a school on the site. It was purchased for about $60,000, Neumeier said, and the district has spent $240,000 more in improvements.

The lot is currently used as a dumping ground for old cars and trash.

Neumeier said Hawkins indicated he has been approached by an agent of parties interested in purchasing the land. He said Hawkins did not elaborate.

On other land matters, three members of the board voiced concern over a proposal the district buy 60 acres of the Green Gulch Ranch.

The land has been offered to the district for use as an ecology study center at a cost of $250,000 by rancher George W. Wheelright III.

According to Neumeier, Trustee Robert W. Corlett said he felt the district owns too much land already and should not buy more. Trustees Betty Wallace and Jerrold Jadar cautioned the district staff to study the proposal carefully and to assess its need.

The Tamalpais High School District board also:

GRADUATION — Approved request from Redwood High School that graduation ceremonies be held this year at the Mount Tamalpais outdoor theater. The graduation is set for 11 a.m. June 12.

NEW NAME — Approved naming the district's continuation school Mewah Mountain. Mewah is the Indian word for "people." The school is located near Redwood High School on Fifer Avenue in Corte Madera.

OPPORTUNITY SCHOOL — Heard an hour-long report on the operation and success of the district's San Andreas High School located in Mill Valley. The school, formerly called Opportunity School, was established in 1969 as an alternative to regular school for students with academic difficulties or conflicts with school officials.

ELECTRONIC EQUIPMENT — Approved the leasing of electronic equipment to detect thefts from the Tamalpais High School library. The contract was awarded to 3M Systems for $6,695 per year. The library has reported thefts during the year totaling tens of thousands of dollars.

COMPLAINTS — Heard general complaints from parents and relatives of mentally retarded students attending special classes at Tamalpais High School. The superintendent agreed to meet with the parents to discuss their complaints, one of which includes student abuse by other students.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION — Approved a resolution supporting the abolishment of state requirements for physical education classes for junior and senior students. The San Rafael High School District board has approved a similar resolution.

MEETING — Set another meeting for Monday at 8 p.m. to discuss teachers salaries and other district financial matters.

Reagan Says He Has No 'War Chest'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan said Tuesday all the money he receives from out-of-state speaking appearances will be placed in a special fund to finance his political activities. He denied it would be used to build his own campaign "war chest."

"I don't know what that war chest would be for," the governor told his weekly news conference. "The only war I'm engaged in is furthering the goals of the Republican party and promoting the re-election of the President."

The Republican National Committee also will benefit financially from Reagan's out-of-state appearances.

The governor commented after his press office released a statement emphasizing that Reagan's out-of-state speeches will be limited "to those that assist the re-election of the national administration in 1972."

90 Seconds Work: $34,000 Loot

VAN NUYS (UPI) —An unemployment office was robbed of cash estimated by police at $34,000 Tuesday by two men who made their move after the money was delivered to be distributed as benefits.

Ray McFarland, general manager of the branch of the Department of Human Resources, said an audit was being conducted to determine the exact sum stolen.

He said one of the men was waiting in the lobby while the delivery was made. He waited until the money arrived and then jumped on a counter and pointed a gun at the cashiers.

He was joined by a second man in grabbing the cash and then they fled out a back door, McFarland said.

"It all took place so fast," he said. "It would surprise me if it took longer than a minute and a half."

The robbery occurred about 11:50 a.m.

The Galapagos Islands consist of 12 large and several hundred small islands.

Mock 'Kidnap' Spurs Charity Drive In Marin

A mass "kidnapping" last week of about 60 Marin business and civic leaders has resulted in a ransom of about $550 to date, the Marin Chapter of the March of Dimes announced yesterday.

The community leaders were abducted from their offices Thursday by young ladies dressed to match their role — black boots and all.

The victims were sped to the Kent Woodlands home of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Dunbar where they were released — following lunch and cocktails — on the promise of forwarding a check to fight birth defects.

The "kidnapping" is an annual event of the Marin chapter.

When not in use, guns should always be kept unloaded with the actions open.

Reed District Eyes An Old Revenue Plan

Reed School District is considering a departure in school financing: the use of surplus school property to generate continuing revenue to supplement tax funds.

The Reed district finds itself with two sites bought for schools which have never been built, and for which there now appears no need. Rather than sell the properties, Mark Noble of Tiburon, a district resident who ran unsuccessfully for the school board in April 20 election, suggested that they be used for cluster housing which could bring in money to support the schools.

Although there were some objections to his idea, the district is looking into it.

WHEN NOBLE MADE his suggestion at an April 6 board meeting, he said, "No one has yet been able to find a reason, other than tradition, why such a program could not be established."

Had he gone far enough back in history, he would have found that tradition itself is behind such a method of school financing.

In 1641, the town of Boston set aside Deer Island, one of several islands in Boston Harbor belonging to the municipality, to help support the Boston Latin School, which was the first publicly established school in the British colonies in America. In 1649, it added Long and Spectacle Islands to the properties supporting the school, and let out under perpetual lease 500 municipally owned acres near Braintree for the same purpose.

Rentals from these properties went far toward supporting America's first public school. For instance, an entry in the town records for 1644 shows Deer Island was rented for three years at seven pounds sterling per year, the money to go to the school.

THERE ARE MANY other cases in colonial and early United States history where land was set aside for school support. The federal government itself undertook this method of school financing with the Morrill Act of 1862, which gave each state 30,000 acres of public land for each senator and representative, the money to finance establishment of agricultural and mechanical colleges. The University of California itself is such a "land-grant college."

Noble's idea for Reed School District is to set up a foundation which would arrange construction of cluster-type condominium housing on the surplus school sites, with all proceeds above expenses going to the school district. He believes it could result in expanding the school programs while lowering taxes.

One of the Reed district's two surplus sites, the 10-acre Ring Point site on Paradise Drive east of the Uplands, was bought in 1957 out of general tax revenues. The district could use it for housing if it so desired.

The other, the 13-acre North Central site on Hacienda Drive, was bought with state aid funds, so state permission would have to be obtained to put it to non-school use.

THE LEGAL PROBLEMS would take some solving, no doubt. But the idea of putting surplus school lands to use to provide continuing revenue, instead of selling them for a one-time-only gain, should be attractive to a district that already finds itself with more school plants than its enrollment justifies.

There is much talk about taking some of school support cost off the property tax. Here is a way to do it.

Visit Those Public Schools

It's a busy week for school janitors.

Rooms and hallways must be spotless this week, and even the blackboards must be clean; because it's Public Schools Week, when mom and dad are invited in to see the rooms and meet the teachers that make up their children's world during much of the year.

The teachers, too, must put their best foot forward (and some of them probably would admit that talking to the youngsters is preferable to talking to their parents). Examples of students' work is posted on the walls — and if junior's isn't there, he's likely to be questioned after mom and dad get home from their visit.

Public Schools Week is a great institution. It gives the parents a chance to find out, among other things, whether Miss Shark is really as "mean" as junior claims, and whether Mr. Yardstick is as handsome as daughter Jennifer describes him. And it gives parents also the opportunity to get at least a glimmering of what goes on in those classrooms.

If you haven't visited a school this week, do so before the week is out. The list of open house events appears elsewhere in today's I-J. And here's a suggestion: If your child is in elementary school and you've visited it, also visit the high school he or she will be attending a few years from now. You'll be glad you did, later on.

Dispelling An 'Old Myth' Or Adding To Efficiency

(Reprinted from Wall Street Journal)

The Civil Service Commission says it would like to dispel the "old myth" that federal employes can't be fired. They can be, of course, though the red tape involved is so great that some agencies seldom try to cut their way through it.

Actually, about 15,000 federal workers are fired in an average year, out of a total work force of about three million. The figure does not include employes whose jobs disappear, for example in the closing of a military base.

Those employes who actually are discharged, the commission worries, incur a public stigma. Since the public thinks that firings are all but impossible, it's likely to believe that a federal worker who gets the ax is really a hopeless incompetent.

To counter this problem the commission is considering a two-part approach. First, it would provide counseling and other help for employes who are doing an inadequate job, in the hope of improving their performance. If they don't shape up, the commission plan would make it simpler to fire them.

Perhaps this would help dispel that "old myth." More important, it seems to us, it just might help to promote a more efficient federal work force.

Academic Freedom: Pair Of Definitions

Julien Dedman, the author of "Boola Boola" and an alumnus of Yale, recently wrote an essay entitled "The Rape of Yale." In it he included several definitions of academic freedom that I thought you might like to share with your readers. One of these Mr. Dedman attributes to another un-named alumnus and is as follows: "A self-paralyzing anodyne which dictates that one must smile as one's throat is being cut, provided that the cutting is being done by a Ph.D."

The other definition is, "Academic freedom at Yale is a one-way street for left-bound traffic only." Any positive correlation existing between academic freedom at Yale and any of our local institutions of higher learning is purely coincidental, or is it?

Upholds Reporter On Fairfax Meeting

I would like to comment on Councilman Robert R. Souza's letter to the editor of April 20 re the April 12 council meeting. As an eyewitness, I, too, thought the reporter was accurate as far as the story went. However, per Mr. Souza's suggestion, I listened to the tapes again; my opinion has not changed. All during that evening, Mr. Souza continually interrupted the mayor, who often avoided disruption of the meeting only by virtue of his great tact. If Mr. Souza dislikes being classed with "intolerant people" he should show less of that quality himself in his dealings with the citizens of Fairfax.

Also, I believe the audience supported Councilman Francis J. O'Connell merely for his honesty and straightforwardness in recognizing a valid point. He, too, has been a long and consistent critic of the "goings-on of the 1969 festival," and if Mr. Souza could think carefully, he may recall that Mr. O'Connell also voted against the festival. I, too, am a "pro-festival" person, but I still respect Mr. O'Connell for his consistent fairness, his straightforwardness, and, most important of all, his honesty.

Decorum Slips — Even In U. S. Senate

By ROY McGHEE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the British House of Commons, members jeer and cheer and trade insults.

Fistfights are not uncommon in the French Chamber of Deputies.

The Japanese Diet erupts in a free-for-all brawl now and then.

IN MODERN TIMES, only the United States Senate among democratic parliamentary bodies has insisted that decorum is as important as substance in debate. In fact, it's written into the rules and established by precedent.

But times change, and many fear the current penchant for militant and inflammatory rhetoric in the streets will soon be commonplace in the Senate.

An incident in the Senate recently, surprising as it was, reinforced those fears.

Sen. Norris Cotton, R-N.H., is a man with a short fuse. He was hopping mad that Gov. Walter Person and the University of New Hampshire Board of Trustees had named a former associate of Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., as university president. He took it out on McGovern.

THERE IS NOTHING unusual about one senator attacking another. It's done all the time in the Senate. But it's done decorously. And, as a matter of senatorial courtesy, the attacking senator always notifies the senator being attacked in advance, so the victim may be on the floor to defend himself.

Cotton ignored this fundamental courtesy. He also ignored an unwritten rule of the Senate that one senator never, never refers to another directly or by his last name. It's always, "the distinguished senator from . . .," or "the able and distinguished senior senator from . . .," or "my esteemed colleague from . . ."

But listen to Cotton: "Senator McGovern is one of a group of senators who have constantly addressed, encouraged or incited Washington demonstrators, whether they were invading the Pentagon, marching on the Capitol, or burning draft cards at the Washington Monument.

"It is not for me to question the patriotism or sincerity of Mr. McGovern and his associates, but whatever may be their motives, they are, in my opinion, and in the opinion of many of my associates, promoting disrepsect for the Congress, impeding the President in his efforts to end the war, and encouraging our enemies to refuse to negotiate for peace."

McGOVERN RESPONDED in kind. Cotton, McGovern said, "is one of those obsolete, self-styled experts whose patriotism consists largely of cheering from the sidelines while young men die in a foolish war he helped to foster."

This may seem a small matter in a world troubled by apocalyptic problems. But if the apocalypse will not be stayed by adherence to the traditional courtesies in these abrasive times, it might well be hastened by their abandonment.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Busing Decision Shows Court Unchanged By Political Winds

WASHINGTON — There are three aspects of the Supreme Court decision overruling President Nixon on school busing which deserve special attention:

1 — Every decision of the court bearing on school desegregation, from the historic verdict of 1954 to the four rulings last week, has been unanimous. This continuing unanimity is good evidence that the justices are acting as jurists, not as politicians.

2 — The make-up of the court has radically changed since 1954, but the pattern of its decisions on school integration remains the same. The court which handed down the rulings on busing and related matters is a creature of no single president. Only two of the justices who joined in the 1954 decision are on the court today. Five were appointed by two Republican presidents — Eisenhower and Nixon — and four by three different Democratic presidents — Roosevelt, Kennedy and Johnson.

3 — The major role which Warren Burger played in the latest decisions affirming the constitutionality of busing and the right of the district courts to lay down desegregation guidelines shows that any chief justice who is qualified for the job will be his own man, independent of the president who chose him.

PRESIDENT NIXON named Chief Justice Burger and Justice Harry Blackmun in part because he believed they would be his kind of "strict constructionists." They are proving to be their own kind of "strict constructionists" by ruling that reasonable busing to overcome racial discrimination is strictly constitutional.

In this very important decision, written by Mr. Burger himself, it is evident that there is a considerable gulf between the thinking of Nixon and that of the chief justice.

The latest ruling does put some limitations on the use of busing to achieve racial balance: It mustn't risk health or significantly impair education.

But the court ruled very broadly. It asserted that the lower courts must have power to order the busing of children far from home, when necessary, and to authorize even "bizarre" school boundaries and other inconveniences whenever needed to end state-imposed public school segregation.

THIS IS A FAR CRY from the concept laid down by President Nixon in a policy document issued about a year ago. He advocated the "neighborhood school" as something which he wanted preserved, saw busing as disruptive and overly expensive, and argued against "automatic assignment" of children "by some mathematical formula" for balance.

The Burger decision overrules this thinking at nearly every point. It doesn't call for any precise mathematical percentage of white and black students but it affirms the duty of the lower courts to assign students in a manner to bring about integrated school systems.

It is only fair to make it clear that the difference between Burger and Nixon concerns methods, not objectives. The chief justice believes that busing is a needed tool to end past wrongs. The president wants to use other devices, including special federal aid, to improve the quality of education during the process of desegregation.

NIXON'S REMARKABLE record of achievement in the whole area of civil rights and school integration has been skimpily reported in much of the media and is little understood.

The facts show that 15 years after the historic 1954 court decision only 5.2 per cent of Negro public schoolchildren in 11 southern states were in desegregated schools and that now, after two and a half years of the Nixon administration, the figure has risen to more than 90 per cent.

The real school desegregation problem today is in the North, not in the South.

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

There's No Easy Answer To Segregation Of Schools

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — Not long ago I startled a circle of Mississippi Republicans by saying I was sorry my children went to schools with such a tiny proportion of black classmates. They may have been startled because I have a natural southern accent, which thickens when I am talking to anybody from Mississippi. But of course the idea of any white's wanting his children to go to school with more blacks is startling in itself — and not just to Mississippians.

As I explained it, it is unnatural to grow up living one mile from the District of Columbia, where about three-fourths of the population and more than 90 per cent of the public school enrollment is black, without becoming acquainted with more than a casual handful of black children. Yet that is what my children have done.

One is in high school, and the extent of his involvement with blacks is playing on the same football team and hanging around the same hot shoppes. The other is in junior high, and her contacts are even fewer.

At this time in this world, especially this part of the world, that is unrealistic. You need not be a crusader for integration to see that that is not preparing teenagers to live in the world as it is.

THE EASY ANSWER, the one immediately volunteered by my Mississippi friends, was, "Why don't you just move into the district then, and they can go to a school that's 94 per cent black or whatever the figure is?"

But of course that is not realistic either — no more realistic for the tiny minority of white children than for the majority of blacks, who are not in such schools by choice.

The fact is that there is no easy answer. But because the solution is not easy or immediate, and may never be complete, is no reason to simply not try to make the world our children grow up in as much like the real world as possible. And that brings us to the Supreme Court's unanimous decision endorsing busing as a means of reaching racial balance in schools.

THERE ARE MANY steps available to school authorities before the last resort of busing. Gerrymandering of school districts, for example (or ungerrymandering, in frequent cases), can create a realistic racial mix. Such alternatives to busing have been there all along and are specifically cited in the opinion just handed down by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger on behalf of a unanimous court.

Burger's opinion is directly contrary to those stated by Mr. Nixon in his school desegregation message of 13 months ago, in which the President set up and repeatedly struck down the straw man of "compulsory busing." The difference between the President and the chief justice is that Mr. Nixon consults the public pulse before delivering his opinions, and his oppointee Burger consults the law instead. As a result, busing is no longer a strawman threat but a clear and present, court-supported weapon against the status quo.

Certainly Mr. Nixon was right in his reading of public sentiment when he expressed himself against busing. Popular opposition to busing has not vanished in those 13 months. Even people who endorse civil rights advances in general often regard compulsory busing as arbitrary; they complain that is is unfair to the children who have to be bused while others remain in their previous schools, and they redouble those complaints if it is their own children who have to rise earlier and return home later each day.

Yet the busing decision still does not make that means of desegregation mandatory. It approves busing merely as one route that can be used by the lower courts. Where good-faith efforts to break down artificial school barriers replace the rhetoric and foot-dragging that have been so widespread up to now, busing may never be demanded, or where necessary may come on a limited scale.

THE KEY PHRASE there is good faith.

It has been a rare commodity in the years since that earlier court ruling of 1954. Where used by lawyers, the phrase often has been as hypocritical as "freedom of choice" came to be in school cases — meaning approximately the opposite of what was stated.

Still good faith is there, in its literal meaning, among most of the American people. Reluctant to come forth, perhaps, in the suburbs of the capital or the hamlets of Mississippi, both places where realistic averaging of the racial mixture will make drastic changes. But there nevertheless: and now that the threat of busing is formalized by the court, it is all the more logical for that good faith to be exercised toward racial realism. Where it remains socially unacceptable, it can always be camouflaged by restating that increasingly old truth, "It's the law of the land."

CTA Sees Non-Existent Threat In Tenure Bill

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

"Tenure is vital to education! Write your legislator!" urged the California Teachers Association at the top of the first page of its April 13 Legislative Letter.

The CTA wants its members to write their legislators to oppose Assembly Bill 293, by Assemblyman John Stull, R-Encinitas. Many of them have done it, according to the same issue of the Legislative Letter, which reported:

"Never, in the last decade, to the knowledge of the CTA Legislative Letter's editor, have so many teachers responded so faithfully and well to calls for help from the governmental relations staff on legislative issues as they have this year.

"CTA advocates Bill Logan and Wayne Carothers report that letters to legislators from teachers on the tenure and voucher issues have reached deluge proportions . . ."

FROM ALL THIS, one might think that AB 293 was a bill to abolish teacher tenure. However, it is nothing of the kind.

It would keep teacher tenure, with many safeguards. But it would eliminate the provision in the present law for superior court review of every contested teacher firing. The courts would be taken out of the picture entirely.

Instead, Stull's bill provides for a hearing by a state hearing officer, attended by a panel of three professional educators, one to be chosen by the school board, the second by the teacher the board wants to dismiss, and the third by the first two.

If the hearing officer and panel agree, their decision is binding on the school board. If they do not agree, the board has the final decision.

ALSO, AB 293 provides that the hearing officer and panel may recommend a lesser penalty than firing, in the case of a "border-line" teacher. Such a teacher could be put back on probation for one or two years to give him a chance to shape up.

It also provides that a probationary teacher, on completing three years in a district, may as result of a similar hearing be kept on probation one or two years longer. And it makes "probationary" mean what it says, by giving the school board final decision on dismissing a probationary teacher.

It retains the same reasons for dismissal that are now in the law. And to further guard against arbitrary school board actions, it requires that each school district adopt guidelines for evaluating teacher performance, make an annual evaluation of each teacher, and provide counseling when a teacher's performance is unsatisfactory — all this before attempting dismissal.

THE ALMOST-HYSTERICAL opposition to this bill by CTA — in which it is joined by the California Federation of Teachers — is based primarily on the elimination of the superior court hearing. Says the CTA Legislative Letter:

"To CTA and some legislators who have spoken out, the superior court hearing is the only guarantee of fair play that an accused teacher has."

Why the teachers' organization is so anxious to keep the superior court hearing in the dismissal process may puzzle a lot of people. But school boards know. They are reluctant to move to dismiss even the most incompetent teachers, because every such case is likely to require at least a year to move through court. The school board thus must hire another teacher and face the possibility that, a year or more later, because of the decision of a judge in an area in which he is no expert, it will have to restore the fired teacher to his job and pay him for the time he didn't work — as well as keeping his replacement.

The CTA, however, must now battle against another tenure bill as well as Stull's: SB 697 by state Sen. Albert S. Rodda, D-Sacramento. This is the bill resulting from recommendations of the California State Board of Education. It does not contain all the features of Stull's AB 293 — but it, too, eliminates the superior court hearing.

New Use Seen For L-Dopa Drug

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A group of doctors reported here today that L-Dopa, a drug which has been effective in the treatment of Parkinson's Disease, may also prove useful in treatment of shock caused by heart failure.

Dr. Eliot Corday, clinical professor of medicine, UCLA Medical School, and Drs. Jose R. Lozano, Hugo Carasco and Tzu-Wang of Cedars-Sinai Medical Research Institute, said that treatment had been successful when the drug was tested on animals.

The doctors said that the tests were so encouraging that they are extending the work to humans.

Bolinas Director To Be Appointed

The Bolinas Community Public Utility District Board will hold a special meeting at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the district office to appoint a director to the board, said Helen McKay, assistant secretary of the district.

The board will hold a closed session and then open the meeting to appoint someone to fill the unexpired term of Albert W. Meyer which runs until November 1973.

Sewer Line Smoke Tests Are Slated

The Almonte Sanitary District board has notified homeowners that the district will conduct smoke testing of sewer lines to detect leaks responsible for storm water infiltration of sewer mains.

Secretary John J. Crncich said the testing will begin next Monday and will be conducted by Roto-Rooter Co.

Photos of leaks will be taken and stakes driven where they are found, Crncich said. Homeowners will be notified and given 60 days to correct leaks on their property, he said.

Storm water infiltration causes raw sewage to be dumped into Richardson Bay during winter rains and "is a potential health hazard and in direct violation of the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board," said Crncich.

Creek Discussion

The need for dredging Gallinas Creek channel this year and how it is to be funded will be discussed by the Advisory Board of Marin County Service Area 6 at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the supervisors' chambers at the Civic Center.

Supervisors Back Youth Panel On Omitting Juvenile Names

Marin County supervisors yesterday backed Marin Youth Commission in urging newspapers not to publish the names of juveniles who run afoul of the law.

On a motion by Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., supervisors voted unanimously to ask the newspapers to reconsider the policy of printing juvenile names.

Youth commissioners Laurie Packard of Corte Madera and Peter Sorensen of Novato said they had written the Independent-Journal and other papers in an effort to halt the publication of minors' names but got no response. They said publication of juvenile names jeopardizes the rehabilitation of youth.

In fact, publication often has the reverse effect of making heroes of the offenders, Miss Packard said "They may cut out news items and use them for prestige, and some may try to live up to their reputation."

L. Charles Smith, youth coordinator, said his main objection is that only the arrest is published and not the outcome of the case because juvenile proceedings are closed.

On a motion by John F. McInnis, supervisors also passed another motion asking the youth commission to invite all newspapers in Marin to sit down with the commission and with the Juvenile Delinquency Prevention Commission to discuss the policy on publishing of juvenile names.

Such a discussion would disclose the pros and cons and would provide some basis on which to judge, said McInnis. "At this point, I don't know the answer."

Paul M. Cohen, chairman of the youth commission, said youth wants more representation on the 11-man commission, which is now divided seven youths and four adults. He said one suggestion is that the commission be composed of 10 youths and two adults.

Supervisor chairman Louis H. Baar asked the youth commission to make its proposal in writing and submit it to supervisors.

The supervisors also went on record supporting the right to vote for 18-year-olds.

Redwood Sophomores Plan Benefit Wash

The sophomore class at Redwood High School will conduct a car wash from 11:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Saturday at the Chevron service station at 706 Tamalpais Drive, Corte Madera, according to Minday Lawson, class representative.

Proceeds will be used for class activities, she said.

Preliminary Nod To Rec Budget

The San Rafael Parks and Recreation Commission has approved a preliminary $352,132 budget for fiscal 1971-72.

This budget, approved Monday night, is $28,543 more than the current $323,589 budget, Andrew J. Snyder Jr., parks and recreation director, said.

The budget will now go to the city manager and then to the city council for further revisions and final passage, Snyder said.

The commission Monday made a few small cuts in the budget proposed by Snyder and his staff, to affect a $700 decrease.

Public Drinking Sparks Lively Sausalito Debate

A proposal by Sausalito's city attorney to make public consumption of alcoholic beverages in the city an infraction rather than a misdemeanor, inspired one councilman last night to suggest the city drop the prohibition entirely.

City Atty. Leland H. Jordan had suggested the change because he felt it would save the city time and money in prosecuting such cases. Many persons plead not guilty because violation of the current city ordinance gives the violator a criminal record and subjects him to a possible penalty of six months in the county jail and a $500 fine.

If public drinking were an infraction, Jordan said, violators could not demand jury trials as they often do now and, in addition, a violation would not result in a criminal record because an infraction is not a crime.

"If drinking in public isn't a crime, maybe we shouldn't prosecute it at all," Councilman Wyman Hicks said and added: "Perhaps we ought to take a second look at some of the ordinances we have (regulating behavior); maybe we don't need all of them.

"No one is offended unless a person who drinks misbehaves," Hicks said. "The law we have now says that if a person wants to drink, he has to do it in a bar and I question that."

Councilman Robin Sweeny said the city has a responsibility for what happens on its public streets and parks. "We have laws governing what goes on in bars, laws requiring barkeeps to stop serving people who are intoxicated," she said. "Before we give up any controls on our property, the public streets and parks, I'd want to have some good substitutes."

"Do you object to people consuming a beverage in a public place? That's really what this law is all about," Hicks asked. Drinking a coke is one thing, Mrs. Sweeny countered, but drinking alcohol "creates behavioral problems."

The city can take action against the person who misbehaves, Hicks pointed out, but why not leave the quiet drinker who disturbs no one alone, he suggested.

Police Chief James D. Wright pointed out that children are prohibited from entering bars and people who are offended by drinking don't go into them. "People who go to Princess Park with their children may be offended by someone slopping wine around," the chief said.

"What if they drink it without slopping? Hicks asked Wright. "Well, you can split hairs, I guess," the chief replied.

Mayor Alexander R. Imlay said he would like to know what members of the public feel about the matter, "what kinds of conduct the public wants us to regulate here." "Yes, I think organized park drunks should be heard from too," Hicks retorted.

The council agreed to consider the matter at a future meeting.

The council also asked Wight to be prepared to explain police policies at the council meeting May 4. The request followed a comment by Hicks that he had heard the department "uses unnecessary force in carrying out its duties." Councilmen Sweeney and Earl F. Dunphy said they were satisfied with police action in Sausalito.

The Sausalito City Council also:

PARKING FEES — Voted to introduce an ordinance to increase fees in Municipal Parking Lot No. 1 from 50 to 75 cents an hour and to keep the lot open from 6 to 10 p.m., charging cars which parked there during evening hours at a $2 rate. Resident parking during the evening would be free.

DOG LEASH LAW — Heard first reading of an ordinance requiring that all dogs be leashed in the city's commercial district. The leash law would apply on Bridgeway from Richardson to Napa streets, on all of Caledonia Streets and in city parks.

FINANCE COMMITTEE — Set a meeting of the council's finance committee to consider proposed police and fire budgets for May 6 at 8 p.m. in city hall.

ADVERTISING — Introduced an ordinance which would prevent advertising displays in public streets, including vehicles with advertising signs parked in the street for advertising purposes.

USE PERMIT — Asked staff to prepare an ordinance which would require that businesses seeking to obtain liquor licenses would have to have a use permit issued by the city.

New York Will Purchase Theater

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Public Theater, producers of free Shakespeare performances in Central Park during the summer, will be purchased by the city for $2.6 million.

The city council approved the purchase Tuesday despite the objections of some councilmen who described it as a "private give-away."

Joseph Papp, who directs the theater located in Greenwich Village, said the theater was more important to the city than Yankee Stadium. The city has already announced plans to buy the stadium, home of the baseball Yankees and football Giants, for $24 million.

Review Board For Businesses Aired

A proposal to establish a business license review board to extend the city's control over businesses in the community was debated by the Sausalito City Council last night.

In the end, the council reached no agreement over the plan presented by City Mgr. Albert St. Cyr, but asked the city staff to study the matter further and make a recommendation at a future meeting.

St. Cyr's proposed board — similar to one established recently in Carmel — would review all applications for business licenses (or renewal of such licenses). He said the board would determine the effect each business would have on the community, including its "compatibility with existing plans and laws and its potential for creating police, fire health or nuisance-generating problems.

The board, which would have the power to deny a license, would also consider the appearance and upkeep of a business, its proposed methods of operation, management and types of customers before making a decision, the city manager said.

St. Cyr suggested the board include the city manager, the police and fire chiefs, building inspector, planning director and a member of the Sausalito Chamber of Commerce whose board of directors has endorsed the plan.

The proposal drew sharp criticism from Councilman Wyman Hicks who asked if the board proposed to act as a "shopping center board," deciding what kind of businesses should be allowed in Sausalito and how many of each type of operation. "Is the city council going to say we are not going to have a free enterprise system in Sausalito,?" businessman Fred Perry asked.

Councilmen Robin Sweeny and Stephen A. Fraser endorsed the idea of more city control over business. "This is an effort to maintain and improve the quality of businesses in our city so they don't deteriorate into just junk, "Mrs. Sweeny said. "I'm in favor of any additional controls the city can exercise over the upgrading of business," she added.

Hicks replied that the persons suggested for the board already review applications within their own spheres of expertise; for example, the fire chief inspects business establishments to see they conform to fire regulations. "But I'm completely opposed to having the fire chief able to vote against issuing a business license because he doesn't want another ski shop in town," Hicks said.

Innocent Plea To Dope Charges

Stephen John Ruskewicz, 26, of Mill Valley, pleaded innocent Monday in Marin Superior Court to charges of possessing marijuana and LSD at his home Sept. 17.

Jury trial was set for the week of June 28.

Ruskewicz was arrested after a man picked up in San Francisco for selling LSD was trailed to Ruskewicz's home. Officers later returned to the house with a warrant and said they found 89 tabs of LSD and several pieces of hashish.

Here's $1,105,000 for the City of San Rafael

BECAUSE improved sewerage facilities were needed, the electorate authorized the City of San Rafael to issue bonds. Bank of America and its associated investment dealers purchased these bonds to give your community the money it needs.

Interest rates on the bonds were decided by competitive bidding—a procedure required by law to obtain the lowest average interest rate for the taxpayers under current bond market conditions. Interest rates also reflect the credit rating of your city.

We, at Bank of America, bid on virtually all municipal bonds issued in the State—because we have confidence in the future of California and communities like yours. The quality of a community parallels the quality of its municipal services. This is reflected in property values through the years.

Bank of America and its associates are proud to play a key role in the development of your city.

You may be interested in buying City of San Rafael Sewer Bonds as a personal investment. They offer the advantage of tax exempt income and are available in denomination of $5,000.
